Sale of New Autos Forbidden, Effective Today; Manila Believed Still in Our Hands, MacArthur's Divided Forces Unite Lines After Heavy Battle

U. S. Forces Are Consolidated Despite Fierce Jap Assaults

BULLETIN

London, Jan. 2 (AP).—A Domei report from Tokyo, carried today by Reuters, asserted that it was reported reliably from Luzon that the Japanese drive from the north was less than 10 miles from Manila. It reported that announcement of the capture of Manila was expected at any moment.

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

American and Filipino troops fighting against overwhelming odds north and southeast of Manila were consolidated into one unified force yesterday in the face of heavy Japanese assaults trying to break through and smash the maneuver.

This was reported by Gen. Douglas MacArthur last night in a message which declared that the harbor defenses and island fortifications of Manila Bay as well as his land positions "are strongly held by our troops."

There was no mention in the report of Manila itself or of where the American lines are but in the absence of any Japanese claims of having taken the Philippine capital, officials here believe the Stars and Stripes still flies over the ancient city.

A major battle was certainly underway, but with MacArthur handling his troops in "masterly" manner there were no break-throughs. The hard-fighting Americans and Filipinos were retreating, but making the enemy pay heavily for every foot of ground gained.

Secretary of War Stimson paid tribute to the defenders yesterday in a discussion of the Philippine campaign which did not conceal the seriousness of the situation.

He denied reports that the Japanese army in Luzon is largely a "mass of poorly-armed and ill-trained boys," and declared that the enemy troops are "tough."

"The cold truth is that they are veterans and well-equipped," he told reporters. "Staff officers are of 'high-order.' These are facts we have to face. I'm confident we'll lick them in the end, but we can't do it by looking through rose-colored glasses."

Gen. MacArthur's report on the situation in Luzon, outlined in the night War Department communique, did not give a clear picture of the battle. It said:

"Despite heavy enemy attacks attempting to break up our troops movements, the maneuver designed to regroup the two forces of American and Philippine troops opposing the Japanese in the north and the southeast has been successfully accomplished.

"All available defending forces have now been united. In addition to the land positions, the harbor defenses and island fortifications are strongly held by our troops."

Some observers took this to mean

Army 'Grateful,' Weighs Lindbergh Offer to Serve

Approval of Charles A. Lindbergh's offer to serve in the Army air forces was hinted yesterday by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

While no action has yet been taken on the flier's offer, Stimson told a press conference he wanted it distinctly understood that:

"Whether it comes from Col. Lindbergh or anyone else, any advice that will help the service will be gratefully appreciated and carefully considered."

British Fight Off Japanese Force Pushing Near Kuantan

By C. Yates McDaniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

Singapore, Jan. 1.—The British imperial line strongly engaged the Japanese invader today about Kuantan, on the eastern Malayan peninsula 190 miles above this base, but action on the western front about Perak was confined principally to skirmishes and artillery fire.

Nowhere was there evidence of material enemy progress. (The Japanese had claimed the capture of Kuantan.)

In its New Year's Day communique the British command thus summed up:

"On the Perak front (290 miles above Singapore) there is contact with small parties of the enemy. There has been some enemy shelling.

"One of our companies, supported by artillery, inflicted about 100 casualties on the enemy and destroyed a small enemy ammunition dump.

Military quarters declined comment on Tokyo claims that Kuantan was captured Wednesday, but said the British still controlled the airdrome there. It is the chief strategic objective in that area, as no road extends southward through the coastal country. A good road connects Kuantan with the Central Malayan Railway, 80 miles to the west, however.

These quarters also said the Japanese had not landed from the China Sea, as previously reported, but had made their way down trails 200 miles from Kota Bharu.

Singapore's people, many of them removed by half a world from home, had their New Year's celebrations in blacked out homes and hotels, exhibiting calm and cheer-

Roosevelt, Churchill Resume Conferences on War Strategy

Prime Minister Pays Washington Tribute After Church Rites

Halifax, Hopkins, Hull and Welles Present at Parley

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill last night held a long strategy conference with their ranking military and diplomatic advisers amid indications that vital decisions on the conduct of the war are imminent.

The two leaders resumed their discussions almost immediately after Churchill's return here from Ottawa early yesterday and after the war council meeting dined together and continued their conversations through the evening.

Belief that the war role of the Latin-American republics was one of the subjects under discussion at yesterday's strategy conference was strengthened by the presence of Secretary of State Hull and Undersecretary Welles, who is to leave Washington shortly for the Rio de Janeiro conference of American foreign ministers.

Halifax, Hopkins Present

In addition to the chiefs of the British and American armed forces the President and prime minister called in to the conference British Ambassador Lord Halifax and Harry Hopkins, White House confidante who has served as Mr. Roosevelt's personal representative in both Britain and Russia.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early, in announcing the conference, described it as "a continuation of war plan studies in all theaters."

Churchill is believed to have laid before the group a full report on his three-day visit in Canada and the progress of plans for complete coordination of the Canadian war effort with that of Britain and the United States.

The prime minister, in turn, was informed of the results of discussions between British and American military and supply experts during his absence from Washington.

Churchill himself had told reporters who accompanied him back from Canada by train that the

'Relatively Safe' for a Sub

Japs May Try to Shell Cities On West Coast, Nimitz Warns

By the Associated Press

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Jan. 1.—A warning that Japanese submarines might attempt to shell cities on the West Coast of the United States was made today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, new fleet commander, as reports were received of such shellings at three points in the Hawaiian Islands.

The new attacks in these islands, announced by the War Department at Washington, occurred at Hilo, second largest city of the Hawaiian group, which is on the island of Hawaii.

The other attacks were on the harbor of Kahului, Maui, and on the shore line near Linue, Kauai. The communique said there were no casualties and "practically no damage by any of these attacks." Additional details were not available here.

Speaking to reporters aboard a big new submarine yesterday, just three hours after he assumed command, Admiral Nimitz said "it's relatively safe and simple for a submarine to rise to the surface near a port and throw a few shells into a city.

"It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that Japanese submarines

Reds Gain in Donets

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 1.—Adolf Hitler was reported tonight to have flown to the Moscow front to take personal command of German armies broken and beaten at Kaluga by Russia's great counteroffensive, which was continuing with unstemmed force on all fronts.

Hitler, who 11 days ago fired his commander in chief, Field Marshall von Brauchitsch, and personally took control of the army, presumably will attempt to direct a successful digging in of the Nazi armies—something they have failed to do in more than a month of retreat before the Red onslaught.

As this report from well-informed circles in Stockholm reached London, the Russian command announced an advance 125 miles northwest of Moscow and the recapture of several towns, including the important Volga river town of Staritsa, a full 45 miles southwest of Kalinin and only 30 miles short of Rzhev, strategic Volga communications center.

Reds Near Mozhaisk

Dispatches from Russia also said advance Red army units were within a few miles of Mozhaisk, key town 37 miles west of Moscow on the broad Moscow-Smolensk highway and next major objective of the Russian push.

Hitler, according to the Stockholm report, rushed to the Moscow front following the big Russian victory at Kaluga over the tank army of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian and the rout of six Nazi army corps of perhaps 250,000 men.

The Nazi fuehrer was at his headquarters in the Kiev area, it was said, when he heard of the defeat, which was regarded by the German general staff as very serious.

Hitler was pictured as hoping that his personal appearance before his troops would stiffen their morale and resistance. His new headquarters were understood to be near Smolensk, 230 miles from Moscow on the main highway to the west, a good 150 miles from the nearest fighting.

Advancing in Donets Basin

Staritsa, sitting high on the steep banks of the Volga, was taken by the Russians in a strong sweep southwestward from Kalinin along this historic waterway. The town lies 125 miles northwest of Moscow and is approximately one-third of the way to the Latvian border from

Army to Keep On Accepting Recruits, Recall Reservists

Secretary Stimson announced yesterday that the Army has reversed a decision to abandon all voluntary enlistments in a move to obtain numbers of youths aged 18 and 19 denied it under the new Selective Service law.

He also disclosed that all enlisted reservists will be recalled to active service by February 1. Most of those affected by the order are former selectees or National Guardsmen recently released because they were over 28 or for other reasons.

In announcing the decision to continue the voluntary recruiting of men aged 18 to 35, Stimson stressed the importance of a youthful army.

Daring of Youth Needed

"The combat arms," he stated, "must contain individuals possessing keenness, enthusiasm, daring vigor and endurance which are predominate characteristics of young men."

Some days ago Stimson announced that after the rush of enlistments started with the outbreak of war eased off, the Army would stop all recruiting and take all men from Selective Service rolls. This step was taken, he said, to assure that industry was not robbed of essential men.

In shelving this policy, the War Secretary said that proper precautions will be taken to assure that such essential men are left with industry. Indications were that most of the men to be accepted as recruits will be youths in their teens.

Stimson said that corps area and departmental commanders will handle the recall of the enlisted reservists, and that their orders to the men will depend upon the housing and medical facilities available.

Fewer Deferments

Deferments may be granted to the reservists who are necessary to the "maintenance of the national health, safety or interest" and to key men essential to national defense or war production. Deferments also will be granted on grounds of dependency, but stricter requirements than formerly have been laid down. Army authorities may seek the views of local Selective Service boards in this regard, it was said.

Reservists will be recalled in the rank held in the reserve and will be first sent to reception centers. Those who have had at least three months active service during the last two years will rejoin their former units where practicable. Others will go to the replacement training centers.

The Day at the Bowls

Oregon State Trims Duke; Rams, Alabama, Georgia Win

NEARLY A QUARTER OF A MILLION paying fans attended yesterday's postseason football games as Oregon State featured a day of upsets with a well-earned 20-16 victory over Duke in the transplanted Rose Bowl classic at Durham. A capacity crowd of 56,000 saw the Blue Devils, favored at 3-1, twice come from behind to tie the score, only to lose on a 70-yard pass play in the third period.

AT NEW ORLEANS' SUGAR BOWL the day's largest turnout, 73,000, saw Fordham spring a mild surprise by capitalizing a first-period blocked kick to edge out Missouri, 2-0, in the mud.

NELSON, ALABAMA HALFBACK, ran wild before 38,000 Cotton Bowl fans to lead the Crimson to a 29-21 conquest of Texas A. and M. "Tater head," as they call Nelson down South, twisted to three touchdowns of 72, 21 and 8 yards.

WILDEST BATTLE OF THE DAY took place in the Orange Bowl, where 35,505 sun-drenched spectators thrilled to the one-man show staged by Georgia's broken-jawed Sinkwich, who led the Bulldogs to a 40-26 triumph over Texas Christian. Sinkwich, an all-American halfback, outgaining the entire Aggie team with 139 yards, paced a whirlwind first-half attack that netted the Bulldogs 35 points.

TULSA WENT INTO THE AIR for a last-minute touchdown to defeat Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl.

Car Sales Ban Will Force Hundreds Here to Change Jobs

The sudden order of the Office of Production Management yesterday banning further sales of new automobiles was a three-sided blow to Washington. Not only will dealers be left with frozen stocks of new cars, but also—

Hundreds of salesmen, mechanics, service men, washers and the like will be thrown immediately out of work.

Hundreds of citizens who have turned over used cars to dealers for credit on new models to be delivered after the first of the year will be without transportation unless they buy other used cars.

"But," as one dealer said last night, "we are at war, so we might as well expect these things."

A survey of Washington retail dealers brought out the fact that they are about equally divided between those who have considerable stocks on hand and those who have not. As it happens, those with unusually large stocks are in general the larger dealers, some of whose automobiles on hand total more than 100, representing an investment of $100,000 or better.

"This order will affect us very badly," said Joseph Cherner, president of Cherner Motor Co. "We will probably have to release 50 or 60 men at once. Since our sales have been curtailed by the recent curb on installment buying, we have accumulated considerable stocks. We probably have $100,000 tied up in new cars, which we can't liquidate.

"But we are at war, so we must expect these things. There is not going to be any profit for anybody in this war."

Many dealers already have released a large part of their sales

8 Lose Lives In 2 Army Plane Crashes

3 Dead Are Laborers On Ground at Langley; Third Bomber Missing

Eight persons were killed and one injured in crashes of two Army planes yesterday and another Army aircraft was missing in the California mountains with nine men aboard.

Five Air Corps officers and men were killed when a twin-motored bombing plane, apparently attempting a forced landing, struck a high tension power line 3 miles from Mitchel Field, Long Island, and crashed in flames. All occupants of the plane were killed instantly.

Laborers Killed on Ground

They were Lieut. Charles W. Van Eeuwen, pilot, of Grant, Mich.; Lieut. Joseph J. Orr, copilot, Oak Park, Ill.; Cadet Earl W. Ray, 24, navigator, Kings Mill, Ohio; Private Edward A. Onufrowicz, 20, Ipswich, Mass., and Private Joseph W. Gallick, 20, radioman, Vandergrift, Pa.

At Langley Field, Va., three laborers engaged in work on the field were killed and another was injured when a plane lost a wheel on landing and swerved from the runway into the midst of some laborers.

Killed were Frank L. Mallicott, 70, of Newport News, Va., and Cossie Clayton, 71, of Hampton Village, Va., employed by the WPA, and Floyd Edwards, of Elizabeth City County, employed by the quartermaster department of the field.

Nine on Missing Crash

Authorities at March Field, Calif., yesterday asked peace officers to aid in searching for an Army bomber, with nine men aboard, last seen Tuesday at 4:55 p. m. flying into a cloud bank over Cajon Pass. The Army said those aboard the bomber were:

Lieut. Frank A. Kobal, Lieut. Joseph B. Maloney, Technical Sergt. Waldo C. Jensen, Sergt. Roger F. Organ, Privates First Class William R. Chinn, Vernon H. Englebrecht and George C. May and Privates Robert N. Enyeart and Jack C. Shirley. Home addresses of the officers and men could not be learned.

Before 1942 was a day old, traffic accidents in the Washington area took three lives and injured 16 persons, one of them critically.

Pretty Dolores Anderson, 18-year-old dancer, was killed almost instantly in a three-car smashup just after midnight at Branch Avenue and Gainsville Street Southeast. Only child of Mrs. Anna Anderson, a widow, of 1123 West Virginia Avenue Northeast, Dolores was pronounced dead at 12:30 a. m. at Casualty Hospital. The driver of the machine she was riding in and five persons in one of the other cars were hurt.

The second District traffic victim for this year was Louis Green, Negro, 48, of 43 F Street Northeast, who died at Casualty Hospital at 9:20 a. m. of injuries suffered when he was struck by a street car at New Jersey Avenue and G Street Northwest, last Friday. Police said the motorman of the street car was Arthur Arnold, 32, of Mitchellville, Md.

Workers Favor War Deductions

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 1.—A majority of American workers would be willing to have employers take 2 cents of every dollar of their wages each payday to buy Defense Bonds or Stamps for the employes, it is disclosed in the most recent Gallup poll.

The number consenting, it was declared, has more than doubled since outbreak of the Japanese war.

Immigration-Naturalization Unit Will Move to Philadelphia

Removal to Philadelphia of the entire Immigration and Naturalization Service—whose 1600 employes are now scattered in eight buildings here—was announced yesterday by Harold D. Smith, director of the Budget Bureau.

The removal is expected to be completed in a few weeks.

The transfer was advised by Attorney General Biddle, the announcement said, to further President Roosevelt's plan to relieve the shortage of office and housing space in Washington.

A proposal to transfer the Alien Registration, Certification, Research and Education divisions of the service, which have a total of about 950 employes, was announced last week. It was decided, however, that the organization must be kept together, so that the files might be centralized.

The service will occupy two large buildings in Philadelphia, which have been obtained by W. E. Reynolds, commissioner of public bulidings.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is one of 12 Federal agencies with employes totaling 10,000 which have been ordered to move out of Washington to make office space for agencies more closely allied to the war effort.

Cars in Stock, January Output To Be Rationed, Output to Stop

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The Government last night banned further sales of all new automobiles, passenger cars and trucks.

The rigid prohibitions, effective immediately, will continue until January 15, when a rationing system will be established that will permit future sales only to Government and "most essential" civilian users, it was announced.

The order, issued by the OPM priorities division, was accompanied by an announcement of the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board that it had approved a program for stopping entirely further production of new passenger cars and light trucks within a few weeks.

February 1 Probable Deadline

From informed sources it was learned that this deadline would probably be February 1, but that in the meantime the industry would be allowed to produce about 200,000 units, almost double the ceiling of 102,424 cars which was set last month as a top quota.

The auto rationing plan is expected to follow the general pattern of the tire rationing program which is to take effect Monday.

Under the new plan's provisions, it will be taken for granted, the ordinary civilian user will be unable to obtain a new car until the end of the war. The plan will probably permit the purchase of a new car only after proof that the applicant's old car is no longer usable and that the applicant himself falls within an "eligible" classification. These categories are expected to be restricted to Federal, State and local governmental agencies, essential public utilities, medical and safety personnel and military departments, foreign and domestic.

The auto rationing plan is expected to follow the general pattern of the tire rationing program which is to take effect Monday.

Although the temporary ban on sales applies to all deliveries, and leases as well as sales, Priorities Director Donald M. Nelson said that an amendment to the order will be issued immediately permitting the completion of contract where delivery was made prior to

Italian Press Praises Defense Of Philippines

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 1 (AP).—Italian newspapers paid tribute tonight to the courage of the American-Philippine defense of Luzon.

Milan's Corriere Della Sera said the "desperate guerrilla warfare" of the Filipinos had staved off the occupation of Manila and added: "It now remains for the Japanese to occupy the military base of Cavite and all the archipelago. It will be a long job."

Turin's La Stampa said the U. S. resistance in the Philippines was interesting from the point of view of military honor. It said "the Japanese fleet is mistress of the Pacific," but added the United States and Britain likely will now intensify air and submarine warfare against Japanese lines of communication.

La Stampa added the attitude of Russia was an unknown quantity.

Reversal of State Department Attitude on Free French Urged

50 Consistent Supporters of Administration Foreign Policy Ask President to Act at Once

A telegram to the President from 50 prominent citizens who have been consistent supporters of his foreign policy, appealing for a reversal of the State Department's attitude for the Free French, was released yesterday by the signers.

The signers include Carl Sandburg, William Agar, Granville Clark, Maxwell Anderson, Frank Kingdon, Frank Porter Graham, Clifton Fadiman, Walter Millis, Stephen Vincent Benet, Rex Stout, Franklin P. Adams, Michael Williams and William Jay Schieffelin.

The telegram said that although the signers had faith in the President's leadership and were reluctant to criticize any act of the Government in time of war, they could not remain silent when the State Department branded our Free French allies as the "so-called Free French," and tried to force Canada to re-establish the Vichy rule against the express will of the local population. This, they claimed, was a violation of both the latter and the spirit of the Atlantic Charter.

Culmination of Policy

They called it "a culmination of the State Department's policy of neglecting our friends and conciliating our enemies which has resulted in failure after failure, from Spain to Pearl Harbor."

The message added:

"We understand, though we deeply regret, considerations which have prompted you to continue dealing with the discredited Vichy regime, but surely appeasement cannot go so far as to guarantee Vichy's rule in places where the local French population wishes to join us in the fight for freedom. It is thanks to the Free French who have lost their possessions and risked their lives that large parts of Africa and vital strategic islands in the Pacific are fighting with us instead of collaborating with Hitler and Japan. It is thanks largely to them that the French fleet cannot be manned for the service of Hitler. If the demand that the islands be returned to Vichy is not withdrawn it will strengthen the Lavals and weaken the Free French not only in France but throughout the world.

"We therefore respectfully appeal to you to reconsider our Government's position as expressed in the above statement. We appeal also for a review of the whole attitude of the State Department which has often seemed unwilling or unable to understand the ideals you have expressed, for which our world is fighting."

The complete list of signers follows:

Price Ceilings Revised on Fats and Oils

By the Associated Press

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, using October 1 market levels as a standard, yesterday revised price ceilings on some 1800 fats and oils, including such items as lard, cottonseed oil, soybean oil and linseed oil.

The effect is to raise the general price level on fats and oils by a minimum of 11 per cent.

Except for butter, "essential" oils, and mineral oils, the new ceiling covers all raw, crude and refined fats and oils and their by-products and derivatives, as well as greases. Specifically excluded are sales of fats and oils—except olive oils—through wholesale and retail channels; sales directly to the baking, restaurant, hotel and other cooking trades; and sales of lard designed for human consumption without further processing.

With respect to sales of actual fats and oils, the October 1 prices are taken as the maximums. Soybean oil and linseed oil, which were selling at levels below their normal price relationship to cottonseed oils on October 1, are allowed a three-fourths of a cent a pound markup over the October 1 price. To make similar provisions for other fats and oils which also were selling below the normal relationship on October 1, the ceiling provides that the maximum price in no case shall be less than 111 per cent of the November 26 price.

Ceiling prices for cottonseed oil futures contracts traded on the New York Produce Exchange and the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, and for lard futures traded on the Chicago Board of Trade are the closing bid prices on October 1.

Sugar Will Go Up

The OPA also said an upward adjustment in ceiling prices of raw sugar would be made shortly but that the amount of the increase had not yet been determined.

This will be done, officials said, in view of the purchase by the RFC of the Cuban sugar crop at a price approximating $3.74 a hundred pounds, compared with the OPA ceiling of $3.50.

Whether the ceiling will be advanced to cover the full differential or only a portion of it is yet to be decided, OPA said.

forces or have transferred these men to used-car selling. The new order will chiefly affect service men and mechanics concerned with preparing and servicing new vehicles.

"We had 35 salesmen," said Philip Lustine, president of Lustine-Nicholson, "and have already let out 29 because of curtailed deliveries of new cars. Now we will have to let the other six go. We have pretty heavy stocks of new cars on hand, also, some of them for delivery tomorrow.

"This order will come pretty close to putting some of us out of business. We'll all have to go down tomorrow and start reorganizing our whole setup."

Many dealers clung to the hope that the rationing system to be worked out in conferences beginning January 5 will contain something of an answer to their difficulties. One of these was William H. Emerson, of Emerson and Orme.

"We must wait for details of the rationing system," he said last night, "before we know where we are. We are troubled by a number of orders for delivery of new cars within the next two weeks which we won't be able to fill. Our sales force already has been reduced to the minimum but I suppose we'll all have to get along without any sales force at all."

Order Was Expected

While the freezing order has been rather generally expected among local dealers, most of them were surprised that it was clamped on so soon and so suddenly. Arnold B. McKee, president of McKee Auto Service, Inc., declared his firm had expected the order "almost daily" and had transferred its salesmen to the used car department. "I'm not surprised at the order," said Charles E. Boteler, manager of Barry-Pate Motor Company, "but I am a little surprised at its suddenness. We'll be stuck with some cars and it's going to be hard on salesmen, but there's nothing we can do but follow Government regulations."

OPM Aides Draw Fire in Flight Over Gas Tank

Conshohocken, Pa., Jan. 1.—A plane bearing several representatives of the Office of Production Management drew fire from a machine gun crew guarding a gas storage tank here last Sunday, it was learned today. The shots, intended only as a warning, were not fired directly at the plane.

Guy Miller, president of Wings Field, from which the plane had taken off a few minutes before passing over the storage tank, was at the controls during the incident. Harry Dulin, senior aeronautical inspector of the Civil Aeronautics Board at Wings Field, said the lieutenant in charge of the machine gun crew had stated that the shots were ordered fired after the plane had flown three times over the tank.

MacArthur's Two Armies Fight Way to a Junction Near Manila

that the enemy forces driving from the north and from the southeast had joined forces in the east and that the American line was now an arc around Manila Bay. There was no official explanation here, however.

Gen. MacArthur also reported to the War Department that 175 enemy aliens had been rounded up and interned near Manila and that some 3000 Japanese had been placed under surveillance.

The latter action was taken at the request of the Japanese consul general at Manila to protect them from possible mob violence. "Every consideration" was shown to the Japanese, "every reasonable provision" made for their comfort, and every requirement of international law "carefully observed" in their treatment, the War Department said. Police protection was extended to Japanese property.

The Department added that it hoped that "this generous treatment of Japanese subjects by American and Philippine authorities" will result in "reciprocal treatment by Japan of American and Philippine civilians residing in regions now occupied by Japanese troops."

The morning War Department communique told of "severe fighting" north of Manila, where American forces have been "consolidated" into strong positions. "Heavy losses" are being inflicted on the enemy, it was said.

It also disclosed that Japanese submarines had shelled three islands in the Hawaiian group. Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, Hawaiian commander, reported the attacks, saying there were "no casualties and practically no damage."

A few shells were fired at the Port of Hilo on the Island of Hawaii, slightly damaging a wharf. The Harbor of Kahului on the Island of Maui, attacked several days ago, was again fired on, but the five shells caused no damage. A sugarcane field on the shore near Lihue on the Island of Kauai was set afire in the third attack.

Secretary Stimson was asked at his press conference if Gen. MacArthur's promise of retaliation for the bombing of Manila means that Japanese cities will be bombed.

"We have a long distance to go before that will be practical," he answered. "It is being studied. I won't say how long off it is but we have other things to consider now."

The War Secretary was asked to comment on the criticism of the Russian newspaper Pravda, official organ of the Communist party, of the decision to declare Manila an "open" undefended city. He said he didn't want to get into a controversy but noted that the Nation has its "most skillful fighter" in charge in the Philippines.

"We're fighting a war that has been recognized for 20 years would be very much an up-hill fight," he added. "Nothing has occurred to make us believe that MacArthur is fighting other than masterly with the forces at hand."

The texts of the day's communique's follow:

Army Communique No. 39

1. Philippine Theater—Severe fighting continues north of Manila where American and Philippine forces have been consolidated and are continuing to resist the Japanese advance. Strong positions are now occupied by the defending troops who are inflicting heavy losses on the invaders. A major battle is now in progress.

2. Hawaii—The commanding general, Hawaiian Department, reports that three different islands of the Hawaiian group were shelled by enemy submarines. A few shells were fired at the port of Hilo on the Island of Hawaii, causing slight damage to the wharf. The harbor of Kahului, on the Island of Maui, which had been shelled by a submarine some time ago, was again attacked. Five rounds were fired, with no damage. An attack was likewise made on the shore near Lihue, on the Island of Kauai, when a few rounds were fired, setting fire to a sugarcane field. There were no casualties and practically no damage caused by these attacks.

3. There is nothing to report from other areas.

Army Communique No. 40

1. Philippine Theater—Despite heavy enemy attacks attempting to break up our troop movements, the maneuver designed to regroup the two forces of American and Philippine troops opposing the Japanese in the north and the southeast has been successfully accomplished. All available defending forces have now been united. In addition to the land positions, the harbor defenses and island fortifications are strongly held by our troops.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commanding the United States Army forces in the Far East, has submitted a report to the War Department dealing with the internment and surveillance of enemy aliens in the Manila area. Although our troops were fully occupied in combat operations, every requirement of international law was carefully observed in dealing with Japanese subjects residing in the Philippines. Approximately 175 Japanese civilians were placed under close guard in an internment camp near Manila. About 3000 other subjects of Japan in other localities were placed under surveillance to protect them against possible mob violence. This action was taken at the urgent request of the Japanese consul general at Manila. Every consideration was shown both to those interned and to those under surveillance and every reasonable provision was made for their comfort. Police protection was extended to Japanese property. The hope was expressed that this generous treatment of Japanese subjects by American and Philippine authorities would result in reciprocal treatment by Japan of American and Philippine civilians in regions now occupied by Japanese troops.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

British Hammer Libyan Stronghold

Strive to Smash Axis Salient Far Back of Front Line

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Jan. 1.—Rear-guard units of the British Eighth Army, concerned lest a second tobruk—this time of Axis origin—develop on the flank of the desert advance, hit hard tonight at the well-fortified Italian-Nazi forces isolated in the Bardia-Halfaya region of eastern Libya.

South African troops, supported by tanks and mobile artillery, battered their way into the southern sector of the Bardia perimeter, taking several fortified positions and 600 prisoners.

The attack, hundreds of miles behind the front lines, foreshadowed a determined effort to keep the Axis Bardia garrison from holding out and being supplied and reinforced by sea, as happened to the British at Tobruk, farther west.

Temporarily there was lessened activity around Agedabia, 90 miles south of Bengasi, but the R. A. F. kept on with its attacks on Axis motorized and tank units in the Agedabia area and on the road to Tripoli along which any aid must reach Gen. Rommel's hard-pressed army.

Heavy raids on Misurata and Homs, the latter 800 miles from the Egyptian border, were reported by the R. A. F.

Rommel Still Strong

It is now conceded that Rommel still has considerable infantry and tank strength.

(An Italian communique reporting a "new and favorable development" on the Libyan front, claimed the Axis had destroyed 48 more tanks and numerous motor cars south of Agedabia, where previously Rome said Axis forces had destroyed 74 British armored units.

(The Italians said also that two British warships took part in the attack upon the coastal town of Bardia but withdrew, one of them aflame, under the "accurate fire" of artillery from the town.)

R. A. F. Pounds Axis Bases in Greece

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—Britain's powerful bombing forces in the Middle East were carrying the war back to the Axis tonight with sustained assaults on the Nazi bases in Greece where there is increasing evidence of preparations for an air and sea assault on Britain's eastern Mediterranean fleet.

For the second time in three days the R. A. F. reported striking hard at important bases the Germans and Italians have developed on Greece and Crete.

A Middle East communique said that in the latest attacks, Tuesday night, British planes bombed munitions factories and a submarine base at the Greek port of Salamis, chemical works and oil installations at the port of Piraeus, six miles from Athens, and an airdrome at Candia, capital of Crete.

Astride Vital Lane

German planes based at the Candia field would be virtually astride Britain's vital lane of sea communications and supply from Egypt to the Libyan battlefield. Alexandria is little more than 400 miles southeast of Candia by air and the hump of eastern Libya is less than 250 miles southwest of the airdrome.

The R. A. F. operations were interpreted in London as substantiating recent reports from Turkey of new concentrations of the German air force in Greece and on island bases at Mytilene, Chios and Samos, within 15 minutes flight from Turkey and the Dardanelles.

The communique was the first official disclosure that the Axis has based submarines in Greek ports within close striking range of British fleet lanes.

Observers suggested that the Axis strategy calls for an attempted stand in Tripolitania with such reinforcements as have got through the British blockade. Such a stand, they said, would be aided if the Axis could cut Gen. Auchinleck's lengthened sea lines of supply by air and submarine attacks.

Because of the limitations of the long land route through the desert, the maintenance of sea routes from Alexandria to Bengasi or beyond would be vital to a further British thrust to the West.

The increased force of British attacks on isolated Axis troops at Bardia was seen as a sign that the British do not intend to leave a foothold there where more Axis troops might be landed, endangering the British position from the rear.

Tokyo Claims Drive Nears Cavite Base

Tokyo, Friday, Jan. 2. (Official broadcast recorded by (AP)).—The Japanese claimed today that they had gained complete control of the railway from Batangas northward to Manila and were threatening the big U. S. Naval Base at Cavite, on Manila Bay.

This report, carried by the newspaper Yomuiri and broadcast by the Domei Agency, followed assertions that Japanese forces were so close to Manila that artillery fire from the front could be heard in the Philippine capital and that in the Malayan campaign the invasion had carried half the length of the peninsula towards Singapore.

Imperial headquarters reported further victories at sea, claiming Army bombers had sunk a submarine and two steamers of 3000 tons each, and damaged a destroyer—all in the Strait of Malacca off the west coast of Malaya.

Although he had predicted the war as a whole would be long and hard, Premier Hideki Tojo said in a New Year broadcast that "it is only a question of time until Manila and Singapore meet a fate similar to that of Hongkong."

Topping Japanese claims of land gains, an official announcement asserted "forces advancing along the east coast of Malaya captured the strategic city and port of Kuantan, 190 miles north of Singapore, at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning."

(The British had said fighting was continuing at Kuantan.)

Japanese forces also were attacking down the west coast of the peninsula past the tin center of Ipoh toward Klang and nearby Port Swettenham where Japanese bombers already were in action.

The Japanese said Singapore was under air attack Monday and Tuesday nights. (Dispatches from Singapore said Japanese bombers made it three attacks in a row with two more raids early this morning.)

There was less news of operations in the Philippines. An Army war bulletin, however, said bombers hit hard at the island fortress of Corregidor at the entrance to Manila Bay last Monday, raided nearby Mariveles Tuesday and struck repeatedly yesterday at an American transport column of about 100 trucks elsewhere on Luzon Island.

Battle Rages For Chinese Supply Center

By the United Press

Chungking, Jan. 1.—The battle in north Hunan province for Changsha, important communications and supply center, entered a critical stage on New Year's Eve when 50,000 Japanese south of the Milo River engaged the Chinese defenders "in the immediate vicinity" of the city, the Central News Agency said today.

(The Berlin radio said Japanese forces occupied Changsha at noon Thursday after routing five Chinese divisions. The city, capital of Hunan province, had a prewar population of about 600,000 and is center of a rich rice farming area. It formerly was the seat of a number of large American mission institutions.)

There was no indication, however, of how close the Japanese were to Changsha, which they failed to reach in a similar battle in 1940 and held only a few days when they entered it last summer.

Severe fighting was in progress, the news agency claimed, at many points north of the city.

Chinese troops had outflanked the Japanese at several places in the Hsin-Kiang (River) region, it claimed, and taken back more than 20 villages.

There was no news from the north Kiangsi front, where the Japanese were driving westward into Hunan Province, but Japanese troops in Inner Mongolia were reported attacking in north Ordos, along the south shore of the Yellow River. They were said to be operating from their base at Paotou, terminus of the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway, with 300 armored cars under airplane protection.

Afraid to Jump, Boy Is Burned to Death

Philadelphia, Jan. 1 (AP).—Twelve-year-old John Dey, jr., was burned to death at a second-story window of his blazing home today because he was afraid to jump into a blanket held by four pleading men on the ground.

The boy, his mother, father and a 2-year-old brother were trapped as they slept. The mother and the father jumped to safety, the mother with the baby in her arm. All were injured seriously.

Washington conferences were making such gratifying progress that he looked for great decisions in the future.

To Be Told in Deeds

These decisions, he emphasized, would be revealed in action rather than formal announcements.

The prime minister joined members of his staff, newspapermen and train crew members in a salute to 1942 as his train moved through the wintry Vermont countryside.

He came into the dining car shortly before midnight Wednesday, raised a glass and proposed this toast:

"Here's to a year of toil—a year of struggle and peril.

"And a long step forward to victory."

The prime minister, cheering reporters and British and Canadian officers then joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne." As Churchill left the party broke into "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The British leader turned to the group and said:

"God bless you. May we all come through the New Year safe and with honor."

The prime minister arrived in Washington at 9 a. m.

He shook hands with his colored porter before stepping briskly down a ramp at Union Station to be greeted by Lord Halifax and President Roosevelt's naval and military aides.

To the astonished engineer of his train Churchill offered his hand and said, "Thank you, very much. A very enjoyable ride."

Mathematician Dies

Spartanburg, S. C., Jan. 1 (AP).—Dr. John G. Clinkscales, 86, professor of mathematics at Wofford College for 50 years, died at his home here today.

Prime Minister Honors Washington

Day, which the President had proclaimed a day of prayer and national consecration, there had been no public announcement of the church they would attend.

As heavy police and troop details took up their posts around the mellow red-brick church, crowds gathered and waited in the rain to cheer the President and prime minister before and after the services.

Accompanying the leaders were Mrs. Roosevelt, the British Ambassador and Lady Halifax, the President's military aides, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, his naval aide, Capt. John Beardall and Churchill's aide, Commander C. R. Thompson.

Mr. Roosevelt and the British premier joined the congregation in singing "America" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The services included George Washington's "Prayer for the United States" and the traditional prayer "In the Time of War" from the English prayer book:

"O Almighty Lord, who are a most strong tower to all them that put their trust in thee: Be now and evermore our defense; grant us victory, if it be thy will . . ."

The services over, the Presidential party drove down the Potomac to Mount Vernon and through the grounds of the First President's estate to the simple brick structure sheltering his tomb.

With the President standing nearby, the British Prime Minister laid a wreath of chrysanthemums and iris on the tomb of the leader of the American colonies' struggle for independence. There was no word spoken during the brief ceremony, witnessed only by the Presidential party and a few members of the Mount Vernon staff.

The Prime Minister paused for a few minutes to look over the house itself before the party left the Mount Vernon grounds. He stopped also for a close view of the Lincoln Memorial as the official limousines neared the White House.

The Rev. Mr. Welles, in his sermon before the President and Prime Minister, said that none of the nations now at war has a blameless record and described America's "greatest sin" as "international irresponsibility."

ful determination despite two early morning air raids and a third tonight by several formations of bombers. Preliminary reports said the damage from the morning's raids was light, mainly to civilian property.

Military personnel and military objectives again were unhurt.

32 Enemy Planes Destroyed

The Ministry of Information announced that since the outbreak of war British fighters and antiaircraft guns of the Far Eastern Command had definitely destroyed 32 Japanese planes, probably destroyed eight more, and damaged 16.

Up to the time of this recaptiulation December 27 had been Britain's best day in the air. On that day, 14 enemy fighters and bombers were destroyed.

These totals did not include Japanese planes smashed over Burma.

The day brought authoritative word that the fall of Kuching in Sarawak, the British-protected area of Borneo, had not been a complete loss. The majority of all British troops were safely withdrawn, it was added, and were in touch with Dutch East Indies forces in West Borneo.

Press observers returning from a tour of the Malayan front reported that the Japanese had been intensifying their air action and bringing up heavier artillery in their efforts to beat southward between Malay's mountain range backbone and the west coast.

British officers told these observers that the enemy's artillery fire power not only had been considerably increased but "the stuff is coming over heavier than before."

Everything seen and heard supported the reputation of the defenders for stamina, willingness, ability to "take it" and readiness to hit back powerfully at every opportunity.

As to the struggle at sea, Maj. Gen. Cheng Kaimin, a Chinese GHO representative here for staff talks with the British command, assured correspondents that the Japanese navy could not remain in home waters indefinitely.

"It will have to come out and fight somewhere," he added, "probably in the East China Sea."

Cheng said that in Malaya the Japanese were fighting in difficult and unfamiliar terrain and that while they had some initial success, the British were holding their own.

To the Chinese of Malaya he urged a realization that the defense of Singapore was as vital as the defense of any key Chinese city.

Dutch Plane Rescues Crew of U. S. Ship

By the Associated Press

Batavia, Jan. 1.—Forty-eight members of the crew of an American freighter attacked and set aflame by Japanese planes in East Indies waters have been rescued by a Dutch naval flying boat, the Netherlands East Indies command announced today, and only a single crewman remains missing.

The location of the assault was not given save that it was in the northern part of the archipelago.

The only other Japanese action reported in today's N. E. I. communique was an ineffective air raid at one point in the outer provinces.

The year's end, said the N. E. I. new agency, Aneta, was celebrated in confident mood by the Dutch armed forces.

For its successes thus far the air force was saluted by Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, the Dutch commander in chief.

Broadcasting his praise and encouragement to the navy and merchant marine, Vice Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich declared challengingly:

"We don't know what Hitler will do, but this we know for certain—we will continue our fight with an inflexible faith in victory."

He pointed out that Russian gains in Europe were of aid to the Allies in the Far Eastern theater; that Chinese action beyond Chinese soil and Dutch action in the Indies all were part of a master struggle against the enemy.

Lieut. Gen. Heinter Poorten, commander of the Netherlands Indies Army told his troops in a broadcast that the Untied States and Britain are preparing something "very unpleasant for the Japanese."

While warning his men to be on guard against a Japanese invasion at any moment, he said:

"I am sorry I cannot tell you about the plans which are being worked out and about the conversations which regularly take place, but we and our Allies are working hard—very hard.

"The British and Americans are preparing something which will be very unpleasant for the Japanese."

Japs Claim 3000 U.S.-British Dead

Tokyo (Friday), Jan. 2 (U.P.).—(Radiocast recorded by United Press in San Francisco)—An official announcement today said Japanese have counted on the battlefields of Luzon and Malaya more than 3000 British and American soldier dead.

Over 9000 British and American troops have been taken prisoner, the announcement added. Names of soldiers captured or killed will be announced shortly.

OPM Suggests Cut In Colors of Socks

The OPM suggested to hosiery manufacturers yesterday that they cut down the number of colors in socks and stockings because of shortages or threatened shortages in dyes.

R. R. Guthrie, chief of the OPM textile branch, said the wholesale and retail distributors of hosiery throughout the country also had been asked to cooperate by eliminating requests for special shades.

Guthrie noted that about 75 per cent of all hosiery comes in fewer than a half dozen colors.

2 Nazi Planes Raid English Towns

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—One person was killed and several others were injured as two German planes opened the new year with machinegun attacks on towns along the southeast English coast.

At one town the Nazi raiders spattered bullets on a train and a railway station. A woman and a guard were wounded.

The raiders swept in low from the sea, blazing away fiercely. R. A. F. fighters went up and chased them away.

Adm. Ingersoll Takes Atlantic Fleet Command

Rear Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll yesterday hoisted his flag on the cruiser Augusta and assumed duty as commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet. He was promoted simultaneously to vice admiral.

Ingersoll, who had been assistant chief of naval operations, succeeded Admiral Ernest J. King, new commander in chief of the United States Fleet. Rear Admiral Frederick J. Horne, who has been a member of the Navy General Board, was named yesterday to the post Ingersoll vacated.

At the same time, Rear Admiral Ralston S. Holmes, also on the General Board, was appointed commandant of the Eleventh Naval District and the San Diego Naval Base. He relieves Rear Admiral Charles A. Blakely, who is ill.

The post of Atlantic Fleet commander has carried the rank of full admiral, but the reorganization of the high command, making the United States Fleet command a separate post, prevents Ingersoll from receiving such rank.

But four admirals are allowed by law, and the rank is now held by the chief of naval operations, Admiral Harold R. Stark; Admiral King, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific Fleet commander, and Admiral Thomas C. Hart, Asiatic Fleet commander. The Navy is expected to ask amendment of this law to permit Ingersoll to receive the rank his post normally carries.

Admiral Ingersoll is a native of Washington and formerly was chief of naval war plans. He has commanded a cruiser division of the Fleet.

Admiral Horne, a former naval attache to Japan, has commanded the Fleet aircraft squadrons and the Fleet base force. Born in New York, he now calls Washington his home.

Admiral Holmes is a former commander of Presidential yacht Mayflower and was naval aide to President Hoover. He was director of naval intelligence from 1937 to 1939.

Japs May Shell Coast, Nimitz Says

operating off the West Coast of the United States may attempt to lay their shells into cities before they leave."

The ocean, he added, is "too big to prevent it entirely."

A reporter asked the significance of submarine shelling of three points in the Hawaiian Islands the night of December 30. Admiral Nimitz replied that "Japanese captains desire to make the utmost use of their weapons when there are no targets for their torpedoes."

The setting for the Admiral's first press conference after taking over his new command was colorful and unique in many respects. It was said to be one of the few times in the history of the fleet that a commander's four-star flag had flown from a submarine.

Before inviting reporters' questions on the sun-drenched deck of the underseas monster, Nimitz pinned the Navy cross on two pilots of a flying boat that rescued nine Army fliers from the sea only last night. It was his first official act as commander in chief.

The tall, affable Texan showed an air of confidence but gave no sign of over-confidence. Speaking slowly and deliberately, and with quiet dignity, he volunteered this assertion at the end of the conference:

"You asked several questions about the future, many of them no doubt pressing. I'm a Kamaaina (old-timer in Hawaii) myself and I'd like to reply in a Hawaiian word. This word is 'Hoomanawanui,' meaning 'Let time take care of the situation.'"

Hawaii-wise reporters also offered these alternative translations: "Time will tell." "Be patient."

Asked about the possibilities of an attack on Hawaii if Japan succeeds in taking Manila and the Philippines, Nimitz took a long pause and replied:

"An attack on these islands is always possible. We will do our utmost to keep them from falling into enemy hands. The Pacific Fleet is doing and will do the utmost possible."

U. S. Prohibits Sale of New Cars

last night. Presumably contracts for sales where deliveries have not yet been made are outlawed and may not be consummated.

Henderson Administrator

The ban applies, as will the rationing system, to all new motor vehicles, which are defined as 1942 models, or any other model which has been used less than 100 miles.

The rationing program, it was announced, will be administered by Leon Henderson, head of the Office of Price Administration. The OPA also administers the tire program.

The prohibition against sales, it was estimated, will freeze a present stockpile of about 450,000 new passenger cars now in dealers' hands. The rationing plan will thus apply to this reserve plus the anticipated 200,000 additional vehicles to be produced in the next 30 days.

Observers believe that with production of all passenger cars and light trucks stopped within a few weeks, the auto industry will be restricted during the duration of the war to the production of heavy trucks, bus replacements and vehicles for direct military use.

Meantime it was expected "essential" demand for passenger cars would be met from the existing stock pile of completed products. When this is exhausted it is considered possible that the Government will requisition cars of private individuals, as has been universally the case in other warring nations.

Nelson's order provided that a "passenger automobile" under terms of the ban meant a 1942 model passenger car or any automobile which has been driven less than 1000 miles.

Ottawa, Jan. 1 (AP).—Production of automobiles and light trucks in Canada is being drastically curtailed with a view to virtual discontinuance of manufactue March 31.

Army Plans Separate 'Air Force' for Field Artillery

The Army yesterday directed its Field Artillery arm to set up a separate "air force" for gun "spotting" and observation work.

Selected artillery officers and men, who have private pilot licenses if possible, will be sent to Fort Sill, Okla., for training as "pilot-mechanics" in operating "flivver" or "cub" airplanes, it was said. Airplane mechanics will be trained at aircraft factories to maintain such craft in the field.

Secretary Stimson, in announcing the step yesterday, explained that it looked forward to the day when "the front may stabilize" and fixed warfare on the World War I order may return.

So far during the present war there has been little reason for control of fire by planes. Artillery has moved with tanks and infantry so fast that point blank shooting at visible targets has been the rule.

Yesterday's decision climaxes a long-standing difference of opinion between the Field Artillery and Air Force officers over the move. The latter insist that they have charge of whatever artillery observation flying is necessary, contending at the same time that modern warfare moves too fast for artillery barrage of the old type and that dive bombing has largely supplanted artillery.

Moreover, the airmen insist that the slow "flivver" planes are too vulnerable to infantry fire.

The artillerymen believe that the day of fixed warfare is by no means over and that the big guns may again decide battles. The little "hedge-hopping" planes, they say, while vulnerable, can give them the distant observation required by the latest long-range big guns. Standard, fast airplanes must be based on prepared fields too far from the front to do them much good, artillery officers contend.

Lieut. Col. W. W. Ford will be in charge of the training program.

Cold Wave Grips Northern Italy

Berlin, Jan. 1 (Official Broadcast Recorded by AP).—Northern and Central Italy is experiencing a severe cold spell and the Arno River at Florence is completely frozen over, said a D. N. B. dispatch from Milan today.

Southern Italy has had heavy snowfalls as far south as Taranto (at the heel of the Italian Boot).

Commandos Again Raid Lofoten Isles

Many Nazis and Quislings Rounded Up Without a Single Casualty to British Troops

By the Associated Press

London, Jan. 1.—A British flotilla and a raiding force of commandos, Free Norwegians and Poles came back unscratched today from a brief and almost unopposed occupation of the German-occupied Lofoten Islands off Norway's coast.

It was the second foray into the islands by the tough, black-clad commando corps which has struck at German strongholds from the North Cape to the shores of northern Africa, and it appeared to have overlapped or followed immediately upon last week's commando stabs at the Norwegian island of Vaagso, hundreds of miles south of the Lofotens.

This time, the admiralty disclosed, there were no casualties at all among the British force and invading warships even were able to use one harbor as a fueling base.

Operations on the island were conducted—practically at leisure—over a period of several days.

Many Planes Downed

A German patrol vessel was sunk, one of many enemy planes which constantly scouted the raiding force was shot down and German sea communications in this important area were "completely disorganized," the communique said.

The Lofotens lie athwart Germany's sea route to the Arctic fighting front in Russia.

Under Lieut. Col. S. S. Harrison, the Norwegian troops and commandos landed at four different places in the islands, captured a number of German prisoners and several Norwegian Quislings.

The naval force itself, described as light, was manned by British, Norwegian and Polish sailors under Rear Admiral L. H. K. Hamilton.

The official account of the operations mentioned no resistance whatsoever, bearing out stories of participants in the Vaagso raid that the morale of German soldiers in Norway is so low that they flee without trying to stop these attacks.

Norwegians Brought Back

Conversely, one Norwegian sailor, just back from Vaagso, said today: "All along the coast, Norwegians are praying for British landings."

As they have done before, the British today brought back numerous Norwegians and their families who wanted to get out of their conquered homeland.

The first raid on the Lofotens was carried out last March by a naval landing force, with commandos, which sunk eleven German ships, seized many prisoners and destroyed many resources available to the Nazis.

Then, last Saturday, another force swept down on German garrisons on Vaagso, 100 miles north of Bergen, destroying eight enemy merchant ships totaling 15,650 tons, taking more prisoners and destroying oil tanks, ammunition and a Quisling-owned industrial plant.

Commandos Believed To Be American Force

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—Norwegians of the Lofoten Island village of Sorvargen thought the British Commandos who landed there the day after Christmas were Americans who had "come to deliver them from captivity," George Holman, British correspondent who accompanied the raiders, wrote tonight.

Holman also told how the Commandos slipped up on a lighthouse and other buildings, expecting a volley from the German garrison.

Nothing happened and, finally, the Commando captain, revolver in hand, kicked open a door and found himself face to face with eight Germans.

"Their hands shot up above their heads in surrender," Holman wrote. "Some were still in their underpants."

Supplies Are Plentiful

The Germans were plentifully supplied, Holman said, with French tinned vegetables and French wine. They also had enough German sausages to keep them going during a siege, he added.

"In the village British and Norwegian soldiers were distributing gifts of coffee, newspapers, cigarettes, tobacco and chocolates," Holman said.

"Then a big bang marked demolition of the radio mast.

"Away to the north another raiding party destroyed the telephone cable to the mainland.

"Our prisoners made up a strange collection ranging from 17 or 18 to over 40. One of them told me: 'Russia has made a mess of the war for Germany.' Their morale was poor but they all wear decorations: strange decorations such as a medallion depicting a mine. This was obtained for going to sea outside a mined area.

"Another had a special decoration for 'sinking' one of the destroyers which formed part of our escort on this occasion."

D. C. Driver Fined $105

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 1.—Harrison Stephens, a motorist of Washington, D. C., was fined a total of $105 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court here yesterday, following admission to the charges of drunken and reckless driving. He told the court he had been "blitzed" by a couple bottles of beer, consumed contrary to his custom.

Japanese Arms Expansion Declared Great

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—Japan's expansion of industry and armament "has gone much farther than has been generally realized," says the National City Bank, and it remains to be seen whether growth has been so rapid and inflation so severe "that points of serious weakness may develop."

In a study of the Japanese economy in its monthly bank letter for January, National City paraphrased Prime Minister Churchill's recent comment on Germany, saying with respect to possible internal collapse in Japan "we cannot bank on that, but must plan on an external knockout."

Industrial bottlenecks in Japan "began to assume important proportions by 1939," the bank said, and "there are evidences that the peak of total production may have been reached" in that year.

The bank notes that despite rapid expansion, the industrial power of the entire Japanese area remained small compared with the United States. "For example, the steel capacity was expected to reach about 11 million tons by 1942, but a substantial part will probably remain idle owing to lack of materials." (Steel capacity in the United States is estimated currently at 88 million tons.)

"Japan's industrial capacity," says the bank, "of course, is far less than we can bring to bear, if and when we can get the same degree of concentration upon war materials and supplies."

23 Czechs Shot After Vienna Shell Plant Blast

Copyright by New York Times

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 1.—At least 23 have been shot and "many others" have been put before summary court-martial in Vienna in connection with the reported explosion which completely wrecked the Fiat works at Wienerneustadt, according to a report reaching here this evening. The immediate cause of the explosion is not yet completely clear, but it is understood to have occurred in a section of those works where shells were being manufactured.

The 23 executed workers were of Czech origin, it is reported, and in this connection it will be recalled that two months ago another 20 Czech workers in Vienna were executed for derailing trains in Austria as well as destroying factory machinery and goods in process of manufacture.

Wienerneustadt is the industrial suburb of Vienna, into the region of which a great part of the evacuated Ruhr factories have been transplanted for protection against British air raids. The workers in that district are in a large part composed of Czechs, owing to the shortage of Austrian and German skilled labor, most of which is at the front. Owing to the "instability" of the Czech soldiers' sympathies of the German cause the German authorities considered it best to put them to work in factories "where they could be better watched."

'Destroyed to Pieces'

San Francisco, Jan. 1 (AP).—A Tokyo broadcast reiterated tonight that the imperial Japanese navy has "destroyed to pieces the United States Pacific fleet" and paralyzed the British Far Eastern squadron.

The broadcast was recorded by the C. B. S. short-wave radio listening post in San Francisco.

No Fisheries Pact Yet

Kuibyshev, Russia, Jan. 1 (AP).—The Japanese-Russian fisheries agreement which requires annual renewal, came to its end last midnight without any public announcement as to whether it has been extended.

The 1941 renewal, however, was not signed until the middle of January and plent of time remains for a 1942 agreement to be reached.

Wavell Counsels Courage

New Delhi, India, Jan. 1 (AP).—Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief of Britain's forces in India, told his countrymen in a New Year broadcast to "look forward to 1942 with courage and confidence."

In 1941, he asserted, "we weathered a fierce tempest. We are now stronger materially and morally. We stood almost alone and now we have great allies."

Jap Sub Halts Ship

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 1 (AP).—Unconfirmed reports were received today from Tocopilla, northern Chile, that a Japanese submarine had halted the Chilean steamer Copiapo off the coast of Peru and made her establish her identity.

Also from Tocopilla came reports—all without authoritative verification—that several Japanese submarines were operating in the South Pacific.

A Gift of Taxes

Vichy, Jan. 1 (U.P.).—The Vichy government's New Year gift to France was announcement of increased taxes on tobacco, higher postal and telephone rates, and increased amusement taxes.

The 1942 budget was published at the same time, starting out with a paper deficit of 40 per cent.

Government Fled? No, Says Official Here

With a picture of Gen. Douglas MacArthur at his right elbow and an American Flag dominating his reception room, Joaquin N. Elizalde, Philippine Commissioner to the United States, yesterday spiked a Tokyo report that the Philippine Government had fled to Australia.

He blasted it with his eyes, short-clipped words and expressive shrugs of his shoulders, calling it "Japanese propaganda" and an effort to disspirit the Philippine population and soldiers.

"The removal of the government positively is not contemplated," he stated at his offices, 1617 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

"To Resist to the Last"

"The Philippine people are prepared to resist to the last."

"We have no recriminations of any kind to make. We are receiving the situation as it is today and will fight to the last until victory comes our way."

The commissioner declined otherwise to discuss the situation surrounding his embattled homeland. But the commissioner could not overlook the islands' strategic importance.

"If the Japanese control the Philippines the China Sea would become a Japanese lake. It is the key to the China Sea. They could use it aggressively, or to guard their line of retreat," he said.

Reported to Be in Australia

An official Tokyo broadcast, heard in San Francisco, had put forth the claim that the Philippine Government had gone to Port Darwin, Australia, because of the advance of the Japanese on Manila.

"They (the Philippine defenders) have shown how they can fight; there is not the slightest truth to the report," Elizalde insisted.

The commissioner's personal holdings in the islands have been wiped out. He shrugs, saying "money doesn't matter any more." Of a successful outcome for his people he entertains no doubt.

the capital.

In smashing toward Rzhev the Russians are approaching a town of 30,000 or 40,000 population which straddles the Volga at a point where it is 350 feet wide and navigable for steamers. It is a junction of four branch railway lines and is important in telegraphic and radio communication.

The Russian advance continued to be front-wide, and some of the day's most important gains apparently were made in the vital industrial Donets Basin. In this region from December 7 to 25 the Russians reported capturing much booty, including 71 armored vehicles, 471 guns and 4000 trucks.

London had no details on this fighting, but it seemed a logical link between the Red drives southwest of Moscow and in the Crimea.

Also developing was the far northern sector where the Finns reported increasing Russian artillery fire, grenade attacks and infantry reconnoitering.

British observers were convinced that these manifestations, added to the grand offensive on the Moscow front and the daring assault in the Crimea, meant the Russians have plenty of trained troops ready to fight through the winter.

The observers were especially enthusiastic about the Crimean drive and its potentialities—ousting of the Germans from the Crimea and the Sea of Azov, Russian control of the Black Sea and a tight lock on the oil of the Caucasus.

Correspondents noted that British military commentators, so long reserved in their treatment of Soviet military announcements, now were obviously impressed by the Red army's advances, particularly in the Crimea.

Today the Germans themselves limited the account of their countermeasures in the Crimea to a narrative of air force action against Soviet landing parties and their supply lines to the Caucasus.

Enemy Aliens Ordered to Give Up Firearms

By C. Brooks Peters

Copyright by New York Times

All German, Italian and Japanese nationals throughout the United States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are required to surrender all firearms of any description in their possession to local police authorities before 11 p. m. Monday, January 5, 1942, under new regulations restricting the conduct of enemy aliens announced yesterday by Attorney General Francis Biddle.

The supplementary regulations extend recently announced prohibitions against possession of specified equipment by German, Italian and Japanese nationals. In addition, they further govern the travel of such nationals.

The new travel regulations are effective immediately. They supplement regulations governing the movements of enemy aliens announced by the Attorney General December 19. At that time, Biddle announced that until further notice German, Italian and Japanese nationals would be permitted to:

"First, travel within the boundaries or limits of the municipality, town, village, locality or community in which they reside and to go from place to place and in such a manner as would enable them to engage in the activities usual in their communities:

"Secondly, commute from their homes to their places of business, and

"Thirdly, travel between their homes and places of religious worship, schools, colleges, or institutions of learning at which they are in regular attendance, or to any Federal, State, or local Government agency which they are required to transact business."

Under the terms of the supplementary regulations issued today "all other travel" by such aliens is prohibited unless the enemy alien files with the United States attorney for his district, one week in advance of the projected trip, a statement containing the following specific information:

First, his name second, his nationality; third, his alien registration number; fourth, the purpose of his trip; fifth, his destination; sixth, the date of departure and of return; seventh, the route to be followed, and eighth, the carrier (railroad, bus, automobile, etc.).

However, such travel by enemy aliens may be prohibited if in the opinion of the United States attorney such travel is "potentially dangerous to public safety."

In announcing these regulations the Attorney General again cautioned that travel by plane is specifically prohibited to enemy aliens, and that before changing residence enemy aliens should notify first the United States attorney and second the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Catholic Leader Tells Of Nazi Torture

By the United Press

New York, Jan. 1.—Unspeakable torture in four of the most cruel prisons of Nazi Germany was described today by Ernst Winkler, former leader of the outlawed Catholic Youth Movement in Germany, who related some of his experiences as a prisoner of the Gestapo.

Winkler's story, vouched for by Sir Samuel Hoare, was told after he escaped to the United States and is published in the American magazine.

One of 200 German officers who resigned their commissions when the Nazis came to power because they refused to renounce Christianity for Nazism, Winkler, as he has named himself to protect his family in Germany, said he was arrested when he refused to turn over membership lists of the Catholic Youth Movement to the Nazis.

He was imprisoned and tortured for four years and three months without formal charge or trial. Among his experiences he told of being whipped repeatedly until he lost consciousness, having his teeth knocked out, being knifed four times in the stomach, and having crosses cut in his back with knives while he lay strapped to a table.

The Gestapo, he said, referred to him as a "black pig," their common designation for Catholicts.

Winkler related that at Camp Dachau, in Bavaria, he and three Franciscan monks were forced to clean an execution chamber.

Released at last, Winkler said, he immediately associated himself with a Catholic group operating a secret radio transmitter, a "freedom station" which several times a week broadcast the voice of the Catholic world in Germany.

Advised that the Gestapo was after him again, he said, he escaped by crawling at night across the heavily mined border into Liechtenstein, where his wife joined him.

Gas on Stomach

What many Doctors do for it

When excess stomach acid causes gas, sour stomach or heartburn, doctors prescribe the fastest-acting medicines known for symptomatic relief—medicines like those in Bell-ans Tablets. Try Bell-ans yourself, at first sign of distress. They neutralize acid, relieve gas, and bring comfort very quickly—yet are not a laxative! Only 25c, at drug stores. If your very first trial doesn't prove Bell-ans better, return bottle to us and get double your money back.

The Confidential Dispatches and Private Diary of Our Former Ambassador to Russia

NOW THAT WE ARE AT WAR, it is vital to all Americans to know what Russia will do. This book provides the necessary clues.

Joseph E. Davies knows Russia and her leaders perhaps more intimately than any other American. As a result, he was one of the few men in Washington to predict the amazing stand of the Red Army.

In Mission to Moscow he has included his secret, confidential reports to our State Department (with the State Department's extraordinary consent) of conversations with Stalin and Litvinov and other leaders; his private journal entries and confidential letters to the President, to Cordell Hull, Sumner Welles and others through October, 1941; his first hand impressions of the Moscow trials, the liquidation of the Red Army generals, the Russian industrial capacity back of the Urals, the world-surprising strength of the Red Army.

To understand what Russia will do it is essential to understand what she has done. This book, by one of our outstanding public men, provides that understanding.

First Tributes:

President Roosevelt says, (in a letter to Mr. Davies): "You exercised a happy faculty in evaluating events at hand and determining with singular accuracy their probable effect on future developments."

William Allen White says: "No one who would pretend to assess the actual values of modern Russia can afford to let these revelations by Ambassador Davies go by. It will be a reference book to which historians will turn for many years."

The New York Times says: "This is the one book above all to read on Russia. It is unlikely that we have ever had a more sincere or more nearly unprejudiced report."

Time Magazine says: "Joe Davies' prophetic shrewdness is revealed in full in Mission to Moscow."

Newsweek Magazine says: "This record shows Davies as one of our most sober and astute diplomats and political prophets. Mission to Moscow is also a remarkably lucid and readable footnote to the drama of the present war."

A Big Step Ahead!

"PARADE" NOW ADDS Pictures in Natural Color

A GREAT Sunday Post feature now becomes even better! "Parade"—the only picture-magazine section in any Washington Sunday paper—is again improved.

Beginning this Sunday, "Parade" brings you two pages of pictures in full four-color reproduction. They're natural colors, soft and true in tone—a glamorous touch to a magazine section that's already the talk of Washington. For its first color feature "Parade" shows you the stars of the Broadway hit, "Louisiana Purchase," beautiful Vera Zorina, naughty Frances Gifford, Bob Hope, and Victor Moore, with action pictures from the play.

And you will find "Parade's" other picture pages in black-and-white just as fine as ever—thanks to the improved paper, better ink, and special printing process adopted several months ago. 32 pages, rich in interest and entertainment, with two pages in beautiful colors! "Parade" now more than ever is the best in Sunday newspaper entertainment!

Sub Reported Seized With 400 Axis Troops

By Allen Raymond

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Freetown, Sierra Leone, Dec. 31, (Delayed).—A great many Axis submarines, German and Italian, were sunk or captured within 700 miles of the Straits of Gibraltar in the six weeks prior to December 22, yet they still pass both ways through that narrow gateway.

They take some toll of British shipping, but have seen enough of this sector of the war at sea recently to know that huge stores of munitions and masses of men are being transported safely through the Mediterranean and up and down the West African Coast under escort of the British Navy and Royal Air Force.

How the enemy submarines get through the Straits of Gibraltar is easily understandable.

They come through in Spanish territorial waters close to the African shore, where the water is deep and night passage on the surface is not impossible, despite the vigilance of the British navy—thanks in part to aid from Spain.

British patrols either by sea or air by night or day which get too close to the Spanish shore of Africa are fired upon by the Spaniards, who seem to have the same policy toward the Axis that the United States had toward Great Britain before we entered the war.

It is "all aid short of war."

Supplies for Axis Ships

Down the French West African coast from Casablanca to Dakar the enemy submarines are aided by an apparently well-organized maritime service of supply and information operating out of the Canary Islands and the Azores.

Here lies a big stretch of water where it is impossible for any navy to keep track of all the little pseudo-fishermen and faked neutral cargo boats.

It is a hot spot, and, thanks to the cooperation of the British naval authorities, I have just been permitted to travel through it on a vessel carrying material valued at nearly two million dollars and some of the most highly trained veteran technicians that the British commonwealth of nations and the United States have yet produced.

During this voyage, I seem to have confirmed from three sources a story that appeared fantastic when first I heard it—that the Germans have troop-carrying submarines capable of transporting 400 men with full field equipment for submerged runs of as much as eight hours.

One of these submarines trying to get from a base in occupied France to Sicily to aid in the Libyan campaign was captured with a skeleton crew "somewhere in the Atlantic." It surrendered voluntarily, because the crew lacked food for continued operations.

Prepared for Siege

Though the famous "Rock" itself bristles with artillery and its vast subterranean chambers are packed with food and supplies to withstand a long siege, everybody with whom I talked conceded that the time was probably coming when the mighty naval base which the rock is designed to protect would be rendered temporarily useless by attack from the air and by those great guns, up to 16 inches in caliber, which lie behind the Spanish hills and will probably be in Hitler's hands when he wants to use them.

The single air field at Gibraltar itself is so tiny that big planes crack up from time to time in trying to use it.

I left Gibraltar impressed and uplifted by only one thing. That was the caliber of the packed thousands of fighting men who occupy the town who all can be accommodated for many months within the rock if need be though they jam every inch of floor space left vacant by the 15,000 civilian population which was evacuated months ago and a great deal more room than that.

Gibraltar fairly bulges with some of the toughest, cockiest, hardbitten, physically fit fighting men to be found on this planet.

They are armed to the teeth and they work and play with gusto.

Not in many months have I heard such laughter as I heard while at the rock from these Englishmen, Australians, New Zealanders, Canadians and Americans.

It is homeric.

Poles Hate the Most

Mingling in this mass of men is a significant type of refugee from Nazi-dominated Europe—the fighting refugee who has escaped with difficulty from his native land and turns up on British soil asking only for a gun and a chance to kill Germans.

These men are Belgians, Dutch, Danes, Norwegians and Poles, and there is a quality of white-hot hatred for the Nazi in them that had no counterpart in the attitude of fighting men during the first World War.

This implacable, bitter, consuming hatred is strongest in the Poles, who know that in Poland there has been a Nazi policy of deliberate extermination of the Polish civil population to make room for the German.

This passionate loathing of the Pole for any German can only be compared to the attitude of the early white settlers in the United States who had suffered at the hands of Indian marauders and who swore that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian."

These Poles are out to kill.

Theodore, Ala., Tornado Kills 1, Injures Dozen

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 1 (AP).—One man was killed and more than a dozen persons injured today as a tornado dipped into suburban Theodore, leveling four buildings and damaging six others.

The dead man was identified only as a Mr. Summerlin, from a Brooklyn Field (Mobile) worker's badge which he wore.

Eight persons were brought to hospitals from Theodore, which has a population of approximately 1000 and is located 14 miles south of Mobile.

The twister cut into the business district about 7 a. m., and apparently did not hit elsewhere. Among those injured in a collapsing cafe were several persons en route to the New Orleans Sugar Bowl football game.

Writer Tells of D. C. Man's Merry Christmas on Sea Patrol

How a Washington flier with the R. A. F. spent Christmas night beside a pompom gun on the forward deck of a converted English merchantman somewhere off the West African coast was described last night in a dispatch from Freetown, Africa.

The pilot is Cordell Kleckner, whose wife, Anne, lives here at 4107 Fourth Street Northwest.

The dispatch, by Allen Raymond, a New York Herald Tribune correspondent, told how the reporter met Kleckner and two other American pilots, Art Donahue, of Lake Charles, Minn., and "Red" Campbell, 20, of San Diego, aboard the freighter. Raymond wrote:

"Red" was exchanging jovial insults by telephone with an equally young New Zealander on watch at the pompom gun aft and I heard him say, "Don't worry, baby, the Americans will protect you."

"Donahue was singing occasional lines of 'Holy Night,' and 'Oh, Little Star of Bethlehem.'

"Kleckner was explaining to me a new scheme of his for building hedge-hopper planes, far smaller and simpler and cheaper than any now used for machine-gunning ground troops and shooting up ammunition trains.

"He seemed to me like an inventor and evangelist preaching the gospel of flying artillery to make the current motorized artillery as obsolete as the horse-drawn variety.

[Mrs. Kleckner told The Post last night that her husband came to Washington in 1935 to work for the Bureau of Engraving. He entered the R. A. F. in September, 1940. She last saw him in May. She said that she had not heard from him in many weeks and the news that he was alive and safe came as "a great relief and surprise."—Editor's Note.]

"Our ship zigzagged down the African coast like a halfback running through a broken field," Raymond continued. "Using the spy glasses that Christmas morning I could understand how submarines can locate vessels even on dark nights.

"Far off on the port bow was a dark shadow on the dark sea.

"As you put the glasses on her it was a lovely destroyer gliding along like a loafing greyhound and although I knew that by day she was bluish-gray she gleamed almost white that night. The white was caused by the reflection of the phosphorescence that streamed from her bows to her wake.

"It was a happy Christmas if not a merry one.

"The captain decreed that the crew should not alter daily routine by double rum rations or Christmas dinner as customary. "We are in too hot a spot, he said. "Everybody's got to be on his toes. The ratings will get their Christmas celebration when we reach port."

"The only change from daily routine was a brief religious service on the fore deck in which the captain read the Christmas collect and a prayer for the royal family and Royal Navy. Then everyone recited the Lord's prayer and the ratings were marched back to duty. In the wardroom that night this correspondent sat talking with some British naval officers and airmen over the three glasses of spirits permitted by rations, about our families far away at home."

Cut Speed Limits, Say Experts, To Save Lives and Rubber

It may be that speed cops will help you save those tires which must last and last.

The Council of State Governments wrote all State Governors yesterday recommending a reduction in speed limits on highways. The purpose, said Executive Director Frank Bane, is two-fold:

To make people drive slower and thereby stop burning up tires.

To save lives, because if people do drive fast on old tires their worries about rubber conservation may cease abruptly.

Meanwhile OPM experts let the Nation's automobilists know that the tire shortage hardship this year may be little more than a prelude to conditions in 1943 and 1944.

Barring a marked improvement in the Allied military position in the Far East in 1942, permitting at least partial resumption of crude rubber shipments to the United States, OPM said there seemed little chance of building up needed rubber production in the Western Hemisphere before 1947.

Although the Government's stock pile of rubber plus such additional supplies as may become available through synthetic rubber production and from South American sources is expected to care for war and lend-lease requirements, the civilian population must use such substitutes as are available or go without.

The Government is pressing a three-way drive to increase rubber supplies within the hemisphere by encouraging the gathering of wild rubber in South America's Amazon region, attempting large scale production of guayule, a rubber bearing desert shrub found in northern Mexico and the southwestern United States, and by rapidly expanding domestic production of synthetic rubber.

None of these steps, however, will provide more than a small part of the Nation's normal annual requirements of some 600,000 tons, officials admitted, adding that only the synthetic rubber program appeared likely to produce immediate results. By the end of this year or early 1943, OPM hopes, new facilities for production of about 120,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually will be in operation.

House Plans Special War Finance Unit

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A change in the House Appropriation Committee's peacetime organization to handle the President's proposed billion-dollar-a-week war spending tempo is being urged by some influential members of the House group.

A plan for creation of a special National Defense subcommittee, comprising chiefly members trained in Army, Navy and Marine Corps needs, shortly will be laid before the committee, it was learned last night.

The special group, built from top members of existing regular subcommittees on war, Navy and deficiencies, would clear the big blanket defense spending measures like the recent ten billion dollar third supplemental and the 18 to 20 billion dollar bill expected next week to launch the new program.

Pending sine die adjournment today of the present session of Congress with its 58-billion-dollar spending record, and convening of a new session next week which may easily double that figure in the projected new victory program, the plan is expected to be submitted to Chairman Clarence Cannon of the Appropriations Committee.

Present Setup Inefficient

Under present committee machinery, the big new blanket estimates for defense have been routed through the 12-man deficiencies subcommittee, which includes only two members of the regular War and Navy subcommittees, schooled in military and naval needs.

The War and Navy subcommittees have handled only the regularly budgeted items for their departments, since overshadowed by the week-to-week urgencies of the war. Their members, through inspections, daily contacts with Army and Navy, and specialization on military items, were intended to give expert consideration to all defense items. Under the war rush of deficiency appropriations it hasn't worked out that way. The larger deficiency subcommittee, drawn from specialists on other departmental bills, has, in fact, done most of the defense work.

The plan to revamp this machinery to cope with a probably doubled call for defense funds will be submitted to the full Appropriations Committee next week by resolution if it meets with Cannon's approval.

Would Have Nine Men

To clear the coming new blanket war appropriations, a special nine-man National Defense Subcommittee would be set up, drawn three members each from the Deficiencies, War and Navy Subcommittees. Remaining members of the War and Navy Subcommittees, each expert in a given field, would sit in on the hearings.

Representative Cannon, as chairman of the full committee, would preside, and the following ranking majority and minority members would complete the new group.

From the Deficiencies Subcommittee: Representatives Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, and Representative Taber (Republican), of New York.

From the Naval Subcommittee: Chairman Scrugham (Democrat), of Nevada; Representative Casey (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

From the War Subcommittee: Chairman Snyder (Democrat), of Pennsylvania; Representative Terry (Democrat), of Arkansas, and Representative Powers (Republican), of New Jersey.

Regularly budgeted war items would continue to be cleared by the Army and Navy Subcommittees and all actual deficiencies would still be routed through the regular deficiencies group.

Contract Bridge

Here is a duplicate hand which caused discussion recently. East opens the bidding with one heart and West holds these cards:

♠A 6
♡8 7 5
◇A 10 8 3
♣A 9 8 4

What call should West make?

West holds enough high-card strength for a two-no-trump call, but that bid is unattractive, as he lacks other face cards. Two diamonds seems to be his best response, and if partner rebids his own suit, West can say four hearts. Two diamonds is preferred to two clubs, for if West first bids his clubs and then has a chance to mention diamonds, partner may figure him for a five-card club suit.

First Traffic Fatality of 1942 road and overturned 5 miles east of Leesburg, Va. He is Jacob W. Kinnemont, 18, of 303 Berryman Avenue, Capital Heights, Md.

Tony Hough, of Maryland, was taken to the Loudon County Hospital in Leesburg with minor injuries. The driver of the car, Jack Tickett, 23, of Seat Pleasant, Md., was held for questioning by the Loundon County police. The accident occurred at 2:45 p. m. yesterday on route seven, 5 miles east of Leesburg. The car, which was traveling toward Washington, left the road and overturned.

Frank Crim, 29, of 1343 Rittenhouse Street Northwest, was driving Miss Anderson from one night club to another for a dancing engagement when his car collided with one operated by Jesse Thompson, 33, of 3607 Eastern Avenue Northeast. Crim's car also crashed against one driven by John T. Rummel, 23, of Bolling Field. Crim suffered a fractured jaw, broken left leg and cuts. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Five Taken to Hospital

Thompson and four passengers in his car were taken to Gallinger Hospital. He was treated for a compound fracture of the left leg and cuts. Virginia Johnson, 17, of 474 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest; James Martin, 19, of 1213 L Street Northwest; Carrie Douffus, 17, and Thurman Thompson, 18, both of 3607 Eastern Avenue Northwest, all were given first aid for cuts and bruises.

Charles Finley, 21, of 1762 North Rhodes Street, Arlington, Va., was near death at Gallinger Hospital last night of a compound fracture of the skull, suffered in a two-car collision at Pennsylvania and Branch Avenues Southeast.

He was reported to have been riding in a machine operated by John B. Sams, 21, of 627 E Street Southeast. Marguerite Clarke, 18, of 1304 A Street Southeast, and Mary Vallen, 18, of 1657 U Street Southeast, also passengers in Sams' machine, suffered minor cuts. The driver escaped injury.

Sams Car Hit From Behind

Accident Investigation Unit policemen said Sams' car was struck from behind and knocked 280 feet into a wall on the left side of the street. Both cars were southbound on Pennsylvania Avenue, Sams having just turned from Branch Avenue, police said.

Marion Robinson, 23, of Capitol Heights, Md., was listed as the driver of the striking vehicle. She sustained broken ribs, broken nose and cuts. Two naval ensigns riding with Miss Robinson received minor cuts. They were identified as Robert R. Read, 30, of 3423 Carpenter Street Southeast, and Elmer Hoyt, 28, of 3400 Carpenter Street.

Richard J. Klaassen, 53, of 50 Franklin Street Northwest, and Mrs. Emma Keyster, 37, 3721 Ninth Street Northwest, both sustained cuts in a collision at Georgia Avenue and Columbia Road Northwest.

Leroy Clopper, 48, and his wife, Mrs. Anna Clopper, 32, Garrett Park, Md., were brought to Frederick City Hospital yesterday with injuries sustained in an automobile accident near Gaithersburg, Md. Clopper has a fractured shoulder and possible internal injuries. His wife is suffering from a broken collarbone and shock. A young daughter of the couple escaped uninjured, police reported.

Allies Strong in Far East, But More Planes Are Needed

By F. Tillman Durdin
Copyright by New York Times

Singapore, Dec. 31 (Delayed).—The development of Allied-Japanese hostilities in this part of the world is proving anew the vital importance of air power. Conversely, possession of decisive air superiority by the Allies in the China Sea area might have smashed the Japanese invasions, and it certainly would have battered the convoys so badly that Japanese losses would have been enormous and ultimate Japanese defeat immensely furthered.

Even so, the Allies are striking back with damaging effect.

Especially important for the Japanese are the bases which have been acquired recently, capture of which was the main purpose of the many land attacks. Notably useful for the Japanese will be the airdrome at Kuching, Sarawak, the airfield on Mindanao Island and the fields which they already are using in northern Malaya. These bases bring Allied strong points in Malaya and the Indies within shorter striking range of the Japanese, and at the same time are most valuable from the point of view of reconaissance and attacks on Allied shipping. The Kuching field, for example, gives the Japanese a point from which to conduct an air patrol against the southeastern shipping approaches to Singapore, while from northern Malaya they can patrol the northwest approach.

The Allied position, however, is still strong, and from the long-time point of view is the most favorable. The British still have numerous bases in Malaya from which they can counter Japanese activities, and Dutch bases from Sumatra all the way to the Moluccas and New Guinea can be used with telling effect against the Japanese. In addition, airdromes in Burma and Yunnan, from which strong Anglo-American squadrons have already taken a big toll of Japanese planes, occupy a strategic position on the Japanese flank.

Eventually also of greatest importance will be Allied bases in Central China and nearby coasts. From these bases Japan can be bombed and doubtless will be in good time.

The present Japanese edge in the air can last only for a period, but it emphasizes the need for reinforcing the Allies as speedily as possible. The Allied land and naval position would be greatly improved by such reinforcing. The long-range Allied air position is regarded most favorably here in view of the greatly superior production facilities of the Allies and the many strategic bases still in Allied hands.

Argentine Firm Donates $235 To Red Cross

From Buenos Aires, Argentina, the American Red Cross received $235 and a note in which the firm of Maurice Doutreligne & Cia said:

"This concern, as soon as the savage aggression of Japan was done against your friendly people decided to do something to help the first victims."

The $235 made part of the $11,755,581 already given the Red Cross War Fund for which 50 million dollars is being sought.

S. Sloan Colt, drive chairman, announced the gift from Buenos Aires yesterday, adding that 333 local chapters in this country have exceeded their quotas. A million dollars was raised in Detroit.

The Red Cross also announced that the hospital ship Mactan, marked according to international law, was sailing for Darwin, Australia, to evacuate badly wounded members of the American and Philippine forces at Manilla. The ship was requested by Gen. MacArthur.

Meanwhile, the appointment of Earl A. Nash, liaison officer in the executive office of the President, as vice-chairman of the District Red Cross War Fund campaign, was announced by Chairman Bruce Baird

New Year's Accidents Pass 200

Special Dispatch to The Post

It was a new year, but with the same old carnage from accidents.

Violent death ended more than 200 lives in another heavy toll of accidents marring another holiday. Nearly two-thirds of the fatalities were due to accidents suffered by motorists and pedestrians.

An Associated Press tabulation yesterday showed that 202 had been killed during the New Year's celebration. Of that number, 93 were deaths from traffic accidents.

Suicides, drownings and a long list of miscellaneous tragedies added to the holiday toll.

The death toll by States (with traffic figures first and miscellaneous second) was:

Alabama, 0 and 1; Arizona, 1 and 0; Arkansas, 1 and 1; California, 14 and 0; Colorado, 3 and 0; Connecticut, 4 and 1; Florida, 3 and 0; Georgia, 1 and 2; Illinois, 10 and 5; Indiana, 6 and 0; Iowa, 2 and 1; Kansas, 0 and 3; Kentucky, 1 and 0; Louisiana, 2 and 0; Massachusetts, 1 and 7; Michigan, 3 and 1; Minnesota, 1 and 0; Missouri, 3 and 5; Nebraska, 1 and 0; New Hampshire, 1 and 0; New Jersey, 0 and 2; New York, 4 and 9; North Carolina, 1 and 0; Ohio, 11 and 2; Oklahoma, 4 and 1; Pennsylvania, 5 and 1; Rhode Island, 0 and 1; Tennessee, 1 and 0; Texas, 4 and 6; Utah, 0 and 1; Virginia, 0 and 3; Washington, 2 and 4; West Virginia, 1 and 2; Wisconsin, 2 and 0.

War Will Come To N. Y. Streets, LaGuardia Warns

New York, Jan. 1 (AP)—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia began his third term today with a solemn warning to the people of his city that "the war will come right to our streets and residential districts."

Declaring that New Yorkers must not underestimate the strength and cruelty of the enemy, LaGuardia said "we may not expect long-continued, sustained attacks such as the cities of Great Britain have suffered, but we will be attacked."

Assailing critics of his administration of civilian defense, of which he is national director, LaGuardia excoriated those whom he charged with attempting to confuse the people.

"Protection for the target area, covering 300 miles deep on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts, has been afforded," he said. "There is not a city in the country but where the necessary medical supplies have been provided in case of repeated attacks."

K. R. Campbell, Newspaperman And War Flier, Dies

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 1.—Kingsley Reid Campbell, 47, former New York Herald Tribune financial news reporter, died this morning at Johns Hopkins Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Campbell, who was associated with the Herald Tribune from May, 1934, to January, 1938, was born in London. He was educated at Whitgrift Grammar School, London, and at Cambridge.

In 1917, when he was 21 years old, he enlisted in Canada in the Royal Air Force. He was assigned to the 218th squadron, piloting the old De Haviland bombers. He saw action over many of the Allied fronts in France and was one of the first "blind fliers."

Petain Hints Desire to Join Fight for 'the New Order'

By the Associated Press

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Jan. 1. Marshal Petain asked Germany today to bear in mind that France is the only great power remaining outside a conflict which has put "the planet in flames," but that France "recognizes her duty toward Europe."

This came in a New Year's message to the French nation by the aged chief of state, who described his own status as "partial exile"—presumably a reference to the divided state of France, occupied and unoccupied.

Hopes for Easier Terms

Petain said that he was allowed only "half-liberty," but that under the circumstances he was trying to do his best. He admitted to the French people that "the government which picked up the heritage of defeat cannot claim to be always getting your support."

He expressed hope for relaxation of Germany's armistice terms "so that France's dignity can be restored."

He said that the new French constitution soon would be ready but that it could only be promulgated from Paris "after liberation of the occupied territory."

"Frenchmen! . . . We must do our best to regain our dignity," Petain said. "United, we shall recover our country."

Empire Is Exposed

Speaking of the French Empire, he specially mentioned Indo-China (now the base of much of Japan's military power in the Far East) and said that the colony was "so proud in her hour of trial."

Petain emphasized that the French Empire was "now exposed to many dangers."

"This particular situation of France cannot escape Germany's notice. It will suggest to her that we hope for modification of the statute imposed on us after her victory."

From such an easing of armistice terms, Petain said, would come the "sincere rapprochement between the two nations that is hoped for by their governments and peoples."

Hot-Cha Clothing on Way Out As U. S. Diverts Wool to Army

By James Marlow
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 1.—Americans, in order to keep their Army the best dressed in the world, are going to wear clothes of more serious color and sober cut.

The time may come when Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen will be able to buy far fewer suits and dresses but right now the huge woolen industry is trying to work out this problem:

Conserve wool, make at least 20 million soldier uniforms, besides millions of Army overcoats, socks and other items, and at the same time keep the supply of civilian clothing undiminished.

The average American civilian uses about 9 pounds of wool a year but the Government supplies the soldier in training with about 160 pounds and the soldier in action with 279 pounds.

That same American soldier is so much better dressed than any other in the world, the American Wool Council said, that "there is no comparison," for the Government demands and gets the best of all materials for him, better than the average citizen ever buys.

But the Office of Production Management has told the manufacturers their supply of new wool for non-military production—including suits, dresses, other clothing and rugs—would be restricted during the next three months to half or less than half the amount used in the same period in 1941.

The OPM at the same time warned that restrictions might become more severe later in the year and in that event, the council said, the production of civilian clothing certainly would be cut. But that is in the future.

So to start with, according to the council, the industry in 1942 will cut the color range in men and women's clothes perhaps 60 per cent, right there saving chemicals hitherto used in dyeing but henceforth to be used in making explosives.

Furthermore, it may not be fashionable in wartime to wear doublebreasted suits—since the extra material in that kind of garment is not essential—and the flaps on pockets may disappear.

The council, describing 1941 as probably the best in the industry's civilian production, said last year ended "probably one of the most wasteful in fashion merchandise" and explained the statement thus:

Because the fashion merchandise field became so competitive one mill might turn out blankets in 20 different colors, or women's suits in 150 different patterns, each of them in many different colors and the colors in many different shades.

Funeral Services Set Tomorrow For Mrs. Cassedy

Funeral services for Mrs. Mabel Claire Cassedy, 52, 1308 Anson Street, Woodside, Md., who died Wednesday night at her home after a long illness, will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. at St. Michael's Catholic Church, Georgia and Wayne Avenues, Silver Spring, Md. Burial will be in Monacacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md.

Born in Beallsville, Mrs. Cassedy lived in Montgomery County and Washington all her life. In 1917 she moved to Washington and married Miller E. Cassedy, whose father, the late John I. Cassedy, founded National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., now National Park College.

Six years ago the couple moved to Silver Spring, where Mrs. Cassedy was prominent in church activities. She belonged to the Court Forest Glen, Catholic Daughters of America, St. Michael's Sodality and the Parent-Teacher Association of the Academy of the Holy Name.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Cassedy is survived by two daughters, Vesta Harvey Cassedy and Anna Mary Cassedy, of Silver Spring; four sisters, Mrs. Marion Beall, Darnestown, Md.; Mrs. DeForest Millard, Berwyn, Md.; Mrs. Kathleen Hayes, Washington, and Mrs. J. Fendall Coughlan, Woodside, Md.; and two brothers, Richard Gott, Forest Glen, Md., and Thomas Gott, Washington.

Funeral Planned Tomorrow for Mrs. Appleby

Funeral services for Mrs. Sallye D. Appleby, 44, who died Wednesday at her home in Montgomery Heights, Md., will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from the home. The Rev. Stephen Galley, pastor of the Montgomery Church, will conduct the ceremony and burial will be in the cemetery of that church.

The wife of Harry F. Appleby, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Luther Beall and a lifelong resident of Montgomery County. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Alvin Hood, Mount Airy, Md.; a son, Harry B. Appleby, Montgomery Heights; four sisters, Mrs. Ray Moxley, Montgomery Heights; Mrs. Leslie Wright, Damascus, Md.; Mrs. William King and Mrs. Guy Hurley, and three brothers, Robey Beall and Alvin W. Beall, all of Purdum, Md., and W. Dewey Beall, of Montgomery Heights.

Banker Seeks To Enlist Pope On Allies' Side

Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland banker and industrialist, has written to Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, seeking the outright opposition of the Roman Catholic Church to the policies of Germany and Japan.

Germany and Japan plan to place the world under pagan gods, Eaton asserted, adding that neither Italy nor Ireland could maintain their present policy if the Roman Catholic Church were to "oppose the pagan German and Japanese forces that seek to enslave the world."

"Must Rome, the ancient and august spiritual metropolis of the world, bow to Berlin and Tokyo?" Eaton asked.

The text of Eaton's letter:

"Your excellency:

"The Catholic Church can render the greatest of the many great services to humanity of its long and venerable history by calling upon its members everywhere to oppose the pagan German and Japanese forces that seek to enslave the world. Once the church has spoken, Italy can no longer range herself on the side of these ruthless aggressors nor Ireland continue to remain aloof from the struggle.

"The plan of the Axis powers to place one-half of the world under the dominion of Hitler's pagan Nordic god and the other half under the rule of Japan's sun-goddess, the pagan Amaterasu-Omikami, is utterly repugnant to those who cherish the ideal of the Good Samaritan. The conviction of Japan and Germany that their divine destiny is to dominate the earth runs counter to every tenet of the Christian faith.

"The world has had full opportunity to learn how religion is used as the mere servant of state pretension in Japan and Germany. The Japanese conquest of Manchuria culminated in the installation of Amaterasu as supreme goddess of the newly annexed territory in a solemn ceremony in 1940. This week Premier Tojo flew to the grand shrine at Ise to enlist the aid of the goddess for Japanese victory. The younger paganism of Germany may not yet have assumed such elaborate forms of ritual as Japanese Shintoism, but its spirit is the same, as the Nazi persecution of Catholics, Protestants and Jews testifies.

"Must Rome, the ancient and august spiritual metropolis of the world, bow to Berlin and Tokyo? Certainly it need not if the Catholic Church exerts its great influence to the fullest measure in defeating the evil ambitions of Germany and Japan."

Shot in Target Practice

Richard Lowery, 41, of Vienna, Va., was treated for gunshot wounds in the right thigh and calf at Emergency Hospital yesterday. He said he had been injured while target shooting near his home.

Miniature Problem

Small-Scale 'Invasion' Hits Plant

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—Please, the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation doesn't need any more midgets.

Ever since the papers carried a picture of Johnny Gee, height 4 feet 3, at work inside the wing of a patrol bomber, the plant has been bombarded with midget job seekers, each claiming he was smaller and more agile than other midgets, and especially designed by nature to work inside the narrow confines of an airplane wing.

It's true, said a Brewster official, that a midget is much handier than a normal-sized man at many jobs about the plant. They were delighted when the first applicants showed up. They hired 12 immediately, bringing their total midget enrollment to 13.

But now that every train, plane, subway and bus (so it seems to the company) brings more midgets to Brewster's doors—well, some other plant will have to absorb the surplus.

Johnny Gee applied for a job on his own initiative, immediately after he was graduated from the Brooklyn Auto Trade School. A personnel man, perplexed with the problem of squeezing a normal-sized worker inside the wings Brewster makes for a patrol bomber, saw in Johnny an ideal solution. Johnny could crawl into the narrow wing space with ease, and he could stay there, backing rivets, much longer than other workmen.

Besides, Johnny has skill—so much that he has been promoted now to an inspector's job.

Mummers Give Axis Rough Time In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Jan. 1 (INS).—Messrs. Hitler, Mussolini and Tojo were given a rough going-over today in Philadelphia's annual Mummers' parade.

As the monster parade with its thousands of marchers wound through downtown streets, a three-headed cobra—with one head for each of the Axis leaders—was attacked and killed every few moments. It always came back for more punishment, which was gleefully administered.

One of the hits of the parade was "Mr. Choke Him von Rotten Tripe," a snooping Nazi spying on everything from an island outside the world.

Tires And Taxis

Representative Randolph has introduced a bill defining taxis in the District of Columbia as public utilities privileged to obtain tires and other necessary equipment to assure continued operation. Undoubtedly a prolonged war cutting us off from access to rubber supplies would give rise to serious local transportation difficulties. For the District's trolley car, bus and train facilities are obviously inadequate to accommodate the many thousands of widely scattered Government and other employes who work here. Nevertheless it is doubtful whether the solution for a prospective shortage of transport facilities will be found by immediate relaxation of the ban upon sales of tires to taxicabs. More than likely the first consequence would be a greatly increased wear and tear on taxicab tires and accelerated consumption of our scarce rubber supplies. Certainly if special provision should be made for equipping taxicabs with new tires, it would be necessary to exercise close supervision over their movements and impose strict limitations upon the number of licensed cabs.

If Representative Randolph believes that the District will eventually have to depend upon taxicab service to supplement inadequate transportation facilities, he should seriously consider proposals to strip private automobiles of their tires before they are worn out. For in that way an additional reserve supply of used or reclaimed tires could be built up for later use by publicly operated conveyances. Since owners of machines face the prospect of having to put up their cars for the duration of the conflict sooner or later, a good deal can be said in favor of prompt action compelling them to surrender their tires for use wherever they will do the most good in supplementing inadequate public transportation facilities.

Congress In 1941

Most of the debate that went into the Congressional Record during 1941 now seems remote. The war naturally overshadows all the preliminary steps by which Congress attempted to prepare the Nation for the part it is now playing. Yet in that period many momentous decisions were made. The record of the first session of the Seventy-seventh Congress will doubtless constitute a significant chapter in American history if for no other reason than the gravity of the issues therein decided.

As Congress prepares to adjourn and begin a new session for the year 1942, its members probably look back over their work of the last year with mingled satisfaction and regret. For their record is not one of consistent good judgment, foresight and courage in the face of a perilous international situation. The 203-to-202 vote by which the draft-extension bill was accepted by the House now seems to be particularly incredible. Likewise the failure of Congress to enact price-control legislation and its long fumbling with the problem of strikes in defense industries leave a cloud on many other constructive achievements. Another conspicuous failure is reflected by the fact that Congress increased appropriations for nondefense activities by 715 million dollars. Politics as usual had far too great an influence upon legislators standing on the brink of a world-wide conflict.

On most of the vital issues confronting it, however, Congress finally came through with decisions in line with the realities of global war. It granted the President power to control ship movements to and from American ports, to regulate travel to and from the United States, to seize foreign ships in American harbors, to give priority to lend-lease and defense contracts and to requisition property needed for our military establishments. The lend-lease program, revision of the Neutrality Act and extension of the service of selectees were the subjects of protracted debates, but in each case Administration policies were sustained. Congress also enacted new taxes designed to yield 3553 millions. That, however, is only a fraction of the additional revenue that will be needed, and it was partly offset by the increase in nondefense expenditures.

Since the attack on Pearl Harbor, Congress has acted as a unified body concerned with only one immediate objective—military victory in the war against the Axis. To that end it has required the registration of all men aged 18 to 64, and subjected those from 20 to 44 to military duty. Far-reaching powers have also been voted to the President to facilitate the conduct of the war. Important work remains for the second session of the Seventy-seventh Congress, which will begin next week. But Congress has already laid the groundwork for our participation in the war on a grand scale. Its most pressing problem, like that of the President, is now to make our war effort more effective.

Getting Tough

In language strongly tinged with insolence, Pravda, the organ of the Communist Party in Soviet Russia, describes General MacArthur's declaration of Manila as an open city as the act of one "who, as soon as the enemy appears, lies on his back, stretches out his feet and shows complete humility." The newspaper bitterly contrasts such "Petain methods" with the hard-boiled stoicism under similar circumstances of those in charge of the defenses of London, Moscow, Leningrad and Tobruk. Here, apparently, we have still another shift of the party line. As late as Monday the New York Daily Worker was expressing its horror of the Japanese barbarians who had flouted all the rules of civilized warfare. But evidently the line of civilization versus barbarism and Christianity versus paganism, which was adopted soon after the Nazi advance into Russia, is to be scrapped, now that Soviet fortunes are on the mend, in favor of the line of realistic tough guys versus "ladybirds." Evidently it is not the meek but the tough that will inherit this earth—those who are tough enough to take it and lucky enough to be out of the way when the bombs fall.

Now, from the military standpoint, and in the light of the sequel, General MacArthur's declaration and the removal of all defenses from Manila may or may not have been a mistake. Here in Washington it is as yet impossible to pass judgment on this point. If we may say so, it is equally impossible to pass judgment from Moscow. The thing we must remember is that, mistake or not, this decision was taken by General MacArthur, not in the interest of his own safety or that of his troops, but in an effort to avoid the mass butchery of those noncombatant Asiatics whom Japan has promised to deliver both from their white oppressors and from the perils of Russian Bolshevism. What resources, if any, MacArthur had for the kind of resistance Pravda prescribes, we don't know, of course. But it is conceivable that if some of the productive energy devoted to sending lend-lease supplies to Russia via Archangel and other routes had been devoted instead to strengthening the defenses of Manila, his decision might have been otherwise, and the city might have held out for months.

Meantime, one thing is certain: the Japanese gained neither military nor moral advantage by their bombardment of the city after the declaration. Indeed, their senseless and wanton marking off of ancient churches and cathedrals may produce repercussions in quarters where they were least anticipated. What will be the opinion in Spain, for example, of this deliberate obliteration of venerable monuments to Spanish culture and Spanish piety? What will be the opinion of the still considerable clerical elements in Italy and France and for that matter in Germany and Austria? It may well be that the day of all chivalrous usage in warfare has ended and that we must act accordingly. Even so, it is well that history should know at whose hands they have perished.

Kerch Retaken

When Kerch fell six weeks ago the Nazis hailed it as a victory of great magnitude, which it was—potentially. At the easternmost end of the Crimean Peninsula, Kerch provided the Nazis with an important jumping-off point for an assault on the Caucasus oil fields. At the same time the Germans were driving on Sevastopol, whose capture would have deprived the Russians of their last important naval base on the Black Sea. But Sevastopol held and now Kerch has been retaken. Where the Nazis had failed—namely, in crossing the Kerch Straits which separates the Crimea and the Caucasus—the Russians succeeded.

The Russians are now hopeful that they will be able to relieve Sevastopol and drive the Germans out of the Crimea altogether. Should they do so, it would be a very bright feather in their cap. Russia's recapture of the Crimea would enable the Red Army to flank the Nazi forces now encamped along the northern shore of the Sea of Azov, and thus accelerate their retreat on the southern front. In the meantime the fall of Kerch, together with the German evacuation of Rostov, diminishes the danger of a German drive to the Middle East by way of Turkey. For as long as the Russians remain in control of the Black Sea, which means as long as they can retain an effective foothold on the Crimean Peninsula and operate from Sevastopol, such a venture by Hitler would be fraught with dangers he probably does not dare risk. The enthusiastic messages sent by Premier Stalin to the men responsible for the recapture of Kerch were wholly justified.

Hail To Canada

The tribute which Winston Churchill paid to Canada in his Ottawa address on Tuesday was richly deserved. For various reasons the Dominion's truly remarkable war effort has never received adequate attention in this country. In part this has been due to the circumstance that the Canadians have been overmodest about their contribution to the common cause. In part it has been due to the fact that the contribution of other dominions, while no more considerable, has been more spectacular. Except in the recent battle of Hongkong, in which Canadian units distinguished themselves, the man power of the Dominion has not participated on a large scale in any of the great campaigns of this war. This has not been their fault, as the British Prime Minister was quick to point out. No restrictions have ever been placed as to where Canadians were to be permitted to serve. But most of them have been kept in the mother country for the defense of Britain against invasion.

In other ways which have escaped notice Canada's help has been noteworthy. Canadian fliers have an excellent war record. Her air-training program has likewise made Canada one of the great reservoirs of trained pilots, navigators, bombardiers, ground crews and other personnel needed by the British and imperial air forces. This air-training scheme has now reached the point where there is no dearth of trained personnel to operate the growing number of planes being turned out in British and American factories. In the meantime Canada's production of corvettes and merchant ships has increased to the point where it rivals the shipbuilding program of the mother country. Weapons manufactured in Canadian arsenals, armored vehicles from her factories, have played their part on many fronts.

In short, on a per capita basis Canada has contributed more men, more money, a greater volume of supplies, and has spent a very much greater part of her national income, than we have. We have still a long way to go before we shall have reached that degree and intensity of war effort which our friend and ally to the north has so modestly and so effectively put forth. It was only just that Mr. Churchill should have spread it on the record.

Hitler's Promises

It was exactly a year ago this week that Adolf Hitler promised his people final victory in 1941. That year has now passed into history. It was marked by certain limited German successes, notably in the Balkans and, for some months after June 22, in Russia. But that victory which the Fuehrer promised his harassed countrymen is further away than ever. The year that has just ended was notable far less for German triumphs than for two outstanding German defeats, namely, the defeat of the German-Italian forces in Libya and, what is of immensely greater importance, the German defeat in the Battle of Moscow.

Nothing daunted, Hitler in his sequel to his pronouncement on the eve of 1941 has merely set the date forward. In 1942, he now promises the Germans, the Soviet power will be completely broken. But in view of his recent record of bad guesses it is questionable if his people will take him any more seriously than the world will take seriously his claim that he was and remains a man of peace who has been kept from "cultural, social and economic tasks" by Churchill and Roosevelt.

The devil is sick and clothes himself in the garb of a pious monk. But nobody will be fooled by it. The year 1942 will be a hard year for the grand coalition fighting the most pernicious force that has ever arisen in the world. It may not see a final victory over it. But the way toward that consummation is being paved. Hard as may be the road ahead of us, there will be none of the explaining which Hitler is now so frequently indulging in. His evil hour is not yet ended. But 1942 may see the light break through for us and the shadows darken over the gangster hordes that have made the world into a shambles.

THE AUSTERE MAIDEN

Though a green apple, she may red-ripen
When summer comes,
Striding gold meadows and into her apron
Tossing the plums.

But if spring, if the summer, if fall do not teach her,
(Bitter or shy)
Yet, in the end, shall the winter reach her
With a sharp cry!

For love is a shelter when passion is over;
—Who would, alone,
Sleep with no fellow beneath the warm cover,
Beneath the cold stone?

Many have turned to love with thanksgiving
Before they died;
The world is too big, and death is too big
To front them with pride.

Know Your Enemies

Mr. Clarke Beach's article on Japan, published in The Washington Post of December 31 is a most creditable piece of work. It is concise, dispassionate and enlightening. When you fight enemies, it is important to know as accurately as possible their defects, their qualities, their mode of thinking, and their tendencies. The Associated Press staff writer's contribution to this knowledge is brief but very substantial.

As a sort of postscript to Mr. Clarke Beach's essay, I think it might be of interest to your readers to quote for their benefit a curious passage from Mr. G. K. Chesterton's "Autobiography" (London, 1936, Page 122):

"George Wyndham had all sorts of odd and original notions; and one of his eccentricities was to set a subject for conversation and ask for opinions all round, as if it were an examination or a game. One day I remember he sternly announced 'Japan,' and asked me to start with a few words. I said: 'I distrust Japan because it is imitating us at our worst. If it had imitated the Middle Ages or the French Revolution, I could understand; but it is imitating factories and materialism. It is like looking in the mirror and seeing a monkey.' He held up his hand like a master of the ceremonies. 'That will do. That is enough;' and passed on to the next, who was, I think, Maj. now Gen. Seeley; who said he distrusted Japan for certain imperial reasons connected with our colonies and national defense. Then Mr. Winston Churchill said that what amused him was that as long as Japan was beautiful and polite, people treated it as barbarous; and now it has become ugly and vulgar, it was treated with respect, or words to that effect. Then Charles Masterman, in his manner of luxuriant gloom, said the Japs were Huns who would sweep us off the earth; that they were much stronger and more skillful than we, and were also detestable. Then one or two others spoke, expressing the same negative view, and then Wyndham, in his whimsical way, wound up with one of his extraordinary historical theories (of which he had a large selection), and said the Hairy Ainu was the cousin of the European and had been conquered by these horrid Mongols. 'I do think,' he said gravely, 'that we ought to come to the rescue of the Hairy Ainu.'".

Mr. Chesterton did not give the exact date of this scene; but one surmises, from other facts in the "Autobiography," that it took place some 30 years ago.

Pearl Harbor Inquiry

I am wondering why a board appointed to investigate the disaster at Pearl Harbor did not contain several representatives of the taxpayers. Practically everyone on the board is drawing Government pay. There should be several on the board who work for a living and have no connection whatever with the Federal (or even State) Government. We want no whitewash or no goats but an honest to God investigation. Practically everyone on this board is in part responsible to the appointing power. They cannot be free agents. Of course the best one on the board, the justice, possibly does not understand military or naval matters and could be honestly deceived, but why not appoint such men as Gen. Ansell or Gen. Hugh Johnson (both former generals, but now retired, not drawing retired pay and under no War Department influence) or some former National Guard officers, now out of the service and then a few civilians with no Government connections such as Henry Quinn or Frank Hogan. Or do we really want the true facts?

Meters For Taxis

On December 22 a private hearing on taxi rates was held at the District Building. On that date Harry Pearl and the writer, spokesmen for the 633 cab drivers who signed the petition asking for the installation of meters in taxicabs, discussed every angle of cab operation—in this city—with the chairman of the commission.

During the debate we arrived at certain definite conclusions. Among them were: 1. The chairman was willing to eliminate the free zone. 2. He was willing to shorten zone No. 1, but he was opposed to the installation of taximeters.

We pointed out to him that the zone rate was a racket and a gyp game; that it was comparable to a food store that sold a loaf of bread to one patron for 25 cents while selling six loaves to another for 5 cents.

When we pointed out to him that the Federation of Citizens Associations several years ago unanimously condemned the zone system and demanded a meter system, he made the following remarkable and undemocratic remarks:

"If you brought a petition here signed by the entire population of 750,000 people and I thought it had no merit, I would ignore it. But if your petition had only one name on it and I considered it had merit, I would adopt it."

From the above remarks we concluded that the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission does not believe in majority rule or democracy.

We were amazed also to find out that the chairman of the commission was still convinced that he could set a fair cab rate on the basis of manifests submitted by rental cab drivers.

We also pointed out to him that the taxicab was the most important branch of the transportaiton industry; that it does work the streetcars and buses can never do, but that it had been allowed to become the mecca for all kinds of rackets; that under the zone racket system the drivers had to work 12 to 18 hours a day, 7 days a week; that the only way to correct this situation was a far taximeter rate. In spite of all this, he appeared to want the zone racket.

However, at one point during the discussion he made a very intelligent suggestion. He asked how it would suit us if "he adopted a dual system," meaning a meter and zone system. We immediately challenged him to put such a system into effect. If he adopted the meter rate of 20 cents a mile, we predicted the meter cabs would soon eliminate the zone racket cabs. But as soon as we adopted his suggestion he withdrew it.

We at once ended the conference by informing him that we would ask the House and Senate District of Columbia Committees to investigate the entire system of cab operation in this city.

In the meantime we predict that taxi service will become more difficult for patrons to obtain, especially during rush hours. At the present time only about one out of four phoning for cabs can be serviced. Rising costs of operation and increasing demand for cabs will leave the city with a broken-down, bankrupt cab system—unless something is done to put it on a sound basis—in the near future. It's time also for the cab owners to wake up. They have been asleep too long.

Facts Wanted

Full sympathy for "Agitated Relative" in his letter complaining of the Navy failure to give us all facts as to our losses in the Pacific. Much harsh criticism has been hurled at Frank Knox since he took the job of Navy Secretary.

He has not complained, but has shouldered what he should have thrown out a long time ago, the Navy bureaucracy, old-time gentlemen, educated for the sea, but now undertaking to do all sorts of work from running an industrial plant to directing a school for young writers.

Thousands of Americans are making the same complaint sounded by agitated relatives. The excuse offered by the Navy is sickly, "We must not let the Japs know what we are going to do."

The Japs know more about the movement of American warships in the Pacific than most of the swivel-chair naval officers in Washington.

The Japs told us first about the sinking of the Arizona, which the Navy reluctantly admitted. The fact is that America has not been told the full extent of the damage to Hawaii on the seventh of December. The crew in command of the desks don't want the facts to be known. It will prove too much incapacity. This becomes aggravating when we read fustian stuff intended to glorify the Marines and the desk men smugly take on a look of reflected glory. For all the heroism of the men with rifles in their hands, bureaucracy claims unlimited honor, but never mentions any of the losses due to incompetence.

"What is the Navy doing?"—is the question every one is asking. Then out comes from the department writer's locker number one "It is suspected that the Japanese navy is somewhere near to Alaska." As an old-time leatherneck, I must find fault with the tenderness of the men now running the Navy. John Paul Jones and John Barry have monuments in Washington because they went out and found the enemy.

America would be better pleased to be told that the Navy is on the way to Tokyo to bomb that city. If the Japanese navy appears on the course, it will be in danger of getting sunk.

"Give her the big jingle, go ahead full speed."

Reply To Mr. Ratte

Your correspondent, Mr. Ratte, congratulates persons moving to New York. He says there is plenty of parking space, that landlords are kind-hearted, that New Yorkers enjoy the highest standard of living and are the most progressive people. He likes subways.

I, too, lived in New York for years. I could never find any of that parking space he talks about except at the rate of 75 cents per night. If you leave your car downtown you will invariably be arrested even if they don't haul your car off.

New Yorkers travel packed in cars in a way the Department of Agriculture wouldn't stand for in the case of cattle, and in foul, fetid air, which is simply indescribable in summer.

They live jammed into apartments that cost even more than they do here. If you try to move out of an apartment in New York you have a lawsuit on your hands.

And New Yorkers are proverbially the most provincial people on earth. Comedians at New York theaters get laughs at old jokes that wouldn't go anywhere else in the country.

I note that Mr. Ratte is still living in Washington.

The Post Impressionist

Fighting Bob Evans

Usually when a boy wants something he is bound to get it or will go to the extreme end in securing his goal. That was the case with Fighting Bob Evans, the great admiral of the Spanish-American War.

When Evans was at the age of 10 his mind was made up to run away to sea, but a golden opportunity was presented to him by a friend who was at that time a delegate to Congress from Utah, and who asked young Bob Evans if he would like to have an appointment to the Naval Academy.

But there was a hitch to this, for in order to qualify, it would be necessary to become a resident of Salt Lake City. In those days a trip to that country meant danger and Indians, but Bob Evans was willing to go to Hades if he thought it would get him into the Navy. He got through the wilderness and returned to the East to enter the Naval Academy in 1860. At the start of the rebellion, the following year, Bob Evans inflicted the first disaster upon the South. A band of Confederates had been drilling on the north side of the Potomac and they openly boasted that they would soon capture the Academy and the Constitution.

Before any regiments were able to reach the grounds of the Academy all the cadets were sent to wall of the yard to protect the landing.

An attack came a few nights later. The Confederates knew that the cadets could do nothing because of their empty guns, so they came in a rush, shouting loudly, firing their guns.

Bob Evans was the only cadet to keep his head. In the matter of a split second he had devised a plan. He halted the midshipmen with the help of a few, lined them back of a barricade, and started picking up rocks from a pebbled beach.

He let the Confederates come within throwing range, then instructed the midshipmen to fire off their guns. With a mighty heave those who had rocks in hand threw them with all their force. In the darkness the Confederates couldn't distinguish rocks from bullets, and thinking that a large force of regular troops were at hand, fled.

Bob Evans went to war then, and he had a great deal of experience before his greatest feat was done. In the autumn of 1864 the Union Army began preparation for the capture of Fort Fisher, the last important stronghold of the Confederacy.

On January 13, 1865 the fleet opened a heavy fire on the fort and the Confederates responded with great gallantry. Bob Evans was kept busy landing seamen and supplies in preparation for the assault, which was set for the fifteenth.

At noon on the 15th the landing parties started their assault. Men fell on every hand, many sought temporary cover in the shallow rifle pits or behind hummocks of sand, and soon the attacking force became a confused, shattered body stumbling over the bodies of their dead comrades. Foremost of those still charging up the hill was Bob Evans. He was wounded twice before reaching the stockade at the foot of the parapet. Soon a bullet struck his left leg and the force threw him downward on his face.

He was trying to stop the flow of blood with a handkerchief while the riflemen above made a target of his body. One shot tore off the sole of his shoe and rolling over he spotted the sharpshooter and killed him.

Bob Evans would have never lived to tell the story if it hadn't been for a marine who, disregarding bullets walked inside the stockade, picked up the boy and carried him back to a shell hole.

Meanwhile the Confederates had their hands full in repulsing the attack of the army. They had left a few sharpshooters on the seaward side to handle the alarm if anything should happen. Bob Evans fell asleep from fatigue and the loss of blood. When he awoke the tide had come in and half filled the hole he was lying in. Unless he got help he would be drowned. So after desperate efforts he rolled out of the hole to find another marine close by firing at the fort. Bob pulled his gun and commanded the leatherneck to come and pull him out to a new shelter.

He lay for seven hours in this position, suffering from the wounds, when he heard a voice and saw the ship doctor approaching. But in another second the physician was lying on the sand, dead from a bullet. A little later another man came with a coal shovel and pushed it under the boy. Then started off down the beach when the man was shot through both arms; then two men came along picked him up and carried him to safety.

Just as he was lifted aboard the ship a loud cry rang out: "The fort is ours!"

Bob Evans was taken to Norfolk, to the naval hospital. When he was laid in the bed his revolver was slipped under the pillow. Later he awoke to find the chief surgeon and assistants examining his wound. Bob overheard the senior surgeon say that both legs would be taken off the next morning. All that night Bob thought about this and when the staff appeared the next day he said: "I'm 18 years old," then paused and continued: "If I have to live the rest of my life without legs then I might as well die!"

"But orders are orders, son!" said the man.

Bob Evans pulled the pistol from his pillow.

"I have six cartridges in this," he said, "if you or any surgeon comes in that door with any instrument to operate with I'll start shooting. There will be six dead men before I get through!"

He won his case but at times they thought he was dying; once a chaplain came in to help Bob in the last prayers. But the boy wasn't intending to die and a few days later he left the hospital for Philadelphia. One leg had been reset badly so it was broken again and set successfully. He went back into the Navy and won popularity in the service and the country with the nickname of: "Fighting Bob Evans." He was captain of the Iowa in the victory over the Spaniards at Santiago and chosen for the honor of commanding the American fleet round the world in 1907.

Reorganizing The Industrial Command

LINDLEY

THE FIFTY BILLION dollar war program for 1942 can be attained, but not by the present industrial command and not by the policies so far pursued by the Army and OPM. This is the sober judgment of officials and observers whom this column has found most nearly right about the war and the war effort during the last 18 months.

The weakness in the administration of war production is partly in personnel and partly in structure. For a year and a half the President has been criticized increasingly for not vesting in one man the power to direct the program. His failure to do so probably was due in part to his own reluctance to delegate authority. He likes to keep the strings in his own hands. This is a weakness which his friends, as well as his critics, have long acknowledged. Now that we are fully at war, his full mental and physical energies are needed for the great strategic decisions on which the life and future of the Nation depend.

But there was another reason for his failure to fix responsibility in one man for the direction of the whole war supply effort. That was the lack of a man who seemed to fit the specifications. Most of the industrial leaders who were brought to Washington failed to measure up to the top job. This does not mean that they were incompetent. Many of them have been and can continue to be extremely useful. But they lacked the imagination to grasp the dimensions of their task—in comparison with which runing one of our largest corporations is a picayune job. Consciously or unconsciously, many of them undoubtedly have put the protection of business interests ahead of the national welfare. The record of the leaders of organized labor has been no better.

BY AND LARGE, the men who have had the clearest foresight and surest grasp have been the New Dealers, especially the economists and other intellectuals. But most of them lacked the prestige and practical experience to carry out what they believed to be necessary. Leon Henderson, an economist who is also a man of action, has shouldered his way through, but he is exceptional.

Morris Llewellyn Cooke, an industrial engineer of long experience serving as an aide to Sidney Hillman, began clamoring more than a year ago for the conversion of industry to war production, and especially for the marshalling of the resources of small industries. Week after week he was kicked around by Knudsen and his OPM crowd, by the Army, and by almost everybody else. But now his foresight has been established. The war program approved by the President cannot be achieved, or even approximated, except by the methods Cooke began urging in the fall of 1940.

IN LINE WITH Cooke's program was the Reuther plan of a year ago to convert and pool for arms production the resources of the automobile industry. The Reuther plan was scoffed at and scuttled by Knudsen and his aides. Now the automobile industry is going to have to adopt the principles of the Reuther plan. A vital year has been lost—during which the output of automobiles for civilian use came close to the all-time peak.

Now that we are actively at war the cost of the smugness and near-sightedness in industry and labor—and in the direction of the arms production program—has begun to be measured in the lives of American men. Ingenious makeshifts, designed to avoid hurting anybody's feelings, such as the creation of SPAB, were bad enough at the time. Now they are inexcusable. Some of the President's wisest and most loyal aides now say frankly that he must act decisively.

OF THE BUSINESSMEN, the preferred candidate of the Roosevelt group is Donald Nelson, executive director of SPAB. He was their choice a year ago, when the President, instead, put Knudsen and Hillman in charge of OPM. Other New Dealers would like to draft William O. Douglas from the Supreme Court. He is a tough-minded capable administrator, but he has been on the side lines for two years.

A solution which would relieve the President of embarrassment is to make Vice President Wallace head of the whole war production effort. As chairman of SPAB and of the Economic Warfare Board, Wallace is almost that now. Then Wallace could pick his own executive director, to be the active administrator. As Secretary of Agriculture he was tough enough to conduct two purges of high administrative personnel.

Since December 7, all hands in Washington have shown more push. But it is generally agreed that the 50 billion dollar war program for 1942 requires a streamlined administration headed by a man of proven courage, capacity and vision.

Advance In Science

Biological Strides

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 1.—The $1000 prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was awarded today for the discovery, presented here this week, of a biological common denominator.

This denominator clarifies several puzzles, such as the nature of unconsciousness, the mystifying action of sulfanilamide, of vitamins, and of temperature and pressure on living bodies.

Three scientists who collaborated in the experiments split the prize. They are Professors Frank H. Johnson, of Princeton University, and Dugald E. S. Brown and Douglas A. Marsland, of New York University.

They showed that enzymes, the compounds which cause chemical reactions in living bodies, are the basis of consciousness, and a part of the other puzzling reactions. The best known example of an enzyme is the pepsin of digestion.

MANY ENZYMES have been discovered, extracted and purified and many more are believed to remain still undiscovered in the reactions of life. All these enzymes, however, have been examined in test tubes.

The three scientists for the first time showed how to show the reactions of an enzyme in living tissue.

This enzyme is luciferase, the chemical which emits the light of fireflies, glow worms and luminous creatures which make the sea phosphorescent.

One class is the luminous bacteria, whose lights go alternately on and off. The scientists placed these bacteria in water. There they could anesthetize the creatures by putting ether and other drugs in the water. They could change the temperature of the water. They could change the pressure of the water with a hydraulic pump.

ALL THESE things affected the light, and by virtue of many check tests showed exactly what was happening to the enzyme luciferase.

Alcohol and anesthetics put the lights out, if much was given, dimmed them when the quantities administered were small. The remarkable part of the discovery was the way in which the drugs did this.

They changed the form of the enzyme, that is, of the molecules composing it. The molecules sort of unwound, and got larger. That change put out the lights. In proof of this, the lights came on again when pressure was put on the microbes, the pressure squeezing the molecules back into normal form.

Changes in temperature, too, high or too low, also affected the lights, dimming them or putting them out, and apparently the mechanism was the same, namely, change in shape of the enzyme molecules.

HOWEVER, KNOCKOUT drops (chloral hydrate) and some other drugs, particularly sulfanilamide and one of the vitamins, set in motion quite a different mechanism in the enzyme, and yet this different mechanism gave the same dimming and extinguishing of the lights.

These drugs combined with enzyme to produce a change in its chemical composition.

Sulfanilamide acted exactly like a narcotic on the enzyme, putting its activities to sleep. Physicians have been trying vainly to discover how sulfanilamide works its miracles. They knew that in test tubes sulfanilamide does not kill germs, but only stops their activities.

They could only guess, however, how it worked in a living body. This enzyme experiment shows one step inside the body. This may mean that the miracle sulfa drugs merely anesthetize or slow down the disease germs so that they are easy prey to the body's natural defenses.

P-amino benzoic acid, the recently discovered gray hair vitamin, also dimmed the bacterial lights.

AS AN EXPLANATION of consciousness, the experiments mean that it is primarily a chemical action kept going by the stimulation of enzymes. Anesthetics, including liquor, affect the structure or shape of these enzymes, and unconsciousness is the result.

It also becomes probable that in the needs of a living body to maintain a very uniform temperature, a special, narow range of heat is required to keep enzymes working properly.

Men can't live in the high pressures of the deep sea nor the rarefied presures of the great altitudes. Again it becomes apparent that one of the reasons is the need that enzymes have of working under a uniform and limited zone of pressures.

The discoveries provide a basis for better understanding of muscular contraction, the rate of the heart beat and the way the tissue cells in the body take up oxygen.

An Uphill Fight

More Bad News Expected

IN WASHINGTON, the first day of 1942 was dismal—half rainy, wholly overcast, chilly, dank, depressing. And the mood of the weather was borne out by the news—in practically every morning paper, first-page headlines said, "Manila's Fall Likely," or equivalent words.

SULLIVAN

On my desk was a memorandum, put there the evening before, saying, "Secretary of War will hold a press conference at 10:30 a. m." I felt that important news might be given out. Practically all the other newspapermen felt the same—the crowd that gathered in the War Department press room was unusually large. And practically all supposed, or thought it probable, we were there to hear announcement of the fall of Manila.

Yet the spirit of the crowd was not one of gloom. Newspaper writers are to some degree artists, hence share the artists's endowment of temperament. Yet there is this about newspaper groups—their gamut of emotion seems to be, so to speak, from par upward. There are responsive to elation, show high spirits when an occasion justifies it—for example, when Prime Minister Churchill the other day was confident and ruggedly buoyant at a press conference of the President, the newspapermen broke simultaneously, and most unusually, into cheers. But to gloom, the reaction of a newspaper group seems to be merely a collective shrug of the shoulders, an attitude which seems to say, "Let's call it a day, what's next!" Here today, anticipating news of the worst reverse America has suffered in a foreign war since 1812, the newsmen were matter-of-fact, unemotional, without tension.

IN THE ROOM, also, were many Army officers. With officers as a class, temperament does not exist. An event is an event—they do not temperamentally class it as either a victory or a reverse. They merely take note that the situation on the checkerboard has changed, and vigilantly consider what move is called for. Had the anticipated news today been that the Japs had arrived at Denver on an invasion of the United States, the Army officers would have been cool, intent on what new strategy would be best.

Presently, near Secretary Stimson's desk an officer casually stood up and said the Secretary would be delayed—he was having a conference with Secretary of the Navy Knox. This increased our anticipation that what the Secretary had to say to us would be important. But this did not alter the matter-of-fact atmosphere of the room. So far as the newspapermen were infected by concern, it was about the closeness of their date lines.

Soon there was a slight stir in the room—those who come to the press conferences regularly recognized, by ear in the corridor outside, the approaching stride of the Secretary and the two or three military men who accompany him. As Mr. Stimson entered the room, all rose. Mr. Stimson went to his desk, sat down, looked out over the room, said good morning. He was absolutely matter-of-course. Whether the news he had to give out was important or not, whether bad or good, Mr. Stimson would be the same—completely objective, utterly unmoved by the atmosphere of the room, as undramatic as the desk before him.

NEWSPAPER MEN, familiar with Mr. Stimson's personality, knew they could gather nothing from his manner. To learn whether their anticipation about the news was correct, they would have to wait until he spoke. What he had to say was merely a conventional communique about the fighting near Manila, in the terms ordinarily used—severe fighting north of Manila, our troops continue to resist, a major battle is now in progress. It was such a communique as might be given out at any stage of the fighting from the start—no suggestion of climax reached or ahead, no tone of drama whatever. Then he read another communique, this one from Hawaii, about Japanese air and submarine activities in those islands.

Departing from his formal communiques, Mr. Stimson said he wished to correct reports he had heard over the radio, that the Japanese troops in the Philippines were young and untrained. This, Mr. Stimson said, coining offhand a pointed phrase, was as erroneous as well-intentioned. As objective about the enemy as about everything else, he said the Japanese troops were stocky, sturdy, well-trained veterans, able fighters; the staff work of the Japanese officers competent technically. We must, Mr. Stimson said, look facts in the face, not through rose-tinted glasses. All this Mr. Stimson said in the manner of an accountant correcting an inaccurate figure—as an observer or umpire might say it, rather than a participant. And it was not in any spirit of preparing the country for bad news, but only in response to a question calling for it, that Mr. Stimson said everybody has recognized for 20 years that retention of the Philippines would be an uphill job.

It is all quite true, yet in it there is little new year's joy. Every competent person in Washington, I think, is prepared for bad news ahead; thinks the news is likely to be bad for at least three months—that is the minimum estimate. The news may be prevaillingly bad for six months. Conceivably when next we have another New Year's day, we may still be in the stage of gathering our momentum.

Murray Finds Fault

Labor Supply Policy

Asserting that the Government has established no "coherent labor supply policy" for the war and defense emergency, C. I. O. President Philip Murray yesterday asked President Roosevelt to centralize all jurisdiction of the problem in the Department of Labor.

Murray's suggestion, made in a letter to the President and released by the C. I. O., declared that this country's entrance into the war "has greatly intensified the problems surrounding labor supply" and that it was of the utmost importance to utilize the Nation's workers as effectively as possible.

He declared that the failure to effect a coherent policy resulted in large part from the fact that responsibility has been scattered among several agencies which have not cooperated closely with organized labor. Murray suggested that the United States Employment Offices, under the Social Security Board, be transferred to the Labor Department.

Although the C. I. O. president did not mention the agency, his letter was seen as a reflection on the OPM labor division. Officials of the division pointed to the fact that the labor supply program has generally been conceded one of the brightest spots of the defense program, and that contrary to expectations a year ago, labor has been trained and supplied promptly to meet all production demands.

They declared they knew of no major production project stalled or delayed for lack of skilled workmen.

Disputing Murray's charge of lack of coherence, they explained that the employment offices report, in effect, to the OPM division, which also has jurisdiction over the training aspects of the war labor situation. They pointed to the existence of a National Labor Supply Policy Committee, comprised among others of six trade union leaders, advising with the division.

They asserted that this duplicated the pattern followed in Britain which Murray commended in his letter.

G.O.P. to Back War Budget, Martin Says

House Republicans will support a 50-billion-dollar war budget, provided President Roosevelt is able to demonstrate that expenditures on such a tremendous scale will move the Nation along the road to victory, Minority Leader Martin declared yesterday.

The stocky Republican chieftain, who spent the first day of the new year at his desk in the Capitol, pledged full backing for the President in all measures "for the successful prosecution of the war."

But when it comes to spending money, he explained, "we'll have to be shown that appropriations requested will advance the war effort."

The war comes first, Martin declared, and he expressed the hope that until the victory is won the Administration will not press for measures that come under the head of "social reform."

Conference on Tap

In a few days, House Republicans will meet in one of their regular conferences. By that time, the President's state of the Union and budget messages will have been delivered, the Administration's program for the new session will be known and Republican opinion will have had a chance to crystallize.

Martin emphasized that now, as never before, the country needs strong party organizations, both Republican and Democratic, and that the American people must not be allowed to believe that there is any possibility of wartime suspension of elections.

The Republican leader, who also is his party's National Committee chairman, explained that only through strong organization can the party be in a position to offer the country a sound reconstruction program in the upheaval that is certain to follow the war.

Sees Few "Casualties"

Martin expressed the opinion that isolationists who fought the President's prewar program step by step for the most part would not become political casualties in this year's Congressional elections chiefly because any attack on their record is subject to criticism as inciting disunity.

Recalling that some consideration is being given in the Senate to attaching a wage stabilization provision to the pending price bill, Martin said that such a measure hardly would be rejected by the House if accepted by the Senate and approved in conference.

Facing The Future

By Barnet Nover

The Task Before Us

AT THE BEGINNING of 1942 the American people can face the future with confidence but hardly with complacence.

NOVER

The combined potential strength of the anti-Axis coalition is truly stupendous. We have the man power, the raw material resources, the industrial equipment and skills, the determination to insure ultimate victory.

In a very real sense we are only at the very beginning of our effort. Our enemies, on the other hand, have collectively already passed their peak. Italy is tottering. Germany has just suffered a costly defeat from which she may never fully recover. Japan has won astounding victories during the past four weeks. But her resources are severely limited. Unless she can continue the pace she has set since December 7 the time factor which she has employed with such stunning effect against the United States and Great Britain will sooner or later begin to operate against her.

We shall not win the war by adding together the gold we have buried at Fort Knox, the ore in our hills, the man-power resources we possess but fail to apply, the industrial facilities we permit to remain idle or to be used for other than war purposes. Wealth must not be confused with strength. The only wealth that counts in the present crisis consists of planes and tanks and guns and ships on hand and capable of being used together with the men trained to use them.

The events of the past few weeks have revealed the glaring inadequacy of our preparations. The staggering blows we have suffered, from the attack on Pearl Harbor which should have come as no surprise, to the loss of Manila, which should never have been lost, were not so much the consequence of the enemy's strength as of our own weakness. We had had just as much time to prepare for the defense of our Pacific outposts as the enemy had had to prepare the assault upon them. We wasted our time. Japan did not waste hers. That is why at Pearl Harbor, at Wake, Guam and Manila we lost and Japan won.

THERE MUST BE no sidestepping the tragic fact that we have recently suffered the greatest succession of military and naval disasters in our entire history. Our position in the Pacific, if by no means irretrievable or desperate, is nonetheless dark.

At Ottawa Winston Churchill said that Singapore can and will be held. Let us hope that events will bear him out. The latest news from Malaya is, indeed, sufficiently encouraging to suggest that the British premier was not speaking out of character by assuming the role of wishful thinker. Yet the Allies face a real struggle at Singapore.

The loss of Hongkong, Manila and the North Borneo colony of Sarawak means the acquisition by Japan of bases and footholds on the South China Sea which, could they have been retained by the Allies, might very considerably have complicated and impeded the enemy's southward drive to Singapore, the Dutch East Indies and Australia. The occupation of Thailand and the penetration of Northern Malaya have made it possible for the Japanese to harass Singapore constantly from the air.

Nor can it be said that the price which Japan has paid for its gains of the past four weeks is excessive. The indications all point the other way, regardless of the circumstance that, in the long run, the island empire cannot stand attrition as well as we can. The fact of greatest importance at the moment is that because of what Japan has recently gained and what we have lost she will be able to retain the offensive, the Allies will more than ever have to remain on the defensive in the Pacific.

WE HAVE LOST the first round. We may, as a consequence, be so weakened during the next weeks as to be unable to win the next rounds. We have not lost the battle. We certainly have not lost the war. For the war is a war of world dimensions and in the larger theater the Allies have scored important victories as well as suffering major defeats.

We shall certainly not lose the war if the efforts we exert from this time on are commensurate with the grim task which faces us.

This task is a fourfold one. In the Pacific we must, together with our British, Dutch and Chinese Allies do what we can to stem the Japanese advance to the south. We may have to give way at first. The loss of Hongkong, Manila, Wake Island, Guam, Northern Malaya, Sarawak, have weakened our strengthened Japan's strategic position in the Pacific. It will take time to right the balance. We can ill-afford to let any grass grow under our feet in righting that balance as speedily as possible.

IN EUROPE aid must continue to be sent to the Russians to enable them to press forward against the most powerful member of the Axis. In the North Atlantic we must continue to keep open the supply line to Britain. In the meantime this hemisphere must be safeguarded against attack. In that connection an ever watchful eye must be kept on Vichy, the French fleet, Spain, West Africa. We cannot for a moment afford the luxury of assuming that Hitler has already shot his bolt and is now too weak to indulge in ventures far from home, notably in West Africa. We must, on the contrary, assume that he will try to retrieve his losses in Russia by victories elsewhere.

The task that faces us is a gigantic one. It means that we must step up our production of planes, tanks, guns, ships, and other war necessities to levels we have never dreamed of before. Business as usual must, from now on, be out the window. The entire resources of the Nation, now more than ever the arsenal of the anti-Axis coalition, must be harnessed to the common needs. Only then can we take victory for granted. And if we do all that we are capable of doing the victory we plan to win and have every reason to expect may be within our grasp much sooner than we have a right to anticipate at this time.

Two Launchings a Day Is Goal Of U. S. Shipbuilders in 1942

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—The United States of America, already undertaking the mightiest feat in shipbuilding of any maritime nation in all history, entered the new year seeking a heretofore undreamed-of production rate designed to overwhelm all enemies in the far parts of the world.

The National Council of American Shipbuilders disclosed today that in ever-rising crescendo, riveting hammers drummed out 129 seagoing commercial vessels totaling 1,478,800 tons and 55 naval vessels totaling 244,595 tons during 1941.

Commercial and naval vessels under construction as the New Year came in constitute a greater volume than the world has ever seen in any one nation, the council said.

Stimulated by lend-lease legislation, more than 100 commercial vessels were converted to naval or military uses, while repairs and other work for foreign account were very heavy.

Almost One a Day

Launching of commercial ships, almost one a day at present, are expected to double before the end of this year and, by the end of 1943, amount to not less than 1400 vessels, aggregating 13,500,000 tons and costing more than three billion dollars.

The Navy Department program also indicated a constantly accelerated launching rate, the council said.

Forging ever farther ahead of schedules, shipbuilding and repair facilities mushroomed from 170 larger building ways to 406 by the end of 1941, while fitting-out piers, drydocks, machine shops, foundries, powerhouses and other shipbuilding essentials increased proportionately.

The number of wage earners in shipyards surged steadily upward from 132,000 in January, 1940, to 240,700 in January, 1941. Last October they numbered 433,000, and now 537,000 are employed. Before the end of 1942, they are expected to number 720,000 or more. Their average weekly earnings increased from $34.03 in July, 1940, to $45.59 in July, 1941.

The old year saw some outstanding records established in the building time for vessels—the 10,000-ton "C" type cargo vessel Vanguard was completed from keel-laying to launching in four months; the 12,700-ton tanker Sinclair H-C in 63 working days; and virtually all types of fighting and merchant craft were launched ahead of schedule.

Program Geared Higher

Since Pearl Harbor, Wake, Guam and the Philippines, the program is geared higher. The 1941 Naval building program launched only 7685 tons in the first quarter, but then rose by quarters to 46,475 to 76,925 to 113,510 tons—to provide sister ships and other warcraft to accompany the mighty 35,000-ton superdreadnaughts Washington and North Carolina on their assignments abroad.

On September 30, 1941, American shipbuilders had contracts totaling $6,400,000,000 for naval and commercial vessels, including 60 cargo ships for Britain.

"Given a constant flow of materials, equipment and the uninterrupted service of labor," said the council, "the industry may be wholly depended upon to produce the 'plus' effort necessary to make available the ships which are so essential to complete victory over the enemies of democracy and for the preservation of the freedom of the seas."

The Gallup Poll

U. S. Workers Willing to Have 2% From Pay Deducted to Buy Defense Stamps or Bonds

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 1.—New evidence of the willingness of the American people to make financial sacrifices for the war effort is revealed in a survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

This survey finds that a sizable majority of the American working population would be willing to have their employers take 2c out of every dollar of their wages—or 2 per cent—each payday to buy defense bonds or stamps. The number willing to accept this idea has more than doubled since the Japanese attack on Hawaii in early December.

Thus far the United States Treasury, while promoting the defense bond drive with wide publicity, has left it up to individual citizens to buy these bonds or stamps on a purely voluntary basis. The significance of the Institute survey is its indication that, should some plan for payroll deductions to buy bonds become necessary, it would likely meet with little resistance from the majority of the American working public.

The issue put to a cross-section of all employed persons throughout the United States was as follows:

"Would you be willing to have your employer take a small part—say 2 cents out of every dollar—of your wages or salary each payday to buy defense bonds or stamps for you?"

The results are:

YES	69%
NO	19
UNDECIDED	12

Before America's entrance into war, the idea of compulsory purchases of defense bonds or stamps was not approved by the majority. This was indicated in an Institute survey in October—six weeks before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Results of that earlier study dealing with a similar question, which emphasized compulsory buying, are shown below.

"Would you favor a law for buying defense bonds or stamps which would make it compulsory for everybody to invest 2 cents out of every dollar of their salary, wages or other income in defense stamps or bonds?"

VOTE OF EMPLOYED PERSONS (Before Jap Attack)

YES	33%
UNDECIDED	6

December than at any time since before the British disaster in Greece and Crete, according to a survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Gallup Poll.

The survey was completed just before Churchill left London for his visit to Washington. The results follow:

"In general, do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Churchill as Prime Minister?"

Approve	88%
Disapprove	8
Undecided	4

This vote of confidence compares with 84 per cent in a similar British Institute survey in October, 87 per cent in June, 88 per cent in March, and 85 per cent last January.

British, Reds Claim 13,000 Axis Planes Downed in 1941

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—Cumulative figures compiled from British official reports show that the Axis lost 8935 planes in the Middle East and Western Europe, and the British 3961 from the beginning of the war to the end of 1941.

The losses in the same areas during 1941 were 4093 for the Axis and 2189 for the British.

Taking into account Rusian claims that more than 5000 German planes have been destroyed in the East, the Axis has lost nearly 14,000 planes in action since the start of the war.

Grady Named San Francisco Reserve Bank Chairman

Henry F. Grady, former Assistant Secretary of State, yesterday was appointed chairman and Federal Reserve Agency of the Federal Bank of San Francisco.

Grady, who left the State Department to head the Government-owned American Presidents Steamship Line (formerly Dollar Line), succeeds R. C. Force, who is retiring. Grady also will continue with the steamship company.

The Federal Reserve Board also said it was arranging for a new chairman to replace Frederic H. Curtiss in the Boston bank and J. H. Merritt in the Dallas bank, both of whom expect to retire.

Announcing its annual list of officers and directors of the Federal Reserve banks, the board said it was reappointing for 1942 the chairmen of the nine other banks. They are:

New York, Beardsley Ruml; Philadelphia, Thomas B. McCabe; Cleveland, George C. Brainard; Richmond, Robert Lassiter; Atlanta, Frank M. Neely; Chicago, Frank J. Lewis; St. Louis, William T. Nardin; Minneapolis, W. C. Coffey; Kansas City, R. B. Caldwell.

Deputy chairman of ten of the banks were reappointed. The two new deputies are Simeon E. Leland in the Chicago bank and Robert L. Mehornay in the Kansas City bank.

Blizzard Howls Over Iowa; 2 Dead

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 1 (AP).—A driving snowstorm of blizzard proportions swept across Iowa today, depositing more than 15 inches of snow in some sections, drifting highways, disrupting communication facilities and causing two highway fatalities. Two deaths were reported.

It was still snowing heavily over the State at midday and the Weather Bureau predicted it would continue into the night, accompanied by sub-zero readings in the west section of the State.

Reduced visibility resulting from the blinding snow was blamed for the highway deaths of Miss Florence Ewing, 21, farm domestic living near Des Moines, and Mrs. Louis Klein, 22, of Iowa City. They were hit by a truck and automobile, respectively.

Einstein Gets Stenog's O.K. On Dictation

MISS LIETTA SHEARER,

By Frank Carey

Associated Press Staff Writer

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 1.—Consider the pretty blonde stenographer who got the surprise assignment of taking the dictation of Dr. Albert Einstein.

Such was the experience the other night of Miss Lietta Shearer, 18-year-old graduate of Princeton High School, who has been a stenographer in the science division of Princeton University since last July.

In an interview, the slender, blue-eyed girl recalled how she felt when she was asked on Monday afternoon to bring her notebook to the Intstitute of Advanced Study, where that evening the noted German-Jewish refugee scientist was to address a joint meeting of the American Physical Society and the American Association of Physics Teachers. The latter meeting closed yesterday.

Einstein's discussion was a little item, "On Solutions of Finite Mass of the Gravitational Equations," but, while Miss Shearer hadn't even read the title beforehand, it wasn't so much the thought of scientific vocabulary that bothered her as the thought that Einstein might spring someting new.

But she found that Dr. Einstein's dictation "wasn't so difficult to take as some I had taken before."

"He doesn't speak too rapidly," was her version, stenographically speaking, "and his enunciation was perfect. For example, he didn't slur his "ings" as some men do, and while his accent bothered me at first, I soon got accustomed to it.

"The feature that struck me the most was that, while he had no notes, every statement was a complete thought. He didn't bring in a lot of "ers" and "and-ahs," nor did he leave sentences half finished in the manner of some speakers who cause the stenographer to cross out a half-finished sentence and then start all over again from scratch."

She said Einstein had one pet expression that he rang in over and over again, and that was "infinitesimally small."

Companion stenographer with Miss Shearer was Miss Agnes Fleming, of Lawrenceville, N. J. She had taken Dr. Einstein's dictation before.

"One thing I noticed," Miss Fleming recalled, "was that occasionally he would make an aside to a professor to ask, 'How do you express that term in English?' but never did he lose the train of his thought."

Blaze Ravages Brazilian Ship In Brooklyn

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—A choking fire in a cargo of coffee, cocoa and castor beans today threatened to destroy the 6750-ton Brazilian freighter Pocone at her Brooklyn pier near the Navy yard and Governors Island, First Army Headquarters.

Fifteen firemen were treated for smoke poisoning as the blaze bit deeper into the cargo and sent acrid smoke across the East River near State Street.

Soldiers guarded the pier under wartime conditions, barring everyone from the scene. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Army, Navy and Coast Guard officials began an investigation to determine whether sabotage caused the fire.

The blaze was discovered at 8 a. m. The crew of 25 escaped and firemen thought the fire was under control until 2 p. m., when an unexplained series of flames burst from cargo hold No. 2, causing a second and third alarm.

The scene of the fire, Pier 18, is only a few blocks from where fire destroyed Pier 27 and the freighter Panuco last August 18 with a loss of 37 lives.

East Hartford, Conn., Jan. 1 (AP). The $200,000 dredge Lawrence was destroyed by fire in the Connecticut River today soon aft. " completing a three-year job of clearing a channel. The crew of 15 escaped uninjured in two tugs.

The wreckage of the 175-foot wooden-hulled craft sank in 20 feet of water five hours after the fire started.

Flaming Gasoline Floods Streets

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 1 (AP).—Blazing gasoline spreading over flooded streets early today caused injury to two persons and endangered the lives of scores of New Year revelers returning from night clubs.

A coludburst flooding the streets was believed to have caused the gasoline to seep from a filling station storage tank. It was ignited by an automobile exhaust.

Four business establishments and three residences were destroyed. Several explosions occurred during the fire.

Point Pleasant, W. Va., Jan. 1 (AP). The freshly painted gray and red hull of the Armistead, third of a fleet of 16 mine planters being constructed by the Marietta Manufacturing Co., for the Army Quartermaster Corps at a cost of $1,100,000 each, skidded down greased ways and into the Ohio River today.

The Armistead was named for Col. George Armistead, a Virginian who won his spurs for gallantry in action at Fort McHenry, Md., in the War of 1812.

A.W.O.L. Charlie McCarthy To Get His Due From Army

By the Associated Press

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 1.—Charlie McCarthy, the two-timing blockhead who accepted sergeant commissions in both the Air Corps and the Marines, will be called to account soon for his double dealing.

Col. J. H. Davidson, commanding officer of March Field, today disclosed that Charlie has been A. W. O. L. since July and that he has approved Charlie's transfer to Moffett Field, Sacramento, Calif.

McCarthy won't escape court-martial, however. He was ordered to appear January 18 at Moffett Field to defend himself against a charge of having wangled a sergeant major's commission from the U. S. Marine Corps while serving as a master sergeant in the Air Corps.

Col. Davidson didn't mince words in his official transfer order.

"The transfer is granted . . . on grounds that it is good riddance of a two-faced soldier," he wrote. He recommended that "Moffett Field accept Master Sergeant McCarthy with a shaker full of salt and take whatever action the commanding officer deems necessary for the honor of the U. S. Army Air Corps." He added:

"Inclosed is March Field record of Master Sergeant McCarthy:

"October 31, 1940—A. W. O. L. Back with blonde hairs on lapels.

"May 2, 1941—A. W. O. L. Back with brunette hairs on lapels.

"June 1, 1941—A. W. O. L. Back with Marine uniform in his kit.

"July 1, 1941—A. W. O. L. Back with red hairs on lapels.

Death Stills Famed Voice of Tenor Hacket

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—Charles Hackett, 52, a tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company who has sung at many concerts in the United States, South America, Europe and Australia, died today after an appendectomy at Mary Immaculate Hospital, Jamaica, Queens. He entered the hospital Monday.

A singer since his youth, when he was a member of the Worcester (Mass.) High School Glee Club, he later sang with Mme. Nordica at the age of 19, and with Gluck, Homer and Witherspoon.

After studying voice in Florence, Italy, he made his debut in "Mignon" in Genoa, in 1916. He then was engaged to sing at La Scala, making 14 appearances there.

His debut with the Metropolitan was made in 1919 in "The Barber of Seville." He joined the Chicago Civic Opera Company in 1923, and returned to the Metropolitan in 1933.

Hackett last sang at the Metropolitan in 1939. Since then he had taught at the Juillard School of Music here and had devoted much time to private teaching.

Hackett was born November 4, 1889, at Worcester, Mass. He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Virginia Zucchi, and three children, Carla, Joan and Charles. He lived at Little Neck, Long Island.

Indo-China ranks second to Algeria among the French dependencies.

SUDY BAND INTO COSMOS ROOM. Joseph Sudy and his orchestra, a thrill of the West Coast, will open in the Cosmos Room on Monday. Though this band has scored its major successes in the West, Leader Sudy, a topflight singing violinist, has made vocal records for Columbia, Victor and Decca; has also been featured personally in such snazzy New York spots as the Astor, Pierre, Central Park Casino and Biltmore . . . The Sudy music is predominantly sweet, with accent on Pan-American rhythm and Viennese waltzes. Stars of the orchestra include singer Marion Marlowe, "hot" vocalist Sid Sudy, a singing trio and a concert ensemble . . . Manager Frank Swadley of the Carlton was so taken with the Sudy band when he heard them in Dallas last winter, that he signed them immediately . . . Tonight and tomorrow are your last chances to say "Au 'voir" to Carmen Cavallaro, who's off to the New York Rainbow Room.

Night spot managers on Connecticut Avenue are busily learning all there is to know about air raid alarms. Jack Varela, manager of the Versailles, is air raid warden for his block, and one of his chief aides is suave George Osmolovski, manager of the Balalaika.

SATURDAY NEPTUNE EXCITEMENT. Grant Thompson, radio and movie star, will bring his Six Swingcopaters and that singing sweetie, Penny Paige, into the Neptune Room tomorrow afternoon. Besides being a swingster from away back, and tremendously good looking to boot, Grant Thompson is also a ranch owner and a bona fide, dyed-in-the-wool cowboy. He was in Washington last year when he led a 15-piece dance band in the Wardman Metronome Room, reaped scads of popularity. The new Thompson Swingcopaters will include comedian Paul Schlegel, "In between music" will be by accordionist Don Mills and songstress Penny Paige. P. S. The stupendous Arnold Trio won the Neptune "Talent Tryout." More about 'em later.

BAND-IN-A-HURRY. Mrs. Evalyn McLean invited guests and made all preparations for her New Year's Eve party at Friendship—except that she forgot to get a band. At 7:30 on New Year's Eve she called up Maestro Dave McWilliams, Washington manager for Meyer Davis, who was just leaving for the swank party at the Mansfield Country Club up at Fredericksburg. What to do! . . . The redoubtable McWilliams managed by calling up musicians from every burg between here and Fredericksburg. By the time he reached the Mansfield Club he was weak but triumphant. Mrs. McLean's Meyer Davis band arrived at Friendship at 11 p. m.

SPOTLIGHT! The new Spotlight Guild (for musicians and show people only) at Fifth and K Streets Northwest, got away to a speedy start. Survivors of the opening party report that they all got home safely by 7 a. m. Most of the musicians around town and their girl friends, too, joined in the opening "jam session."

A REAL DANCER is young Peter Birch, now appearing at the Casino Royal. He's so good that you're both afraid for him and still believe that his name should stand beside Paul Draper's one of these days. Peter is only 19, but has been guest star of the National Ballet, came to the Casino Royal direct from New York's La Conga. He combines a virile and astounding tap rhythm with slippery ballet pivots in a matador dance and purely modernistic numbers.

Was the new "400" restaurant embarrassed the other day! Exactly when Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy ordered a malted milk, the malted milk machine broke down!

ABOUT LOVELY CREATURES. Lady Vine, ingratiating and pretty, will return to Washington some time next week as singing hostess of Cafe Caprice. She's one of the constant fans of Nelson Bell, Post drama ed, says, "Tell Nels I always read his last line first" . . . Violinist Jane Marlow, of Restaurant "823," is the spirit of "Deep Purple' these eves in deep violet liberally besprinkled with matching spangles . . . Dorothy Murray, new singer at the King Cole Room, has the most fascinating hair. Its a red so dark that it doesn't look red except where the light strikes a curl . . . Listen well to singer Sylvia Gould at the Plymouth while you can. For Sylvia is soon to become a Government girl. Another sacrifice for defense . . . Helen Myers, the piquant little novarchordist-pianist at Burt's Trans-Lux, is studying violin in her spare time, is especially fond of Victor Herbert and Friml music . . . Madelyn White, daintiest of little blonde steppers, is due to return to Paul Young's next Tuesday after her engagement at the Dunes Club, Pinehurst, N. C.

O'Donnell's Farmhouse has finally closed for the winter. Its manager, Lee Best, is now in charge of the older O'Donnell's restaurant on E Street.

MILTON SOUNDS OFF. "Do you know "One Hour Tonight"? Then you know "Elmer's Tune." And if you remember "Over the Rainbow," you know "There'll be Bluebirds Over the White Hills of Dover." That's the sapient comment of Maestro Milton Davis of the Rainbow Room on a couple of the new hits.

COULD YOU HAVE MISSED "Fun's-A-Poppin,'" the current Lotus revue? If you made such an error, you'd better retrieve it this week end. It's one of gayest shows of the season. Midget dancer Betty is a show in herself and the line beauties prance in imitation of the "Chattanooga Choo Choo," then go ballet in Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours." Ed Rickard, the "Hollywood shadow man," performs minor miracles in silhouette movies with his hands. A new show will debut at the Lotus on Monday, including "Elsie, the Cow," done by Lane and Carroll, acrodancer Marjorie Jane, juggler Lew Folds and an octet of beauties.

Only singer in the city who can warble in Greek is "Ginger" James of the Viking. She lived on the isle of Cyprus for nearly three years, knows many old Greek folk songs.

LOVELY LISTENING. The wonderful soprano of Marjorie Gainsworth at the Troika. It mounts with the dazzle of a searchlight . . . Those jolly tunes from "Banjo Eyes" being played by Dick Koons' band in the Mayflower Lounge . . . The nostalgic quality of "Stormy Weather" when Jean Janis sings it with Layton Bailey's band in the Metronome Room. It's her own pet tune . . . The smooth and resonant baritoning of David Sorin in the Shoreham Blue Room . . . The way some of the customers sing and whistle their favorite tunes along with Ida Clarke's organing in the Loung Riviera. Some of 'em are pretty good . . . The slick melodizing of El Patio's Stylists. Just the kind of music preferred by young people . . . Carmela Lazari's delicate sopranoing of "Will You Remember Hawaii?" in the Hi Hat . . . The trimmed-up version of Do "Dolores" played by Bert Bernath's band in the Pall Mall Room. The way "Babalu" is given every tropic throb in the Copocabana by Phil Vidal's rumba band.

LOT OF THE PROPHET. Leo, seer of the Mayfair, thought of putting his prognostications into the newspapers regularly until a great editor discouraged him with the sage statement, "People don't pay any attention to prophecies until after they happen."

That big New Year's party over at Kavakos' Grill that nearly shook the northeast to smithereens, will be continued right over the week end, floor shows and all, but without the holiday admission charge.

THE NIGHTINGALE is coming up for air after a colossal greeting to 1942, is all ready for the week end crowd that dance at the 'Gale on Friday and Saturday every week in the year. Jack Maggio's band polishes up the new hits as fast as they come from the publishers, gives them a real "solid sending."

NOW THAT 1942 is really in, you'd better start building up your vitamins for the big year ahead. We can think of no better way than sitting yourself down before one of those huge and so-tender sirloin steaks at the Olmsted's Grill. They'll make you feel like Jack Dempsey in his championship fettle.

Today's Social Notes

(From The Truthtown Torch)

In a social defy to the Axis powers, Truthtown notables heroically carried on their New Year activities. Mrs. Badminton Bellwether valiantly shook hands with 700 or more callers at her annual reception at her palatial town house. "I simply could not let my intimate friends down at a time like this," explained Mrs. Bellwether.

The Pandemonium Room of the Hotel Swank was a Mecca Wednesday night for celebrants who vied with each other in noise-making to welcome 1942. "I am in no mood for this," declared Adelbert Mutton, who in a yellow dunce cap was loudly tooting a striped horn, "but I feel it my duty to carry on."

A mix-up in guests occurred at the Cafe Lounge Lizard, where both the Alexander Rhumbas and the Atterbury Husks entertained large parties. A head waiter getting Mr. Rhumba and Mr. Husk confused, escorted the Rhumba guests to the Husk table and vice versa. However, no one discovered the mistake until the bills were brought and both hosts decided it was too late to straighten matters out then.

'See My Manager'

War work and social activities combined are proving so arduous for Miss Daphne Dazzle glamour deb and daughter of Mrs. James Fenimore Dazzle that a manager has been employed to handle her affairs. The manager who is merely known as "Mr. Nibbs," will be in charge of all Miss Dazzle's social dates, war activities, commercial indorsements and public appearances.

Interesting Work

Mrs. Parvenu Popinjay has resigned her position as a $1 a year woman in defense—a position she fought so persistently with her social rival, Mrs. Roswell Clymer, to obtain.

"The work definitely is not interesting," said Mrs. Popinjay yesterday." My time is too valuable to be spent in routine activities that can be performed by a $15 a week clerk. Besides my duties were interfering with my life as a mother."

Mrs. Popinjay's subdeb daughter, Valerie, will return from Miss Snoot's School the end of the next semester and her mother expects to entertain extensively for her.

New Career

Mrs. Featherton Daubler, who to date has engaged in 27 different careers, has opened a new enterprise, a country home for refugee pets. Mrs. Daubler will care for the dogs, cats, birds, monkeys, etc., of her friends so that the latter may be released for defense activities. "Many valuable women have not been able to give their whole time to their country's defense because of home ties," said Mrs. Daubler. "My enterprise will set them free for bigger things." Mrs. Daubler also said she was prepared to take care of children and husbands of busy socialites harassed by war duties.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Shocked by Girl's Statement That She Loves Him, Young Government Employe Asks How to Treat Her; He Persuaded Her to Leave Home and Get Job Here

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man, almost 20 years of age. I have been working for the Government in Washington for about four months. Besides working, I am studying accounting at night and expect to have a degree in about two years. My aim in life is to be a successful accountant. So much for background. Here is my problem;

About 18 months ago, while living in my home town, I met a girl about my age, who lived in a town 75 miles away. I was immediately and very much attracted to her and during the next few months, I went to see her four or five times, staying over the weekend, either at her home or with relatives. Both of us were attending school at the time. After some months, I was unable to visit her over a lengthy period. And during this time, although we wrote regularly, we seemed to be growing farther and farther apart.

I was planning to visit her last June, when I was called to a city some distance away, where I remained until August. Then I came here—without seeing her again. I was home for a few days, however, and just before leaving for Washington I received a very affectionate letter from her (forwarded from the city where I had been).—asking when I was coming to visit her; and saying she was very eager to see me. I telephoned her at once and said I was leaving for Washington; and after talking with her for some time, I realized I still liked her very much.

Well, I came here and, after much correspondence, I decided it would be wonderful if she could come to Washington. I persuaded her to try for a job here, which she did. She was successful in finding a position and came to Washington two weeks ago. Since she works days and I work nights, we have seen each other only about five times.

And now for the hitch: Last Saturday night, after work, I went to see her. And during the course of the visit, while we were seated close together on the davenport, she told me she had something important to tell me. I urged her to go ahead and she did. She told me she loved me very much! I can't tell you how surprised I was to hear this. I knew she cared for me a great deal, but I never thought of it is love. She said she never would have told me this, except that we seemed to be drifting toward intimacy.

Miss Haworth, I know I am not in love with this girl. In fact, I don't believe I like her as much as I did a year ago. She doesn't seem as attractive to me now as she did then—mainly because she has gained a great deal of weight. Frankly, I am rather regretful that I persuaded her to come to Washington. I cannot let myself get serious with any girl—mainly because of my educational program; and I am afraid I should have considered this more fully before urging her to come here. However, I had no idea she would take our friendship so seriously.

I told her I liked her very much. (I couldn't say I loved her, when I don't). She realized that I don't love her, and told me she didn't want to see me any more. She said this would be very hard; but would be best in the long run. She went upstairs and left me. I felt very perplexed and blue. Next morning, on thinking things over, I felt better. I realized it would take a while to forget her, but it didn't appear very hard to do. However, I was still a little blue and more than a little puzzled.

That afternoon, she telephoned and asked whether she could change her mind. I said, "Yes." She asked me to come over and I did. We talked things over and decided we should try to stick together. I told her I didn't see how she could be in love with me; but she said again that she is. She also said that if we weren't to see each other again, she was going to leave Washington. I don't see how this would be possible; but I believe she would do so.

So now, we're together again. Maybe I can fall in love with her yet; and maybe I can't. Yesterday, I told her I never would say I am in love with her, if I'm not. I am greatly puzzled as to what I should do. Something tells me that I've done completely wrong. Should I keep on going with her, even though our affection for each other differs so greatly? I shall be more than grateful for your help in this matter. Sincerely.

Clarify the Record, In Blunt Discussion

DEAR C. W. K.: The girl's frank declaration of love was an instinctively honest, self protective gesture, in the circumstances. Without being consciously aware of the reason for her act, she sensed that the time had come to challenge you into reflecting seriously on just what the relationship meant to you. And she hoped, undoubtedly, to hear you say you cared as much for her as she does for you. Your dismayed, incredulous reaction to her ingenuous admission shows you totally wanting in sophistication, although that lack is certainly more to your credit than otherwise.

It is not strange that she would have taken your "friendship so seriously." When a young man maintains constant correspondence with a girl, makes long trips to see her whenever possible, and urges her to find employment in the city where he lives,—she is certainly justified in inferring that he is deeply and sentimentally interested in her. (As, in truth, he is; whether or not he realizes that fact). Furthermore, a girl who is a "square-shooter" in her dealings with boys doesn't encourage such significant attentions from a man, unless she is tentatively in love with him. Only the calloused scalp hunter unfeelingly does that: giving each beau to think he is first in her thoughts, while adroitly convincing him that he is contending against a large field of rivals.

One might say that the girl has bungled badly—if she aspires to claim your love. For there is no denying that the male of the species is incapable of fully appreciating the love of a female who artlessly deprives him of the thrilling uncertainty of the chase. And yet, inasmuch as you were tacitly "drifting toward intimacy" (as she pointed out, and you don't deny), it was high time for both of you to put your cards on the table.

Your queasy despondency pursuant to her declaration is eloquent of mixed emotions. You are scared by the serious implications of the developing relationship,—and rightly so, since you will not be in a position to marry for some years, and would abhor the thought of staining the record by carelessly exploiting her devotion. Moreover, your erstwhile aggressive interest in her is temporarily blighted by the discovery that she cares disproportionately for you. However, the fact that you waited no second invitation to resume the discomfiting relationship indicates that she has a profoundly companionable appeal for you,—despite her non-glamorous appearance.

(Incidentally, with regard to her recent disfiguring gain in weight, I advise you to chide her about it. Tell her bluntly you don't like it and, if she values your approval, to slim herself down. You will be doing her a lasting favor in persuading her to practice girth control—since the effect of one's figure on one's personality and experiences has far-reaching influence, for good or ill, psychically and socially.)

As for whether it is wise to perpetuate the relationship,—I think that is for you and the girl to decide, after threshing out your respective, discordant plans and hopes and feelings in full detail, in a mutual spirit of courageous and scrupulous honesty. If it is indeed true that you don't love the girl, doubt that you ever could, and would And it comparatively easy to forget her in a short time,—tell her so now. Don't pull your punches or beat around the bush. It is no kindness to spare her feelings with evasive half-truths. And it would be hideously selfish to keep a toehold in her life,—just on the chance that you might later undergo a tepid change of heart.

Make plain to her what you have said here: that you cannot afford to get serious with any girl, because of your educational program; that you now regret having urged her to come here; feel worried and guilty over the turn of events; and think it might be best if she returned home, supposing you are her chief reason for staying here. If, after getting that verison of your attitude, she decides to stay on, and still courts your friendship—I see no reason why you should not call on her, as often as is mutually agreeable.

But now is the time to clarify the record—so far as you are concerned. Unless you do so, and at once, your fundamental attitude for her can never assert itself—as essentially disinterested or essentially devoted. Your real feeling for her would always be muddied and obscured by conflicting reactions of guilty responsibility and defensive distaste—if you tried to carry on from here, as though nothing momentous had happened. Supposing she goes away and later you learn that you love her, there are years ahead in which to mend the breach—and her love will survive the strain, if it is as great as she thinks it is.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

That Little Touch of White Again Heralds Spring

That touch of white is back again and more significant than ever. White trims give spring life to the basic dress (which is holding its own) and decorate the important torso tucked two-piece dress. While white touches may include every type from satin to pique, the lacy, lingerie effect on dark sheers is new and fresh looking. These lingerie-trimmed styles include some one and two-piece dresses, as well as a few jacket frocks. Miniature ruffles of white lace or eyelet fabric often appear at the neck and on short sleeves, above or just reaching the elbow. The effect of the short sleeves and long torso gives a silhouette not unlike the one in a Bouche portrait of Mme. de Pompadour with many ruffled short sleeves and a diminutive, pointed waistline

LEFT—The simple black crepe frock, worn by Radio Actress Peggy Knudsen, is relieved by deep white lace cuffs and matching hat. The cuffs remove for laundering.

War Is Giving Private Cares A Bit of Rest

By Ida Jean Kain

ONE THING about a national crisis, it gives you a better perspective on your private worries. You can't be bothered with routine cares when there is a war to be won.

Certainly this has proved true in England, where in the face of constant bombardment and the ever-hanging threat of invasion, the people simply forgot about their chronic neuroses. Dr. Robert Dick Gillespie, British psychiatric specialist, reported here recently that there has been a sharp drop in the percentage of neurotic women. The reason is, they are no longer idle.

And it looks as though we can expect to be healthily busy here in America. We can't take time to stew and fret when there is so much to be done.

Avoid Tension

But don't substitute tension for worry. If you find yourself getting tied up in knots from listening to the news broadcasts, ration your listening. This is no time to get yourself into a state. It would be better to turn off the radio and get out and walk in the fresh air. Try to stay out for a full hour and walk briskly. Fresh air itself is a bracer. And vigorous work for the muscles induces normal fatigue and subsequent relaxation of both muscles and nerves.

Under pressure, we are inclined to go at too hectic a pace. Haste is the quickest way to build up tension. Besides, it is disorganizing. The tension that finally wears you down is the accumulation of many minor strains—hurrying to catch a train; leaving yourself too little time to keep an appointment and having to push; going against red lights and dodging traffic; bolting your meals and rushing off to do something else. At the end of such a hectic day you are exhausted nervously and you cannot relax and get your rest.

How To Hurry

This is the time to take yourself in hand. When you do have to move fast, make it a rule not to hurry inwardly. That gets you nowhere. Allow more time for keeping appointments and walk to some of them. This will give you the exercise needed to keep you in condition. And, above all, relax at mealtime.

And do your part in the defense program. This will give you a sense of personal satisfaction. There is enough to be done now to keep every woman busy and when you are doing all you can you do not worry.

Plenty of Head Room

Hollywood, Calif.—Now it's umbrellas "built for two." On the first rainy day after California's winter hot spell, Brenda Marshall and her husband, Bill Holden, were walking in the rain under a huge umbrella for two. Both were reticent about the origin of the doorman-sized 'shoot, but it is a good idea.

Exercise to Ban Matronly Look

"DID YOU say she's the older Miss Jones?" "No, I said the younger!" Alas, Miss Jones' matronly bust does make her look a regular dowager!

A case for exercises if there ever was one! For when your figure starts to go matronly at bosom or hip it's a sure sign that the muscles roundabout are getting lazy.

You wouldn't have a heavy, drooping bust if the pectoral muscles on either side were doing their duty So wake them up with a course of exercises like this one, planned to firm and shape the bust into youthful curves.

Get down on hands and knees. Then 1—Swing left arm under chest. 2—Fling left arm sideward and upward as high as possible, lifting head at same time. Do six times with left arm and six with right. Rest. Do 24 in all.

Just as simple exercises also may banish the fatty pads responsible for "piano" legs, for a thick waistline.

In our 40-page booklet, "Beauty And Health Through Simple Exercises," are routines to beautify hips, thighs and legs, posture, neck, arms, shoulders, bust, waistline; to help constipation, aching back and feet; relax tense nerves; restore figure after childbirth.

What Men Think Of Women's Styles

By James M. Vincent

This is one of a series in which men in varied fields discuss women's clothes.

NEXT to a recurring inability to read my own writing the thing that really gets me down is the sight of a woman wearing a grey hat, grey dress, grey stockings and grey shoes. As a matter of fact, I am allergic to light shoes of any color with one exception; if worked over sufficiently by ingenious inquisitors I will confess that a pretty girl on a summer day wearing brown and white shoes appeals to me somewhat—provided she is wearing stockings.

James M. Vincent, New York attorney, here tells what women should and should not wear.

While we are confessing, we might as well admit that most women are more attractive than their clothes! and that clothes should be quiet adornments of the person, not signboards of various sorts. The women who make monkeys out of Thorstein Veblen and the rest of us are the ones whose clothes we forget.

• • • •

POOR Thorstein. He thought "our apparel is always in evidence and affords an indication of our pecuniary standing to all observers at the first glance." Does Klein tell Schiaparelli?

But how could Veblen know. After all, All Men are Beasts and know absolutely nothing about women's clothes since women dress only to arm themselves against the scrutiny and criticism of other women. Mea Culpa, Mea Culpa—the truth of the matter is that most women know more about making themselves attractive to men than Mayor LaGuardia does about hats.

THE occasional aberrations of the sensible girl and the usual aberrations of other girls are the only excuses for a man ever opening his trap on the subject—except to indicate what he likes best.

I like blondes with brown eyes in green, girls with red hair in black, and evening dresses that look old-fashioned. A bit vague admittedly, but then most of us don't know a jabot from a bustle and don't give a damn. What we are interested in is the general effect. Anything in a costume, however attratcive it might be as a separate work of art, fails in its purpose if it stands out too distinctly from the rest.

• • • •

ON the question of women's clothes, I take my stand somewhat to the right of the conservatives and just a wee bit behind them. It's all right with me if the queen of the lime festival appears accoutred in a dress composed entirely of the skins of that delicious fruit, but the gal who shows up for a date in red wedgies, scarlet dress and something on her head that looks like a gift from Amon Carter doesn't get asked again. Most festival queens, it's true, would look O. K. even if they put their snoods on backwards, but you get the idea—leave to Dietrich the things that are hers and we'll get along all right—I hope.

What to Put in a First Aid Kit

WITH practice blackouts and air-raid drills in the offing, it is time for the woman of the house to turn a critical eye upon the contents of her home medicine cabinet. First of all, she must realize that wartime casualties in the home are very different from the sort of home accidents she has seen all her life. Ordinarily a scratch is only a scratch, but a minor skin abrasion from an air raid may cover a serious injury.

The Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration suggests the following list of items. An air-raid volunteer worker who has assembled a kit offers suggestions concerning quantities needed:

Tanic acid jelly compound for burns. No other remedy should be used, for this jelly compound is not greasy or oily. The use of grease over burns is dangerous and very painful when the physician removes it for treatment. Convenient sizes are 1-ounce and 5-ounce tubes.

Aspirin (5-grain tablets) for relief of pain. Should be used in small doses and not too often. May be bought in one-dozen or two-dozen tins or bottles of 100 tablets.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia for faintness. Buy in small quantities and keep well stoppered, as it evaporates rapidly. May be bought ine 1-ounce or 3-ounce bottles.

Baking soda for indigestion or as an emetic. Buy either boxed baking soda or sodium bicarbonate—the latter in ¼-pound or 1-pound size.

Mineral oil and milk of magnesia for laxatives. The oil may be bought by pint or quart; the milk of magnesia by 6, 16 or 32 ounce bottle.

Bandages for a variety of needs. Be careful to keep clean and do not buy in large quantities. Two boxes of 2-inch or one box of 4-inch is recommended.

Sterile gauze should be in sterile, sealed packages and kept sealed until ready for use. May be bought in small-size box, 1 yard square, or one box of larger size, 1 by 5 yrads.

Adhesive tape should be bought in several sizes. Have on hand one roll ½-inch, one roll 1-inch and one roll 2-inch.

Thermometer, scissors and twezers should be kept for first-aid use only. Have a small bottle of alcohol handy for sterilizing. Get small curved blunt scissors or regular bandage scissors. Tweezers should not be too pointed.

The air-raid worker who volunteered some of the above suggestions points out that a basic kit with minimum necessities may be assembled for around $5 by careful buying. A fuller kit will cost around $10. She suggests that the complete list be kept in a small, inexpensive overnight case (which may be bought in a variety store) for quick transportation to any scene of injury.

Miss Dodd Is Wed To David A. Robertson

In a candlelight wedding, Miss Joan Dodd was married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to David Atholl Robertson in the Georgetown home of her mother, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, and Mr. Shouse. Palms and Easter lillies formed the background before the altar where the young couple received their wedding vows. The Rev. George Bailey Kelley officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, Alvin E. Dodd, of New York, and was attended by her step-sister, Mrs. Cuthbert Russell Train, and Miss Barbara Lee Putzki, a former classmate at National Cathedral School. Their gowns were of bayberry green satin made with a quaint dropped shoulder, the balanciaga bodice falling into a bouffant skirt. Their hats were small calots of the same shade of satin with a snood of green tulle. The bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Mrs. John Conway Hunt, Miss Patricia Prochnik, and Mrs. John Murray Robertson, of Birmingham, Ala., wore dresses of the same bayberry green with satin bodices and full tulle skirts of a shade lighter green. Tulle, falling to their shoulders and fastened over their hair with real orange blossoms, was their headdress. The bright modernistic bouquet of carnations and bouvardia was an effective contrast.

Heirloom Lace Trims Gown

The bride's gown was princess style; the high neck, long sleeves and long, tight-fitting bodice was made of rose point lace embroidered with pearls and seed pearls and had been worn by her mother and great-grandmother. The cream-colored full satin train was traditional. She carried a prayerbook with a simple bouquet of Amazon lilies and sprays of lily of the valley tied on satin ribbons.

Mr. Robertson's best man was his brother, John Murray Robertson of Birmingham. His other attendants were J. Munro Hunter, jr., Harold Wilcox Moseley of the Department of State, Frederick Thayer Merrill of the Board of Economic Warfare, Cuthbert Russell Train, Bolling Roines Powell, jr., of Birmingham and Washington, and William Shouse.

Walter Nash was at the organ, which belonged to the bride's great-grandmother, and the other musicians were Jeno Sevely, violinist, William Breonand, cellist, Sol Sax, pianist, all members of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Couple to Live In Georgetown

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Henry Murray Robertson and the late Mr. Robertson. He was graduated with honors from the University of Alabama in 1933. His maternal grandfather founded the Episcopal Church in Alabama and an uncle was the first Bishop of Maryland. Mr. Robertson came to Washington from Houston, Tex., last winter to become head of the Petroleum Section of the Export Control Division of the Department of State. Recently he was transferred to the Board of Economic Warfare. He is a member of Kappa Sigma.

Mrs. Robertson attended the Cathedral School in Washington, Concord Academy in Concord, Mass. and St. Annes School in Charlottesville, Va.

After a brief honeymoon, cut to a minimum because of the war emergency, the young couple will live at the Carolyn, in Georgetown.

Among those who attended the ceremony and the reception which followed were the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Associate Justice Stanley Reed, Associate Justice and Mrs. Robert Jackson and Associate Justice and Mrs. James Byrnes, the undersecretary of War and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon, the Minister of Norway and Mme. de Morgenstierne, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggemann, the Minister of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon of Westbury, Long Island, and Washington, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Filene of Boston, grandparents of the bride, Miss Paula Robertson of Deer Brook, Miss., Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers, Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land, Admiral and Mrs. George Pettengill, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd of Cape Cod, Mass., and Washington, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers.

W. J. Kettlers Entertain 200 At Holiday Party

Floral V's for victory, carried out in patriotic colors, formed the table decorations at the "4-until-7" party given yesterday by Lieut. William J. Kettler, U. S. A., and Mrs. Kettler at their home in Silver Spring, Md.

Marking the ninth wedding anniversary of the hosts, the party is an annual custom of the Kettler's on New Year's day. More than 200 guests attended yesterday. The centerpiece on the dining table, arranged with red roses, had four small V's of white narcissi and tiny blue flowers encircling them. This was flanked with white candles in silver candlesticks.

Mrs. Kettler received in a long gown of ice blue velvet and a corsage of orchids. Assisting in serving eggnog and tea were Mrs. Samuel McCluney, Mrs. Paul Howe, of Arlington, Va.; Miss Martha Fisher, Miss Mildred Kettler, of Washington; Mrs. Roger Berger, Mrs. Albert Janes, Mrs. James Layton, Mrs. M. E. Sherer and Mrs. Ernst Lundell of Silver Spring.

Louis T. Clarks And 11 Children Gather at Dinner

A family reunion and a New Year's dinner were combined last evening when Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Clark, of Mount Ida, Ellicott City, Md., and their 11 sons and daughters gathered at Normandy Farm.

James T. Clark, of Washington, was host and members of the immediate family present included Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Clark, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Clark, of Annapolis; Capt. and Mrs. J. Rogers Hammond, and Miss Desiree B. Clark, of Rumson, N. J.; Miss Mary D. Clark, of Alexandria; Dr. Charles B. Clark, of Carrollton, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Howard, Ensign Nathan J. Clark and Miss Betsy Clark, of Washington, and Basil C. Clark, of Chestertown, Md.

Representative and Mrs. Ed Gossett and Mr. and Mrs. Linton Collins were guests of honor, and others present included Miss Hazel Riggs, Miss Janice McKinley, Miss Dorothy Jones and Walter McBroom.

First Brides Of The Year

Miss Harris, Dr. Rutherford Are Married

A a New Year's Day ceremony, Miss Aileen Harris, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIlvaine Harris, became the bride of Dr. Robert Bruce Rutherford. The Rev. Peyton Williams, of Georgetown Christ Church, read the vows at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. Harry Kerr, and Mrs. Kerr.

She was wearing her mother's wedding dress when she was given in marriage by her brother, Charles McIlvaine Harris. The train was flounced with satin pleating and dust ruffle pleated of mousseline swept the hemline. The V neckline was edged with antique lace and tulle, and a lace and net veil fell from her cap edged with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses and bouvardia.

Her matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Douglas Garvey Laing, of Warrenton, Va., who was gowned in blue velveteen and carried pink carnations and for-get-me-nots. Aileen Hyland Laing was flower girl, wearing a short pink dress and carrying an old-fashioned basket of carnations and forget-me-nots.

Best man was Brent Null, of Devon, Pa. A reception followed immediately after the ceremony. Afterward the bride donned a blue gray dress, which she wore under a red tweed coat with gray Persian collar. The fur-trimmed hat was of the same tweed. The couple will live in Washington.

Dr. Rutherford is the son of Mrs. Leslie Rutherford and the late Dr. Rutherford, of Peoria, Ill. He was graduated from the University of Illinois and Northwestern University School of Medicine. He is now stationed in Washington as a lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps. His bride attended Warrenton County School.

Mrs. Lionel Atwill Entertains At Gala New Year's Supper

An Anglo-American New Year's supper accented last evening's social calendar when Mrs. Lionel Atwill gathered in a number of high-ranking United States and British officers and several other friends for a gala party at the 1925 F Street Club.

Beginning at 8:15 o'clock, the fete continued until long after midnight, drawing many after-dinner guests to add to the crowd on hand for the first part of the evening.

The hostess, who received informally in the club drawing room, wore a frock of black velvet cut on simple lines; and although her own party was the fifth on her New Year's calendar, she was as merrily gracious as if she had spent the day resting especially for the event. All rooms of the club had been turned over to the occasion, and seasonal greenery, mingled with bright Yuletide touches, carried out the holiday motif. Emphasis on the spirit of the occasion was furnished by the two huge flags, the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, draped in a prominent spot in the hallway of the club. Strolling accordion players entertained the guests after supper.

Among the guests, who served themselves at the buffet and then found places at tables-for-four, were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Danford, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Virgil Peterson, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles, the Hon. and Mrs. Julian Chetwynd, Col. and Mrs. W. W. Jervey, Col. and Mrs. Raymond Lee, Rear Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers, the British Military Attache and Mrs. Rex Benson, Mrs. George Pettengill, Brig. C. L. Lindemann, Assistant Air Attache at the British Embassy; Mrs. Delos Emmons, Col. and Mrs. John Davis.

Still others there were the British Minister, Noel Hall; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser; Col. Bouchier, Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Robinson, Mrs. Cobina Wright, of New York; Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Maj. Desmond Roberts, Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Lieut. Gen. McReady, Lieut. Gen. Weymms, George Williams, oLthrop Stoddard, and James H. R. Cromwell, former U. S. Minister to Canada, and brother of the hostess.

Also in the party were Maj. Gen. Conger Pratt, Col. Richard Wood, Gen. T. Bentley Mott, Harry Welden, Lieut. Peter Smithers, Mrs. Emil Smith, Maj. Juan Sedillo, Mrs. Natalie Keeney Phillips, Maj. Winant Johnson and several others.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

AN ENGAGEMENT of much interest in the hunt country is that of Miss Margaret Dole, of Millwood, Va., and William Fitzhugh Rust, jr., of Leesburg, now living in Pittsburgh. Miss Dole is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Emerson Dole, of Millwood, and the late Mr. Dole. She was graduated from Greenvale School, Roslyn, Long Island, and is one of the most popular members of the younger set in Virginia.

Mr. Rust is the son of Mrs. William Fitzhugh Rust, of Leesburg, and the late Mr. Rust. He attended Shadyside Academy, Pittsburgh, and the Episcopal High School, Alexandria, and was graduated from Lehigh University Electrical Engineers, class of 1936. He is now with the Rust Engineering Co. of Pittsburgh. Miss Dole's father was the late Richard Emerson Dole, of Concord, N. H., and New York City. She, with her mother and brother, Richard Emerson Dole, jr., came to Virginia to make their home about ten years ago, when they purchased a charming old place in Clarke County. Mr. Rust has been spending the holidays with his mother and his sister, Miss Jane Rust, at their home near Leesburg, and he and Miss Dole decided to announce their engagement while he is in Virginia. No date has been set for the wedding.

ONE OF THE LOVELIEST weddings of the holiday season was that of Miss Mary Cary Walker, of Richmond, and Sergt. John Rowland Dudley, U. S. Army, of Middleburg, now stationed at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. They were married on Monday evening in St. Paul's Church, Richmond, and although no invitations were sent out to the wedding the church was filled with friends of the couple who had heard of the wedding by word of mouth. Beautifully decorated for the Christmas season with greens and poinsettia, the famous old church made a lovely setting for the simple wedding. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Vincent C. Frank, rector. The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Sayres Walker, of Richmond, entered the church with her brother-in-law, William Byrd Rawlings. She wore a soft white satin gown, simply made with full bodice, long sleeves, heart-shaped neckline and a full long skirt flaring into a train. Her tulle veil, worn over the face, was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms and fell to the bottom of the train and she carried a white prayerbook with one large white orchid fastened to it, and streamers of lilies of the valley. Miss Lucy Gordon Smith, of Richmond, was maid of honor, wearing a costume of red velvet with tight-fitting bodice, round neck and full floor-length skirt. She carried a bouquet of white calla lilies.

LITTLE Miss Anthony Mason Hagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hagan, jr., of Richmond, was the flower girl. She wore a miniature red velvet dress like the maid of honor's and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of calla lilies. Aldrich Dudley, jr., of Middleburg, was best man for his cousin and the ushers were Cabell Tabb and Thomas Conway Moncure, of Richmond. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held for the immediate families and a few intimate friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hagan on North Allen Street. For traveling the bride wore a brown wool dress, brown hat and shoes and a brown plaid coat. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley left by motor for Washington, where they are staying for a few days before coming to Middleburg to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas U. Dudley, at their home, Exning.

MR. AND MRS. DUDLEY will entertain in honor of the bride and bridegroom at an afternoon party tomorrow, to which many members of the younger set have been asked. While in Richmond for their son's wedding Mr. and Mrs. Dudley were the house guests of Mrs. Henry Fairfax.

MRS. JAMES VAN ALEN, of Long Island, and her son, Jay, are spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Langley, at Greenway, near Rectortown. Mrs. Van Alen and Jay are enjoying foxhunting with Piedmont and Orange County Hunts while here. Mrs. George Garrett, who is spending a part of the holidays at her Virginia place, Chilly Bleak, is enjoying many days' foxhunting. Mrs. Pierce Metcalf has arrived from her home in Providence, R. I., to spend the New Year at her Virginia home near Middleburg.

Washingtonians Kept on the Go As Holiday Season Comes to End

Mrs. John R. Williams, Daughter Give Traditional Fete

By Carolyn Bell

Although the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles were hosts at an annual "open house" at their estate in Oxon Hill, Md., the informal, drop-in affair had a distinct wartime flavor. While the host was impeccably groomed as always, it wasn't until quite late in the afternoon that he was able to be on hand at his own party—for he had been at his desk in the State Department since early morning.

Something of a farewell was in order for young Benjamin Welles, Mr. Welles' son, for he leaves today for the Army, having volunteered some time ago. Guests, culled from the official, diplomatic and residential sets, turned up between 5 and 7 o'clock at the Welles' home to drink a toast to the New Year and greet their gracious hostess, smartly gowned in a tea frock. Many, like the undersecretary, had been on duty all day long and tore themselves away for only a few short hours to celebrate the arrival of 1942.

Almost as typical of Washington as the cherry blossoms is the annual New Year's Day party given by Mrs. John R. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter. Whereas once the guests were deposited from horse-drawn carriages, yesterday's social lights who went a'calling on Mrs. Williams and her daughter, drove up to the old mansion on New Hampshire Avenue in sleek limousines. Otherwise, the party was very much as it has been for many years.

Macneils' Fete Tops in Gayety

Probably the gayest of all fetes on the calendar was the young peoples' dance given by The Macneil of Barra and Mrs. Robert Lister Macneil. Ablaze with lights was the Hicks House in Georgetown where the Macneil family makes their home when in Washington.

"Mildly patriotic" was the way Mrs. Macneil described the decorations for the dance, at which Sidney's orchestra played. Red, white and blue lights were hung from the arched doorways and Christmas bells vied with Christmas greens and poinsettias.

With a houseful of young guests, the party last night which started out to be fairly small ended up with some 200 dancing and singing to the lilting tunes. Honor guests were Mrs. Macneil's son, Frederick Stevens Hicks and his fiancee, Miss Jacquette Storm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Storm, of Englewood, N. J. Sharing honors was Miss Mary Storm who with her sister is a house guest of the Macneils.

Also receiving with the hostess last night was Miss Hope Wallach, whose family Col. and Mrs. Robert Wallach, of Warrenton, have been friends of Mrs. Macneil's for many years. Also taking her turn at the receiving line was Miss "Cynette" Allen, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry Allen, whose debut was canceled because of the war.

Young Kathleen and Joan Macneil, daughters of The Macneil of Barra, were on hand at last night's party, as were Walter Trumbow and John Stockman, of New York; William K. Thayer, of New Hampshire, and Dan Warfield, of Baltimore. Among the girls who attended the dance were Miss Margaret Houghteling, Miss Kitty Hill, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, Miss Camilla Edge, Miss Ruth Hurley, the Misses Marion and Peter Norris, the Misses Edith and Joanna Huntington. Keith Merrill, jr., was there, as were John Davidge, Charles Glower and many young officers stationed in and around Washington.

Jessie Calver Is Engaged to Lieut. Dickens

Although Capt. George W. Calver, U. S. N. Medical Corps, and Mrs. Calver have entertained for several years at an "open house" on New Year's day—yesterday's fete had special significance, for they announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jessie Carleton Calver, to Lieut. (J. G.) Paul Fredericq Dickens, jr., U. S. N. Medical Corps. Lieut. Dickens is the son of Dr. Paul F. Dickens, U. S. N. Medical Corps, retired, and Mrs. Dickens. Dr. Calver is the physician to Congress.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Admiral Albert B. Willits, and the late Dr. Thomas Calver. She was graduated from George Washington University and is now doing graduate work at Mount Holyoke College. Dr. Dickens was graduated from George Washington University Medical School and is now attending the Naval Medical School.

The couple will be married in the Spring.

C. F. Dirickson Takes Bride

The wedding of Miss Ann Kathleen Mason and Conwell Forman Dirickson took place yesterday at 2 o'clock in St. Matthew's Cathedral, with the Rev. Gerald Cole officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Mason, of Tryon, N. C. Mr. Dirickson is the son of Mrs. Curtis Thacker, of Charlottesville, N. C., and C. F. Dirickson, of Norfolk, Va.

The bride wore a gray traveling suit, blue accessories and a corsage of gardenias. She was attended by her twin sister, Miss Frances Mason who wore a blue and brown ensemble and a corsage of Talisman roses. Leiut. William A. Carr served as best man.

Upon their return from New York City the couple will be feted at a reception on Sunday by the bride's sister. The bride was graduated from St. Genevieve of the Pines, in Asheville, N. C., and the Abbot Art School. Mr. Dirickson attended the University of Virginia.

Welleses Hold Open House With Wartime Flavor

Martha Wood, Brother Entertain at Home

Entertaining at their newly purchased home on S Street—formerly owned by Mrs. John M. Biddle—Miss Martha Wood and her brother, Wadsworth Wood, were hosts at an "open house" yesterday afternoon—featuring eggnog. A lighted Christmas tree twinkled in the entrance hall, and holly, as well as poinsettias, were used throughout the house. Miss Wood, who, with her brother, came to Washington early in October from New York, received her guests wearing a tailored blue wool frock. Mrs. Grant M. Dawson, of New York, sister of the hosts, was on hand for the party.

Among the guests were Mrs. Cobina Wright, sr., Baron and Baroness Stackelberg and their houseguest, Miss Mary Lewison, of New York; Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Dalberg, Vivien Segal, well known actress; Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trent, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woodbridge, of Seattle; Mrs. Arant Wilmer, of Baltimore, and Alf Shields, of Detroit. Some 200 guests had been invited to the party.

Locust Hill, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Allen Cook was the scene of a fete yesterday afternoon when they received between 4 and 7 o'clock. Over 200 friends came to pay their respects to the Cooks and to toast the New Year. The hostess received her guests wearing a black lace tea gown that swept the floor. Receiving with her was her sister, Miss Maxwell Galloway, who had chosen a red chiffon dress for the occasion.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Franklin Kidd, Mrs. Guy Shepard, Mrs. Rudolph F. Wiedmann, Mrs. Guy Withers, Mrs. Emmons A. Rodda, Mrs. Frank Summers, Mrs. Robert K. Miller, Miss Helen McAuliffe, and Miss Ruth Cooke.

Clubs Greet New Year Solemnly

Pause for Silent Prayer Marks Tea Given by D. C. Pen Women

A note of solemnity, in keeping with the opening of a war year, was injected into traditional New Year festivities of women's club's yesterday.

Members paused for a few minutes of silent prayer, midway of the tea given by the District branch, League of American Pen Women, at its studio. Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, president, softly played a hymn during the observance.

"Open house" for members and their friends was held by the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women at the clubhouse.

Among other organizations opening the New Year with a tea for members was the P. E. O. Sisterhood. Chapter A issued invitations to the party at the chapter house of the District Daughters of the American Revolution. District P. E. O. officers, along with those of Chapter A, received the guests, members from the 20 local chapters.

The Pen Women's tea was in honor of 11 new members who have been received during the last year. They are Mrs. Florine Maher, Mrs. Jennie Ross Snyder, Mrs. Ruby Altizer Roberts, Miss Ethel Blake, Miss Martha McLeod, Mrs. Lelia W. Marshall, Mrs. Eloise Liddon Soper, Mrs. Alma B. Fivaz, Mrs. Ruth Flanders McNaughton, Mrs. Helen Sutton Booth and Mrs. Lilian C. B. Mayer.

Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, national president of Pen Women, and Mrs. Emma Matthews Triepel, a founder of the league, received with Mrs. Campbell and the two vice presidents of the District branch, Mrs. Bertha Shanks Chaney and Mrs. Edward R. Seal.

Mrs. Merle Lyon was general chairman for the party and Mrs. Barbara Schmitt Whitney was reception chairman.

At the "open house" of the Business and Professional Women's Club, a flaming English plum pudding centered the tea table.

Miss Florence Enos, chairman of the hospitality committee, was in charge of the entertainment. She was assisted at the tea table by Miss Mary Thornton, Miss Mae Murray, Mrs. Sarah Young, Miss Ida Lou Nelson, Miss Mary Sweeney, Mrs. Cora Luce, Mrs. Marie Pierce, Mrs. Edith Eckert, Miss Marcella Richards.

Mrs. Laura Waters, president of the club, and other officers received the members and guests.

Miss Dodd Is Wed To David A. Robertson

In a candlelight wedding, Miss Joan Dodd was married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to David Atholl Robertson in the Georgetown home of her mother, Mrs. Jouett Shouse, and Mr. Shouse. Palms and Easter lilies formed the background before the altar where the young couple received their wedding vows. The Rev. George Bailey Kelley officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, Alvin E. Dodd, of New York, and was attended by her step-sister, Mrs. Cuthbert Russell Train, and Miss Barbara Lee Putzki, a former classmate at National Cathedral School. Their gowns were of bayberry green satin made with a quaint dropped shoulder, the balanciaga bodice falling into a bouffant skirt. Their hats were small calots of the same shade of satin with a snood of green tulle. The bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Mrs. John Conway Hunt, Miss Patricia Prochnik, and Mrs. John Murray Robertson, of Birmingham, Ala., wore dresses of the same bayberry green with satin bodices and full tulle skirts of a shade lighter green. Tulle, falling to their shoulders and fastened over their hair with real orange blossoms, was their headdress. The bright modernistic bouquet of carnations and bouvardia was an effective contrast.

Heirloom Lace Trims Gown

The bride's gown was princess style; the high neck, long sleeves and long, tight-fitting bodice was made of rose point lace embroidered with pearls and seed pearls and had been worn by her mother and great-grandmother. The cream-colored full satin train was traditional. She carried a prayerbook with a simple bouquet of Amazon lilies and sprays of lily of the valley tied on satin ribbons.

Mr. Robertson's best man was his brother, John Murray Robertson of Birmingham. His other attendants were J. Munro Hunter, jr., Harold Wilcox Moseley of the Department of State, Frederick Thayer Merrill of the Board of Economic Warfare, Cuthbert Russell Train, Bolling Roines Powell, jr., of Birmingham and Washington, and William Shouse.

Walter Nash was at the organ, which belonged to the bride's great-grandmother, and the other musicians were Jeno Sevely, violinist, William Breonand, cellist, Sol Sax, pianist, all members of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Couple to Live In Georgetown

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Henry Murray Robertson and the late Mr. Robertson. He was graduated with honors from the University of Alabama in 1933. His maternal grandfather founded the Episcopal Church in Alabama and an uncle was the first Bishop of Maryland. Mr. Robertson came to Washington from Houston, Tex., last winter to become head of the Petroleum Section of the Export Control Division of the Department of State. Recently he was transferred to the Board of Economic Warfare. He is a member of Kappa Sigma.

Mrs. Robertson attended the Cathedral School in Washington, Concord Academy in Concord, Mass. and St. Annes School in Charlottesville, Va.

After a brief honeymoon, cut to a minimum because of the war emergency, the young couple will live at the Carolyn, in Georgetown.

Among those who attended the ceremony and the reception which followed were the Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Associate Justice Stanley Reed, Associate Justice and Mrs. Robert Jackson and Associate Justice and Mrs. James Byrnes, the undersecretary of War and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. Loudon, the Minister of Norway and Mme. de Morgenstierne, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggemann, the Minister of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon of Westbury, Long Island, and Washington, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Filene of Boston, grandparents of the bride, Miss Paula Robertson of Deer Brook, Miss., Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers, Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land, Admiral and Mrs. George Pettengill, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd of Cape Cod, Mass., and Washington, Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers.

W. J. Kettlers Entertain 200 At Holiday Party

Floral V's for victory, carried out in patriotic colors, formed the table decorations at the "4-until-7" party given yesterday by Lieut. William J. Kettler, U. S. A., and Mrs. Kettler at their home in Silver Spring, Md.

Marking the ninth wedding anniversary of the hosts, the party is an annual custom of the Kettler's on New Year's day. More than 200 guests attended yesterday. The centerpiece on the dining table, arranged with red roses, had four small V's of white narcissi and tiny blue flowers encircling them. This was flanked with white candles in silver candlesticks.

Mrs. Kettler received in a long gown of ice blue velvet and a corsage of orchids. Assisting in serving eggnog and tea were Mrs. Samuel McCluney, Mrs. Paul Howe, of Arlington, Va.; Miss Martha Fisher, Miss Mildred Kettler, of Washington; Mrs. Roger Berger, Mrs. Albert Janes, Mrs. James Layton, Mrs. M. E. Sherer and Mrs. Ernst Lundell of Silver Spring.

Louis T. Clarks And 11 Children Gather at Dinner

A family reunion and a New Year's dinner were combined last evening when Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Clark, of Mount Ida, Ellicott City, Md., and their 11 sons and daughters gathered at Normandy Farm.

James T. Clark, of Washington, was host and members of the immediate family present included Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Clark, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Clark, of Annapolis; Capt. and Mrs. J. Rogers Hammond, and Miss Desiree B. Clark, of Rumson, N. J.; Miss Mary D. Clark, of Alexandria; Dr. Charles B. Clark, of Carrollton, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Howard, Ensign Nathan J. Clark and Miss Betsy Clark, of Washington, and Basil C. Clark, of Chestertown, Md.

Representative and Mrs. Ed Gossett and Mr. and Mrs. Linton Collins were guests of honor, and others present included Miss Hazel Riggs, Miss Janice McKinley, Miss Dorothy Jones and Walter McBroom.

Miss Harris, Dr. Rutherford Are Married

A a New Year's Day ceremony, Miss Aileen Harris, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIlvaine Harris, became the bride of Dr. Robert Bruce Rutherford. The Rev. Peyton Williams, of Georgetown Christ Church, read the vows at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. Harry Kerr, and Mrs. Kerr.

She was wearing her mother's wedding dress when she was given in marriage by her brother, Charles McIlvaine Harris. The train was flounced with satin pleating and dust ruffle pleated of mousseline swept the hemline. The V neckline was edged with antique lace and tulle, and a lace and net veil fell from her cap edged with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of roses and bouvardia.

Her matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Douglas Garvey Laing, of Warrenton, Va., who was gowned in blue velveteen and carried pink carnations and for-get-me-nots. Aileen Hyland Laing was flower girl, wearing a short pink dress and carrying an old-fashioned basket of carnations and forget-me-nots.

Best man was Brent Null, of Devon, Pa. A reception followed immediately after the ceremony. Afterward the bride donned a blue gray dress, which she wore under a red tweed coat with gray Persian collar. The fur-trimmed hat was of the same tweed. The couple will live in Washington.

Dr. Rutherford is the son of Mrs. Leslie Rutherford and the late Dr. Rutherford, of Peoria, Ill. He was graduated from the University of Illinois and Northwestern University School of Medicine. He is now stationed in Washington as a lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps. His bride attended Warrenton County School.

Mrs. Lionel Atwill Entertains At Gala New Year's Supper

An Anglo-American New Year's supper accented last evening's social calendar when Mrs. Lionel Atwill gathered in a number of high-ranking United States and British officers and several other friends for a gala party at the 1925 F Street Club.

Beginning at 8:15 o'clock, the fete continued until long after midnight, drawing many after-dinner guests to add to the crowd on hand for the first part of the evening.

The hostess, who received informally in the club drawing room, wore a frock of black velvet cut on simple lines; and although her own party was the fifth on her New Year's calendar, she was as merrily gracious as if she had spent the day resting especially for the event. All rooms of the club had been turned over to the occasion, and seasonal greenery, mingled with bright Yuletide touches, carried out the holiday motif. Emphasis on the spirit of the occasion was furnished by the two huge flags, the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, draped in a prominent spot in the hallway of the club. Strolling accordion players entertained the guests after supper.

Among the guests, who served themselves at the buffet and then found places at tables-for-four, were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Danford, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Virgil Peterson, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Sherman Miles, the Hon. and Mrs. Julian Chetwynd, Col. and Mrs. W. W. Jervey, Col. and Mrs. Raymond Lee, Rear Admiral and Mrs. John H. Towers, the British Military Attache and Mrs. Rex Benson, Mrs. George Pettengill, Brig. C. L. Lindemann, Assistant Air Attache at the British Embassy; Mrs. Delos Emmons, Col. and Mrs. John Davis.

Still others there were the British Minister, Noel Hall; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser; Col. Bouchier, Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Robinson, Mrs. Cobina Wright, of New York; Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Maj. Desmond Roberts, Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Lieut. Gen. McReady, Lieut. Gen. Weymms, George Williams, oLthrop Stoddard, and James H. R. Cromwell, former U. S. Minister to Canada, and brother of the hostess.

Also in the party were Maj. Gen. Conger Pratt, Col. Richard Wood, Gen. T. Bentley Mott, Harry Welden, Lieut. Peter Smithers, Mrs. Emil Smith, Maj. Juan Sedillo, Mrs. Natalie Keeney Phillips, Maj. Winant Johnson and several others.

Netherlands Envoy Will Be Honored

The Minister of the Netherlands, Alexander Loudon, will be guest of honor at the dinner to be given in Washington by the Society of Netherland Scholars, at Hotel 2400 tonight. Prof. Fagginer Auer, of Harvard University, and Charles K. Moser, chief of the Far East unit of the Department of Commerce, will be the speakers of the evening.

Washingtonians Kept on the Go As Holiday Season Comes to End

Mrs. John R. Williams, Daughter Give Traditional Fete

By Carolyn Bell

Although the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles were hosts at an annual "open house" at their estate in Oxon Hill, Md., the informal, drop-in affair had a distinct wartime flavor. While the host was impeccably groomed as always, it wasn't until quite late in the afternoon that he was able to be on hand at his own party—for he had been at his desk in the State Department since early morning.

Something of a farewell was in order for young Benjamin Welles, Mr. Welles' son, for he leaves today for the Army, having volunteered some time ago. Guests, culled from the official, diplomatic and residential sets, turned up between 5 and 7 o'clock at the Welles' home to drink a toast to the New Year and greet their gracious hostess, smartly gowned in a tea frock. Many, like the undersecretary, had been on duty all day long and tore themselves away for only a few short hours to celebrate the arrival of 1942.

Almost as typical of Washington as the cherry blossoms is the annual New Year's Day party given by Mrs. John R. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter. Whereas once the guests were deposited from horse-drawn carriages, yesterday's social lights who went a'calling on Mrs. Williams and her daughter, drove up to the old mansion on New Hampshire Avenue in sleek limousines. Otherwise, the party was very much as it has been for many years.

Macneils' Fete Tops in Gayety

Probably the gayest of all fetes on the calendar was the young peoples' dance given by The Macneil of Barra and Mrs. Robert Lister Macneil. Ablaze with lights was the Hicks House in Georgetown where the Macneil family makes their home when in Washington.

"Mildly patriotic" was the way Mrs. Macneil described the decorations for the dance, at which Sidney's orchestra played. Red, white and blue lights were hung from the arched doorways and Christmas bells vied with Christmas greens and poinsettias.

With a houseful of young guests, the party last night which started out to be fairly small ended up with some 200 dancing and singing to the lilting tunes. Honor guests were Mrs. Macneil's son, Frederick Stevens Hicks and his fiancee, Miss Jacquette Storm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Storm, of Englewood, N. J. Sharing honors was Miss Mary Storm who with her sister is a house guest of the Macneils.

Also receiving with the hostess last night was Miss Hope Wallach, whose family Col. and Mrs. Robert Wallach, of Warrenton, have been friends of Mrs. Macneil's for many years. Also taking her turn at the receiving line was Miss "Cynette" Allen, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry Allen, whose debut was canceled because of the war.

Young Kathleen and Joan Macneil, daughters of The Macneil of Barra, were on hand at last night's party, as were Walter Trumlow and John Stockman, of New York; William K. Thayer, of New Hampshire, and Dan Warfield, of Baltimore. Among the girls who attended the dance were Miss Margaret Houghteling, Miss Kitty Hill, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, Miss Camilla Edge, Miss Ruth Hurley, the Misses Marion and Peter Norris, the Misses Edith and Joanna Huntington. Keith Merrill, jr., was there, as were John Davidge, Charles Glower and many young officers stationed in and around Washington.

Martha Wood, Brother Entertain at Home

Entertaining at their newly purchased home on S Street—formerly owned by Mrs. John M. Biddle—Miss Martha Wood and her brother, Wadsworth Wood, were hosts at an "open house" yesterday afternoon—featuring eggnog. A lighted Christmas tree twinkled in the entrance hall, and holly, as well as poinsettias, were used throughout the house. Miss Wood, who, with her brother, came to Washington early in October from New York, received her guests wearing a tailored blue wool frock. Mrs. Grant M. Dawson, of New York, sister of the hosts, was on hand for the party.

Among the guests were Mrs. Cobina Wright, sr., Baron and Baroness Stackelberg and their houseguest, Miss Mary Lewison, of New York; Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Dalberg, Vivien Segal, well known actress; Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trent, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woodbridge, of Seattle; Mrs. Arant Wilmer, of Baltimore, and Alf Shields, of Detroit. Some 200 guests had been invited to the party.

Locust Hill, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Allen Cook was the scene of a fete yesterday afternoon when they received between 4 and 7 o'clock. Over 200 friends came to pay their respects to the Cooks and to toast the New Year. The hostess received her guests wearing a black lace tea gown that swept the floor. Receiving with her was her sister, Miss Maxwell Galloway, who had chosen a red chiffon dress for the occasion.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Franklin Kidd, Mrs. Guy Shepard, Mrs. Rudolph F. Wiedmann, Mrs. Guy Withers, Mrs. Emmons A. Rodda, Mrs. Frank Summers, Mrs. Robert K. Miller, Miss Helen McAuliffe, and Miss Ruth Cooke.

Jessie Calver Is Engaged to Lieut. Dickens

Although Capt. George W. Calver, U. S. N. Medical Corps, and Mrs. Calver have entertained for several years at an "open house" on New Year's day—yesterday's fete had special significance, for they announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jessie Carleton Calver, to Lieut. (J. G.) Paul Fredericq Dickens, jr., U. S. N. Medical Corps. Lieut. Dickens is the son of Dr. Paul F. Dickens, U. S. N. Medical Corps, retired, and Mrs. Dickens. Dr. Calver is the physician to Congress.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of the late Admiral Albert B. Willits, and the late Dr. Thomas Calver. She was graduated from George Washington University and is now doing graduate work at Mount Holyoke College. Dr. Dickens was graduated from George Washington University Medical School and is now attending the Naval Medical School.

The couple will be married in the Spring.

C. F. Dirickson Takes Bride

The wedding of Miss Ann Kathleen Mason and Conwell Forman Dirickson took place yesterday at 2 o'clock in St. Matthew's Cathedral, with the Rev. Gerald Cole officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen Mason, of Tryon, N. C. Mr. Dirickson is the son of Mrs. Curtis Thacker, of Charlottesville, N. C., and C. F. Dirickson, of Norfolk, Va.

The bride wore a gray traveling suit, blue accessories and a corsage of gardenias. She was attended by her twin sister, Miss Frances Mason who wore a blue and brown ensemble and a corsage of Talisman roses. Leiut. William A. Carr served as best man.

Upon their return from New York City the couple will be feted at a reception on Sunday by the bride's sister. The bride was graduated from St. Genevieve of the Pines, in Asheville, N. C., and the Abbot Art School. Mr. Dirickson attended the University of Virginia.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

AN ENGAGEMENT of much interest in the hunt country is that of Miss Margaret Dole, of Millwood, Va., and William Fitzhugh Rust, jr., of Leesburg, now living in Pittsburgh. Miss Dole is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Emerson Dole, of Millwood, and the late Mr. Dole. She was graduated from Greenvale School, Roslyn, Long Island, and is one of the most popular members of the younger set in Virginia.

Mr. Rust is the son of Mrs. William Fitzhugh Rust, of Leesburg, and the late Mr. Rust. He attended Shadyside Academy, Pittsburgh, and the Episcopal High School, Alexandria, and was graduated from Lehigh University Electrical Engineers, class of 1936. He is now with the Rust Engineering Co. of Pittsburgh. Miss Dole's father was the late Richard Emerson Dole, of Concord, N. H., and New York City. She, with her mother and brother, Richard Emerson Dole, jr., came to Virginia to make their home about ten years ago, when they purchased a charming old place in Clarke County. Mr. Rust has been spending the holidays with his mother and his sister, Miss Jane Rust, at their home near Leesburg, and he and Miss Dole decided to announce their engagement while he is in Virginia. No date has been set for the wedding.

ONE OF THE LOVELIEST weddings of the holiday season was that of Miss Mary Cary Walker, of Richmond, and Sergt. John Rowland Dudley, U. S. Army, of Middleburg, now stationed at Edgewood Arsenal, Md. They were married on Monday evening in St. Paul's Church, Richmond, and although no invitations were sent out to the wedding the church was filled with friends of the couple who had heard of the wedding by word of mouth. Beautifully decorated for the Christmas season with greens and poinsettia, the famous old church made a lovely setting for the simple wedding. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Vincent C. Frank, rector. The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Sayres Walker, of Richmond, entered the church with her brother-in-law, William Byrd Rawlings. She wore a soft white satin gown, simply made with full bodice, long sleeves, heart-shaped neckline and a full long skirt flaring into a train. Her tulle veil, worn over the face, was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms and fell to the bottom of the train and she carried a white prayerbook with one large white orchid fastened to it, and streamers of lilies of the valley. Miss Lucy Gordon Smith, of Richmond, was maid of honor, wearing a costume of red velvet with tight-fitting bodice, round neck and full floor-length skirt. She carried a bouquet of white calla lilies.

LITTLE Miss Anthony Mason Hagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hagan, jr., of Richmond, was the flower girl. She wore a miniature red velvet dress like the maid of honor's and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of calla lilies. Aldrich Dudley, jr., of Middleburg, was best man for his cousin and the ushers were Cabell Tabb and Thomas Conway Moncure, of Richmond. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held for the immediate families and a few intimate friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hagan on North Allen Street. For traveling the bride wore a brown wool dress, brown hat and shoes and a brown plaid coat. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley left by motor for Washington, where they are staying for a few days before coming to Middleburg to spend the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Dudley, at their home, Exning.

MR. AND MRS. DUDLEY will entertain in honor of the bride and bridegroom at an afternoon party tomorrow, to which many members of the younger set have been asked. While in Richmond for their son's wedding Mr. and Mrs. Dudley were the house guests of Mrs. Henry Fairfax.

MRS. JAMES VAN ALEN, of Long Island, and her son, Jay, are spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Langley, at Greenway, near Rectortown. Mrs. Van Alen and Jay are enjoying foxhunting with Piedmont and Orange County Hunts while here. Mrs. George Garrett, who is spending a part of the holidays at her Virginia place, Chilly Bleak, is enjoying many days' foxhunting. Mrs. Pierce Metcalf has arrived from her home in Providence, R. I., to spend the New Year at her Virginia home near Middleburg.

Clubs Greet New Year Solemnly

Pause for Silent Prayer Marks Tea Given by D. C. Pen Women

A note of solemnity, in keeping with the opening of a war year, was injected into traditional New Year festivities of women's club's yesterday.

Members paused for a few minutes of silent prayer, midway of the tea given by the District branch, League of American Pen Women, at its studio. Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, president, softly played a hymn during the observance.

"Open house" for members and their friends was held by the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women at the clubhouse.

Among other organizations opening the New Year with a tea for members was the P. E. O. Sisterhood. Chapter A issued invitations to the party at the chapter house of the District Daughters of the American Revolution. District P. E. O. officers, along with those of Chapter A, received the guests, members from the 20 local chapters.

The Pen Women's tea was in honor of 11 new members who have been received during the last year. They are Mrs. Florine Maher, Mrs. Jennie Ross Snyder, Mrs. Ruby Altizer Roberts, Miss Ethel Blake, Miss Martha McLeod, Mrs. Lelia W. Marshall, Mrs. Eloise Liddon Soper, Mrs. Alma B. Fivaz, Mrs. Ruth Flanders McNaughton, Mrs. Helen Sutton Booth and Mrs. Lilian C. B. Mayer.

Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, national president of Pen Women, and Mrs. Emma Matthews Triepel, a founder of the league, received with Mrs. Campbell and the two vice presidents of the District branch, Mrs. Bertha Shanks Chaney and Mrs. Edward R. Seal.

Mrs. Merle Lyon was general chairman for the party and Mrs. Barbara Schmitt Whitney was reception chairman.

At the "open house" of the Business and Professional Women's Club, a flaming English plum pudding centered the tea table.

Miss Florence Enos, chairman of the hospitality committee, was in charge of the entertainment. She was assisted at the tea table by Miss Mary Thornton, Miss Mae Murray, Mrs. Sarah Young, Miss Ida Lou Nelson, Miss Mary Sweeney, Mrs. Cora Luce, Mrs. Maris Pierce, Mrs. Edith Eckert, Miss Marcella Richards.

Mrs. Laura Waters, president of the club, and other officers received the members and guests.

Women's Bar Group to Hear Male Lawyers

The Women's Bar Association at its dinner January 15 at the New Colonial Hotel will hear addresses by George P. Barse, chairman of the committee on legislation of the Federal Bar Association, and Kenneth N. Parkinson, legislation committee chairman of the District Bar Association.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Hankin, legislation committee chairman of the Women's Bar Association, will give a resume of recent laws affecting citizens of the District.

The dinner at 6 p. m. is under auspices of the association's legislation committee.

Society to Hear Yuletide Reports

Reports of its Christmas projects will be brought by the chairmen to the meeting of the Sunshine and Community Society of the District at 12:30 Monday at the Gill-Bert.

Motion pictures of the Goodwill Industries will be shown by Mrs. Grace Kizer. Mrs. Marie C. Deal will be chairman of the musical program.

The society's monthly card party will be held at the home of Mrs. E. L. Burton, 1405 Kennedy Street Northwest, at 1:30 p. m. January 19.

Past President Of Zonta Club Gives Breakfast

Miss Mary Wright Sigman, past president of Zonta Club, entertained members and a group of their friends at her annual New Year's Day breakfast yesterday at her home.

Mrs. Frances Gutelius Smith played piano selections, and Mrs. Florence Sindell and Miss Ann Sauber sang.

Mrs. May Moyers McElroy, president of Zonta International, and Mrs. Ethel J. Hess, president of the local club, were among the guests.

Miss Sigman was assisted in entertaining by her sisters, Mrs. A. H. Shellenberger and Mrs. L. O. Bell; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Sigman; her niece, Miss Suzon Bell, and Miss Anna Muddiman and Miss Ida M. Larson.

Arlington Women To Hold Discussion

"America and World Understanding" will be the theme for a panel discussion by Mrs. Tom Blunt, Mrs. John R. Hofferbert, Mrs. J. B. Carper and Mrs. George McNeil at the meeting of the Arlington Women's Club at 2 p. m. Monday at Arlington Methodist Church.

Other features on the program will be a vocal solo by Mrs. J. H. Anderson; piano duet, Mrs. St. John Perrott and Mrs. Thomas Ramsay, and a motion picture.

Lynn Chapter, D. A. R., to Fete New Members

New members received during the past year into Judge Lynn Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be honored at an informal reception after the meeting at the chapter house at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

The State regent, Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser; the vice regent, Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, and the chairman of press relations, Mrs. Brinkley E. Callicott, will be guests of honor.

The chapter regent, Mrs. Eldridge L. Myers, will receive with the new members: Mrs. W. Evans Buchanan, Mrs. Sidney D. Butterfield, Miss Elizabeth Earll, Miss Eunice Haden, Mrs. J. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Sydney H. Karr, Mrs. Graham H. Kemper, Mrs. Maude I. Kinzer, Mrs. Curtis H. Kyle, Mrs. William T. Milne, Mrs. C. Sedgwick Moss, Mrs. Frederick F. Schondau, Miss Catherine Strong, Miss Clementine Watkins and Mrs. Cortland C. Van Vechten.

The hostesses will be Miss Virginia Netherland, Mrs. E. Garrett Gummer, Mrs. C. Sedgwick Moss, Mrs. Harvey R. Pierce, Mrs. Warner W. Waters, and the Misses Eunice Haden, Mary Ella Hopkins and Laura J. Silsby.

Little John Boyden Chapter will be entertained at a luncheon at 1 o'clock Thursday at the home of Mrs. Carlos Campbell, 1607 Arlington Ridge Road, Arlington, Va. Mrs. J. C. Koons will be cohostess.

W. C. T. U. Calls Meeting

The Chapin Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold a meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday at headquarters of the District W. C. T. U., in place of the meeting which was canceled last Tuesday because of the test blackout.

Junior Alliance Gives Children 'Defense' Tags

The Junior Alliance has aided in providing identification tags for children of Thomson School as one of its civilian defense projects.

Mrs. Victor Myers, welfare chairman, is in charge of the party which the alliance will give for boys and girls at Hillcrest Children's Village January 31.

The alliance will discuss defense projects at its meeting at 2 p. m. January 12 at the home of Mrs. William H. Hessick, jr. Cohostesses will be Mrs. Wyrth Post Baker and Mrs. Hartford Bealer. Honor guests will be Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Mrs. John K. Slear and Mrs. Frederick Newburgh.

Former Czech Envoy to Japan To Address Group

Dr. Charles Pergler, dean of the school of law of National University and former Minister from Czechoslovakia to Japan in 1920-22, will speak on war problems at the meeting of Eta Alumnae Chapter of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Margaret Henderson Regan is chairman of the committee which planned the program. Mrs. Sallie Mero Williams, dean of Eta Chapter, will preside.

Sorority to Meet

The District Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Iota Sorority, honorary business sorority, will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, at Strayer College, it was announced by Miss Mary Mills, president.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Little Work Is Done Amid Holiday Confusion

Holiday work yesterday in most Federal agencies was something of a farce, though it wasn't funny to the employe who rushed to get to work on time. In the first place many employes didn't know whether they were supposed to work or not. They hadn't been told definitely yes or no. In several agencies ordered to work, only a skeleton force reported and not a great deal of work was accomplished. So little, in fact, that around noon employes at Interior and some at Agriculture were released. War agencies were supposed to work but only a small staff reported at OPM and bureaus within the Board of Economic Warfare.

KEEP IT SHORT. That's the order from Commerce Secretary Jones to his division chiefs. Jones says he doesn't have the time to read long memos . . . It's reported that Labor Secretary Perkins is backing Jim Farley for chairman of the war labor board. William H. Davis is believed to have the inside track, however . . . Miss Perkins will talk to Wage and Hour employes today on the impending transfer of the agency. She'll probably ban all transfers as scores of employes are now seeking to be shifted.

Interstate Commerce Comsion has moved its Division of Water Carriers into a hearing room in order to save space. Other space-saving moves are in the works. ICC Chairman Eastman is trying to make space for his Defense Transportation Division. He'll have at least 200 new employes. ICC employes feel the appointment of Eastman to head up defense transportation will prevent any part of ICC from being decentralized.

Ben Cohen is reported to have turned down two top-notch Federal jobs, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and assistant Solicitor General. He has potent support for general counsel to the proposed division of supply which may be created to take over the enormous task of defense purchasing now divided between Army, Navy, Lend-Lease, Treasury and Agriculture. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas are said to be the favorites to head the new division.

The insiders say that not only will a supreme inter-Allied war council be formed but also a supreme U. S. A. war council. And the latter, it's said, will result in a shake-up that will be felt down to the smallest nondefense agency. The President has all the power he needs to revamp the Government and many believe he won't muff the chance.

Commissioner Ganson Purcell is a good bet now to be made SEC chairman. And Robert O'Brien, chief of the Public Utilities Division, may be elevated to the SEC vacancy . . . The Civil Service replacement list died yesterday except for employes separated from the Census Bureau . . . The Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance is still looking for space to move its 1800 employes instead of Philadelphia . . . Did Nelson Rockefeller convince the President that the Patent Office should be moved out of Washington?

Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming has been appointed chairman of the Inter-departmental Committee on Labor Supply and chairman of the Labor Supply Policy Committee. He will concentrate on policy, and the operating end has been turned over to Col. Frank J. McSherry . . . Gerhard P. VanArkel has been appointed assistant NLRB general counsel in charge of enforcement. Norman Somers succeeds him as chief of the compliance division.

The only desirable space Railroad Retirement Board has found in Chicago must be bought. It can't be rented . . . Representative Manasco of Alabama cracked that it might interfere with the cocktail parties if the Government was placed on a two-shift basis . . . Employes who received an okay on annual leave won't be charged for yesterday when their more unfortunate colleagues had to work . . . The Farm Credit Club sent each of the 25 FCA employes in military service a $5 bill for Christmas.

Citizens on Alert

Eugene, Oreg., (AP).—Lieut. Ray Siegenthaler, in charge of the airplane observation filter center, complains that every time a spotter calls in to report so many receivers go off the hooks on the party line that he can't hear the report. He told listeners that if they must know what the spotter says to phone him later.

Everywhere That Mary Went . . .

Erlanger, N. C. (AP).—After Mrs. Fred Druary drove the 10 miles to her work and started into an office building, she noticed a goat following her. A close look convinced her it was one of her own. Nancy, the goat, had hooked a ride on the running board.

New Year's Rites Draw Thousands

Churches Thronged; Other Thousands Spend Day at Jobs Vital to War Effort

Thousands of Washingtonians joined yesterday in New Year's Day religious services, dedicated to a national day of prayer for the eventual triumph of the American cause and throughout the city just as many defense employes worked through the holiday to help speed the coming of that day of victory.

The President, whose proclamation set aside the first day of 1942 as one of Nation-wide prayer, attended Christ Church in Alexandria with Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and the rest of the city followed his example, with churches crowded and many private family devotions.

Angelus bells rang out a call to prayer in time of crisis at 5 p. m. At the same time Dr. John W. Rustin, vice president of the Washington Federation of Churches and pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, spoke over WMAL.

Government Agencies Work

Dr. Rustin pointed out that prior to the time of crisis the spiritual faith of the American people had been at a low ebb. He declared that we are often not aware of the nearness of God until we feel a need for God.

"I believe that if in this hour we will listen to God," he said, "we will find that he is ever near us, saying, 'Fear not, thou, for I am with thee.'"

In a second broadcast at 6:30 p. m. over the Columbia network, clergymen of three faiths joined in another summons to nation-wide prayer. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the Foundry Methodist Church, and Chaplain William R. Arnold, Catholic and Chief of Army Chaplains, spoke from Washington, while Dr. Louis Finklestein, head of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York, spoke from that city.

A Day of 'Spiritual Alert'

Asserting that "America has been summoned to her knees" on a day of "spiritual alert," Dr. Harris warned:

"A day of prayer is not a time when we ask for the avenging of Pearl Harbor, but when we ask for the cleansing of our own spirit. We cannot evade our responsibilities as individuals or as a nation for our part in the chaos and ruin now devastating the world."

Meanwhile, almost all Government agencies put in a full-time day, the War and Navy Departments reporting operation "at full strength, with the entire available military and civilian personnel on duty." Though an official order giving Office of Production Management employes a January 1 holiday was not rescinded, OPM spokesmen indignantly denied reports that their organization was idle. They said that employes there were "very much working," and on a voluntary basis.

Workers Donate Day's Pay

Workmen busy on Navy construction jobs at the Anacostia Naval Air Station not only spent the day on the job but turned over their entire day's pay—at time and a half—to the Government for defense use. The 300 men are employes of the Skinner & Garrett Construction Co. and their donated earnings are estimated to total about $5000—something over $16 apiece.

The day was marked by four services at the Washington Cathedral, conducted by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington. Special services were held in the Bethany Chapel there, where stands the crypt of America's other World War President, Woodrow Wilson. Also buried in the chapel is former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, author of the Kellogg Peace Pact, which was heralded as the document which would at last outlaw war from the earth.

Watrous Leaves $383,837 Estate

Harry W. Watrous, artist and former president of the National Academy of Design, who died May 10, 1940, left a net estate of $383,837, filing of a tax appraisal in New York disclosed yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

He left $1000 to the Moses-Ludington Hospital at Ticonderoga, N. Y., and $2500 and the residuary to Col. Livingston Watrous, U. S. A., 11 East Lenox Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Lucien Gaudreau Heads Defense Unit

Lucien E. D. Gaudreau, of Baltimore, has been appointed to the American Institute of Architects' national committee for civilian protection as region representative for states nearby, Horace W. Peaslee, of Washington, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday.

Among those named to represent the institute chapters in this area is Slocum Kingsbury, 917 Fifteenth Street Northwest, for the District.

Named to Head OPM Unit

Leighton H. Peebles, of Chevy Chase, Md., former chief of the Office of Production Management Plumbing and Heating Branch, was named yesterday as chief of the newly organized OPM Communications Branch which will handle material requirements for radio, telephone and telegraph companies.

10 Boys and 10 Girls Born In D. C. on New Year's Day

AMONG NEWCOMERS—Mrs. John M. Maddox, of 1301 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, holds her son, who weighed in at 8 pounds 2 ounces at 1:50 a. m. yesterday at Columbia Hospital. He was one of several New Year's Day babies in the Capital

Ten seconds after the New Year arrived yesterday, the stork began dropping his bundles from heaven in Washington hospitals. Here's the score card of 1942 youngsters through yesterday afternoon:

Sibley, 7; George Washington University, 0; Georgetown University, 0; Providence, 1; Gallinger, 1; Garfield, 3; Columbia, 5, and Doctors, 3. Sibley Hospital took "most" and "first" honors. Final score, boys 10, girls 10.

The clock had scarcely tolled out the old year when a baby girl was born in Sibley Hospital. Mrs. Buvel B. Beck, of 23 Milmarson Place Northwest, is the proud mother. The baby weighed 6 pounds 9 ounces.

The Census

The other newcomers are Columbia Hospital, Mrs. Marjorie Maddox, 1301 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, an eight pound two ounce boy born at 1:50 a. m.; Mrs. Isabell Mitchell, 5807 Wilson Lane, Bethesda, Md., a seven pound nine ounce girl born at 9:08 a. m.; Mrs. Evelyn Calhoun, 4007 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, an eight pound fourteen ounce boy born at 10:33 a. m.; Mrs. Ruth Lutz, 8308 Draper Lane, Silver Spring, Md., a seven pound fifteen ounce boy born at 11:33 a. m. and Mrs. Lula Tracey, 3520 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, a six pound twelve ounce boy born at 11:50 a. m.

Sibley Hospital, Mrs. Beck with the winner, a girl, born at 10 seconds after the witching hour; Mrs. Elsie Weller, 3115 Minnesota Avenue Southeast, a five pound fourteen ounce boy born at 3:42 a. m.; Mrs. Helen Smith, 2023 Fourth Street Northeast, a six pound eight ounce girl at 6 a. m.; Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, 943 C Street Southwest, a six pound seven ounce girl born at 7 a. m.; Mrs. Dorothy Black, 807 Philadelphia Avenue, Silver Spring, Md., a seven pound eight ounce boy at 7:08 a. m.; Mrs. Fanny Crismond, 405 Tenth Street Northeast, a seven pound six ounce boy born at 2:10 p. m. and Mrs. Violet Christman with a baby girl born at 3:07 p. m.

Other Entrants

Providence Hospital, Mrs. Irene Knott, of Indianhead, Md., a 5 pound 9 ounce girl born at 10:05 a. m. as lone contender; Gallinger Hospital, Mrs. Helen Lidell, Negro, of 16 McCoullough Court Northwest, a baby girl born at 3:13 p. m.; Garfield, Mrs. Vivian Casper, 1104 Fourth Street Southwest, a 7 pound 11 ounce boy born at 5:21 a. m.; Mrs. Alice Nowell, of Hyattsville, Md., a 7 pound 7 ounce boy born at 11:32 a. m., and Mrs. Edith Williams, of Silver Spring, Md., a 7 pound 3 ounce girl born at 1:15 p. m.

D. C. Woman Attacked; Five Suspects Held

Five men were held at the Third Precinct station last night as suspects in the criminal assault on a 31-year-old Navy Department stenographer, who was choked, raped and robbed by a "dark-skinned man with a Spanish accent" at Government Court Northwest, shortly after New Year's midnight.

The woman was taken to Emergency Hospital by police, who were notified of her plight by Charles Branch, of 1131 Twentieth Street Northwest. He said he discovered the woman, covered with blood and in a dazed condition, staggering on the sidewalk in front of his home.

Doctors said the woman's scalp had been broken in two places, her body severely bruised and that she suffered from shock.

The victim told Detective Sergt. Harold Hodge that she had worked until nearly midnight at the Navy Department on Constitution Avenue. With a companion, she walked to a restaurant in the 1700 block Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, had a sandwich and started walking toward her home in the 2100 block N Street Northwest.

Saw Man Following Her

She parted from the companion, she said, after leaving the restaurant, walked west on Pennsylvania Avenue to Twenty-first Street, and turned north on Twenty-first. She said she noticed a man following her and when she hastened her steps, he ran up from behind, grabbed her and dragged her into an alley between Twentieth and Twenty-first Streets, L and M Streets.

About 100 feet inside the alley, she declared, her assailant threw her to the pavement, picked up a stone and struck her over the head. He then put an arm around her neck and dragged her to an automobile parked on a lot adjacent to 1100 block Government Court.

In the car, he criminally assaulted her and fled, taking her purse with him, she asserted.

Investigators found signs of a struggle all along the alley, evidence the woman attempted to fight off the attacker. The automobile was found to be blood stained and many scuff marks were found in the earth alongside the car.

The woman said her assailant spoke to her several times in Spanish and that his voice, when he spoke English, had a Spanish accent. She did not understand any of his words. He was about 35, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighed about 180 pounds, she said. She was unable to describe his clothing and said she did not think she would be able to identify the man.

Her pocketbook, she said, contained identification cards and a small amount of money.

Four D. C. Men Are Promoted At Fort Meade

Four men in the District metropolitan area are among those recently receiving promotions in the 175th Infantry, Fort George G. Meade, Md., it was announced yesterday.

Corpl. William H. Van Vleck, of 4127 Eighth Street Northwest, has been promoted to sergeant. Charles A. Miner, 114 Chapel Road, Seat Pleasant, Md., has been promoted to the rank of private, first class, in the antitank company.

In the came company Quentin R. Gage, of Benning Station, D. C., has been promoted to private, first class, while Private Carl M. Keech, Aquasco, Md., has been awarded a fifth-class specialist rating.

Two Are Graduated

Private Jared L. Simms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis A. Simms, 1412 Euclid Street Northwest, has been graduated with the new class in radio communications at Scott Field, Ill. Private Stanley Rubin, of 7614 Georgia Avenue Northwest, was graduated with the same class.

On Active Service

Two reserve Army officers of the Washington area and five graduates of the Norfolk Naval Training Base have been ordered to active service.

Lieuts. William J. MacKenzie, jr., and William O. Turney have taken up commissions in the Air Corps after completing four months of training at Randolph Field, Tex.

Ordered to active sea duty upon completing their recruit training are Lucious Simmons, Alfred Smith and Ollie Binkley, all of Washington, and Raymond Shoemaker, Bethesda, Md., and Shannon Harris, Arlington, Va.

4 From D. C. Under Bombs In Manila

Two Couples Reported Safe Despite Raids On Far East City

At least four Washingtonians are among the many American civilians now living in the threatened Philippine capital, it was learned yesterday.

They are Woodbury Willoughby, Mrs. Elizabeth Whittall, and Mr. and Mrs. William Burke, jr. Cables received here reported all to be safe after the initial bombing of Manila.

Willoughby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Willoughby of 2301 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, is serving as a financial adviser and executive assistant to the United States Commissioner in the islands. With him is his Canadian-born wife, Mrs. Amea Willoughby.

A graduate of Central High School here and Princeton University, Willoughby received his Ph. D. degree at Johns Hopkins University and studied for a year in France. He has been connected with several Government agencies here, but has been with the State Department for several years past. He has been stationed in Manila since Sptember, 1939.

Mrs. Whittall, the former Elizabeth Morris, is the daughter of Joel Morris, of Arlington, Va. Her husband, Lionel Whittall, is attached to the British consular service in Manila. They were last in Washington about a year ago, just previous to his assignment to the Philippines. She is a graduate of Central High and Wilson Teachers College.

William Burke, in Manila with the Philippine Manufacturing Co., is the son of William Burke, sr., of 1870 Wyoming Avenue Northwest. He has a sister, Miss Betty Burke, living here. His wife is the former Carroll Fleming, daughter of George F. Fleming, of 3201 Idaho Avenue Northwest.

Both Central High graduates, they have been in Manila for about 10 years. Their 6½-year-old son, William Burke, 3d, is there with them.

Air Forum to Mark 14th Anniversary

Representatives of Government and labor will speak on the fourteenth anniversary program of the American Forum of the Air Sunday at 8 p. m. broadcast over the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting System from the West Ball Room of the Shoreham Hotel.

The forum conducted by Theodore Granik on the subject, "United America Looks Ahead to 1942," will include the following speakers: Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Ralph A. Bard, assistant Secretary of Navy; William Greene, president, A. F. of L; Albert W. Hawkes, president, United States Chamber of Commerce; Paul V. McNutt, administrator, Federal Security Agency; Philip Murray, president, C. I. O.; Donald Nelson, executive director, SPAB; Robert Patterson, Undersecretary of War and Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator, Office of Inter-American Affairs.

Farewell Dinner

A farewell dinner was given yesterday for First Sergeant Stanley Blazejevski, of Troop A, First Squadron, Third Calvary Regiment, who retired Wednesday after 32 years service, by his fellow-members of Troop A, at Fort Myer.

Blazejevski, who plans to become an assistant police chief at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., soon, was presented a gold pocket watch, chain and knife, and a travelling bag by First Sergeant Odeno Scanzillo, who will replace him.

In 1929, Blazejevski was awarded a Distinguished Rifleman's medal, and in 1920 he received a Victory Medal, with one service crown, in recognition of his service in England and France during World War I.

Washingtonian's Son, Reported Killed on Oahu, Alive and Well

New Year's Message Brings Joy to Father, Michael D. Reidy

Joy came in with the New Year yesterday for a Washingtonian when he learned that his son, previously reported killed at Pearl Harbor, is alive and well.

Michael D. Reidy, of 53 Seaton Place Northwest, was sadly getting ready for bed at 12:40 a. m. yesterday after sitting up to see the New Year in alone when the doorbell rang. It was a messenger with a telegram from the Navy Department.

His son, First Class Seaman William D. Reidy, 21, was alive and well, the Navy Department informed him.

"I wouldn't take a million dollars for that message," Reidy said yesterday.

He stayed up until dawn, telephoning and telegraphing friends and relatives to inform them that "Billy" was not dead as had been reported to him by a Navy chaplain in the middle of December.

Masses were said in St. Dominic's, St. Martin's and St. John's churches. Meanwhile the father continued working as a guard at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

"Billy" was born in Washington and educated at St. Dominic's School, Jefferson Junior High School and the Abbott Vocational School. He enlisted in the Navy in September, 1940, after working here as a plumber's assistant and for the Associated Press.

A younger brother, Michael J. Reidy, lives in Silver Spring, Md. Their mother died 14 years ago.

HSA Trustees Are Inducted

Health Security Administration yesterday announced the induction of William J. Flather, jr., Canon Merritt Williams, Donald Roberts and Frank A. Birgfeld as trustees.

Elected as representatives of the public were Ernest G. Draper, Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Frank Allen West, Albert Lawson, Daniel J. O'Donoghue, jr., Mrs. Morris Cafritz, John Pratt and Donald Sheehan.

Birgfeld was elected treasurer of HSA, succeeding Willard C. Smith, new administrator.

Rent-Control Office Begins Task Today

Specific Inquiries From Landlords, Tenants Will Be Answered by Staff

Two hundred thousand rent payers in Washington will be concerned with the opening this morning of the office of Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell, who will be in charge of the controls authorized by the emergency act which becomes effective today.

Cogswell announced that his staff is ready to answer inquiries at the headquarters, in the Force School, 1740 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, telephone COlumbia 3533.

The administrator said the only cases handled would be those based on actual complaint filed by a tenant or a landlord. He appealed for public cooperation and urged that people refrain from sending in "groups of hypothetical questions."

Cogswell quoted the basic provision of the Emergency Act, which freezes rents here, beginning today, at the levels of January 1, 1941. Landlords are forbidden to collect more, and those who have raised rents in the last year are required to lower them. Landlords who believe the raises were justified are entitled to apply for a hearing of their claims.

The act forbids evictions, whether or not there is a lease, unless the tenant is using the property for an unlawful purpose, violating his lease agreement, or the property has been sold to be used as a dwelling by the purchaser.

Forms for petitions by landlords or tenants will be available by the end of next week.

Ship Romance To End in Nuptials For A. P. Man's Son

An Army Air Corps pilot, the son of an Associated Press correspondent in Washington, will be married at Hamilton Field, Calif., on Sunday to a girl he met on a steamer returning from Japan. The wedding will be a military ceremony.

The flier is Lieut. Miles Werner, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Werner, of 2445 Fifteenth Street Northwest. The elder Werner was formerly a correspondent in Europe and is now assigned to the State Department here. The bride is Miss Letty Warrington, 24, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Warrington, of Corvallis, Oreg., where Dr. Warrington teaches education at Oregon State College.

The couple met four years ago, when young Werner, then a student at U. C. L. A., was returning from a summer spent studying the Japanese language in Nippon. Miss Warrington was returning from service as a war nurse in northern China after the Japanese invasion.

Mickey Rooney Tops List Three Times in a Row

Leads Money-Making Stars Again in 1941; Hollywood Luminaries Pay Capital a Visit; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THE TENTH ANUUAL POLL OF EXHIBITORS conducted by Martin Quigley's leading trade publications, the Motion Picture Herald and Fame, has come up with as authentic a list of the ten top money-making screen stars of 1941 as it is possible to determine. Here they are:

1. MICKEY ROONEY
2. CLARK GABLE
3. ABBOTT & COSTELLO
4. BOB HOPE
5. SPENCER TRACY
6. GENE AUTRY
7. GARY COOPER
8. BETTE DAVIS
9. JAMES CAGNEY
10. JUDY GARLAND

There is nothing surprising in this roster of names that attract the longest lines to the box-offices of the country when they are displayed on the theater marquees. They are approximately the ones that would be selected by any seasoned observer of the cinema, auditor with an adding machine or not. In the case of some of them, however, there are facts worthy of note.

This is the third consecutive time, for example, that Mickey Rooney has headed the money roll, thus limiting the number of stars who have shared this distinction of drawing the greatest returns at the ticket wickets to four. In 1932 and '33 it was the late Marie Dressler who led them all; in 1934, Will Rogers, and in 1935, '36, '37 and '38, that other fabulous youngster, Shirley Temple.

Despite the fact that he isn't first in the voting, Clark Gable is entitled to some sort of special recognition for his record down the decade. There never has been a year out of the ten when he hasn't been included among the ten greatest box-office magnets—and up near the head of the class, at that.

Since both have scored so decisively in training camp comedies, Abbott and Costello, inseparable in the voting, and Bob Hope, in positions 3 and 4, respectively, seem to personify a huge public preference for this hilarious type of entertainment. Up, at least, to December 7, that is.

If your own personal favorite fails to show among the first ten, the name probably will be found in the Herald-Fame listing of the Fifteen Roll of Honor Stars who came next as money-getters, in this order: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, James Stewart, Errol Flynn, Dorothy Lamour, Betty Grable, Bing Crosby, Ginger Rogers, Wallace Beery, Jack Benny, Robert Taylor, Don Ameche, Cary Grant, Deanna Durbin and William Powell.

Hail to the Visiting Firemen!

EDWARD ARNOLD

Another holiday transient retracing familiar ground is Forrest Tucker, former student at George Washington University and resident of Arlington, who dropped out of the clouds via Eastern Airlines a day or two ago to visit his mother, Mrs. Doris T. Patton. The stalwart Mr. Tucker's most recent films are "Honolulu Lou," "Canal Zone" and "Camp Nuts," just completed and still to be seen on local screens.

Welcome home, fellas, I always say.

By some strange, but fortunate, coincidence, the first screen bookings for 1942 in the Loew theaters in Washington will be picturized novels of the first rank. At the Capitol, the next attraction will be John Marquad's "H. M. Pulham, Esquire," with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey in the principal roles. Following "Babes on Broadway," at the Palace, will come Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley," costarring Walter Pidgeon and Maureen O'Hara, and next at the Columbia will be Dumas' "The Corsican Brothers," costarring Douglas Fairbanks, jr. No use trying to go wrong on any of these, because it can't be done.

Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins, who preside over the happy destinies of the Little Theater, weren't fooling last week when they advertised it as the "final" one for "Lost Horizon." It was the "last week" up to the last few minutes. Then so many bona fide requests poured in on Mrs. Miller and Mr. Tolkins to continue the run that there was nothing left for them but to break down and do it.

In-Case-You-Weren't-Listening Note

Perhaps 'A Girl Must Live,' But One Gently Wonders Why

"A GIRL MUST LIVE." Gainsborough picturization, for Universal release, of a story by Emery Bonett, adapted to the screen by Frederick Lonsdale, costarring Margaret Lockwood and Hugh Sinclair, with Renee Houston, Lilli Palmer, George Robey, Naunton Wayne, David Burns, Mary Clare, Kathleen Harrison, Moore Marriott and Drusilla Wills. Directed by Carol Reed. At the Pix Theater.

A little something called "A Girl Must Live" is being presented for the first time on a Washington screen as the New Year's attraction at the Pix Theater. It has as its principal players the highly capable Margaret Lockwood, Renee Houston, Lilli Palmer and Hugh Sinclair, supported by a considerable group of British artists whose names mean as little as their vehicle will to American audiences.

"A Girl Must Live," it seems, was produced and first exhibited in England back about 1939, was acquired by Universal for American distribution, edited to a length fortunately briefer than its original and catalogued with last year's releases. Somewhere along the line, whatever claim to distinction, or even average merit, the piece ever may have possessed was lost.

The story is based upon the doubtful premise that chorus girls are bandits at heart and will resort to any device to snare a husband. Masquerading as the daughter of a famous actress, Leslie James joins the line and eventually finds herself involved in a complicated scramble for the favor of the Earl of Pangborough, who had trouble enough as it was. Things culminate with superb artificiality during a weekend house party on the earl's ancestral acreage.

Miss Lockwood and Hugh Sinclair struggle along as best they can under the vicious handicap of their roles through a series of "situations" that are cattily aggravated by Renee Houston and Lilli Palmer, the chorus' two high priestesses of plunder. Washington audiences will recognize one of the picture's best performances in the one contributed by David Burns, currently scoring a huge personal hit as Ludlow Lowell, the artists' representative in "Pal Joey," at the National.

Presented as a companion attraction is a classical screen concert participated in by Alfred Cortot, Gregor Pistigorsky, 'cellist; Jacques Thibaud, violinist; Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, and Ninon Vallin in an ultra-impressionistic interpretation of Gabriel Faure's "Les Berceaux." All would be fine examples of music at its best, had not the sound track succumbed to the ravages of time.

One of General Electric's hyperscientific reels, a shade detached from the layman's interest, and the Fox Movietone News complete the bill.

HEDDA HOPPER

Not Quite Speechless!

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 1.—Winston Churchill's visit to Washington is very different from the last one he made in Hollywood. When he was entertained at luncheon at Metro, with all the stars in attendance, he, of course, was guest of honor, and was asked to make a speech. He did. It was short and brilliant. When it was over, Toastmaster Fred Niblo said, "I'm sure you've all enjoyed Mr. Churchill's speech and I'm certain you'd like to hear it again." And at that moment the playback of the speech came on. You see, the moviemakers had concealed a microphone in the flowers on his table. And I don't believe Mr. Churchill has worn a more startled expression before or since.

CECIL B. DeMILLE

It's right and fittin' that the first picture to be shown at the El Capitan, when it's turned into a movie house, will be Cecil DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind," which I hear is but beautiful. He thinks it's his best . . . Dick Pollard, of Life Magazine, tells me "Kings Row" is a five handkerchief picture . . . And Sam Wood, who directed that, says our Wilshire Boulevard "suicide" Sunday drivers should be forced to enlist in the tank corps—that would larn those Japs.

Dottie Lamour is being sent East to sell Defense Bonds. Her first stop is Washington, D. C. . . . Bill Hopper celebrated Christmas by having a three-day siege of the flu . . . With all our managers, it's quite a feather in the cap of Roy Meyers to sign up Greta Garbo.

Ran into Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire and Bill Hearst on the "Holiday Inn" set. The topic of conversation was whether horses would run or stand still at Santa Anita. If they don't run, they'll stand still, Bing tells me, 'cause there's no place for them to go. And if there were, with the war emergency, they couldn't get transportation.

After reading about these West Coast blackouts, Kay Kyser's mother was too perturbed to write him, so had her long-time Negro servant do it. This is what Kay received: "Your mama says for you not to go to San Francisco unless you're alone or with somebody. And then don't go."

Florence Bates turned down a big role in the new Katharine Cornell play, because she's up for the role of Lou Gehrig's mother in the Goldwyn picture.

Paul Muni is none too happy about his forthcoming role in "Chopin" and will probably drop it. I couldn't see from the first his playing second fiddle to Glenn Ford's piano.

June Havoc, whose three pictures haven't been released yet, said as she left for New York, "It's wonderful. I can still go back and see my friends in peace."

LEONARD LYONS

New York, Jan. 1.

Last week in Washington, after the President had conferred with Winston Churchill and representatives of the other Allied nations, Maxim Litvinoff was asked whether he had entered into a secret pact at the White House . . . "No. We have made no secret 'pact,'" replied the Russian Ambassador. "Any agreement into which we have entered is open for all the world to see. Besides, it's impossible to enter into a secret pact with the United States Government. Within three days after any secret pact could be made, the news would appear in a New York column."

CHIC JOHNSON

Until December 7, Time magazine's man of the year was Henry Ford. His photo was scheduled to appear on the magazine's cover. The man-of-the-year story was to describe Ford as the man upon whose production talents would depend the problem of arming America. But when, on December 7, the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt was substituted as man of the year. . . . Former Ambassador Joe Davies will be the best fed diplomat in America next year. Davies, who once was this Nation's representative in Moscow, has won 72 dinner bets, betting on the length of time Moscow would hold out against the Nazi army . . . Abbott & Costello's first phonograph record will be called "Laughs."

A backstage visitor at the Belasco Theater suggested to producer Billy Rose that the "Clash by Night" set be shortened—so that the cast wouldn't have to squeeze through a corner, to take the final bows. "To an actor, that's unimportant," replied Rose. "If, instead of a tight corner, we had a flock of Russian wolves here, an actor would fight through them barehanded, just to take a bow" . . . John O'Hara leaves for Hollywood Friday, to do the movie version of "Pal Joey" . . . Lana Turner, who never appeared in a stage production, rejected an offer to star in a play. "The only thing it could get me," she explained, "is a movie contract—which I already have."

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of President Harrison, went to a night club for the first time in her life, the other night. She visited the Rainbow Room where Ruth Page, whose mother is one of Mrs. Harrison's friends, now dances . . . Miss Page decided that the dinner-show on Monday night before New Year's would be quiet enough for a venerable lady making a first trip to a night club. But the room was jammed with a number of deb-parties. And Mrs. Harrison remained there until 2 a. m.—when she left, declaring: "I cannot understand why people ever objected to night clubs . . . Oh, the fun I've missed."

The President's Christmas presents to his war-program advisers were autographed copies of specially-bound volumes containing his 1941 speeches . . . The newest Broadway racket is based upon the strange antics ever prevalent at "Sons O' Fun." Restaurants in the neighborhood receive phone calls to rush a fried chicken, plus $20 in dimes, to the Winter Garden Theater, for Olson and Johnson. The restaurateurs, never surprised at any odd request coming from that show, oblige. The racketeer, who waits in the lobby, has worked this trick three times . . . Garson Kanin has enlisted the services of Ben Hecht in writing a movie for O. E. M.'s film division.

Diana Barrymore telephoned the boxoffice at the Astor Theater, to purchase some tickets for "The Shanghai Gesture." The house was a complete sell-out that evening. "This is Miss Barrymore," said Diana. "I'd like to buy some tickets for tonight" . . . "We're all sold out," replied the boxoffice man. "Not a ticket left. By the way—which, Barrymore are you?" . . . "Ethel," said Diana . . . "In that case," said the boxoffice man, "somehow, some way, I'll get two tickets for you."

The British government is making an official movie about the activities of the Commandos—the specially trained soldiers who make sudden forays along the coast of France, and whose training is the toughest ever given to any group of fighters . . . In this movie, the Commandos will appear together with soldiers of other regiments. An army officer, assigned to the production, told the director: "In the fight sequences, make it understood that Commando is to fight against Commando, and regiment against regiment. Under no circumstances is a regiment to fight a Commando." . . . "But why not?" asked the director . . . "Because the Commandos are bad actors," said the officer. "They don't know where to stop."

Oregon State Win Over Duke Tops New Year's Classics

By the United Press

Almost a quarter-million football fans attended the five bowl games, classics featured by Oregon State's 20-16 victory over Duke in the war-transplanted Rose Bowl tilt at Durham, N. C.

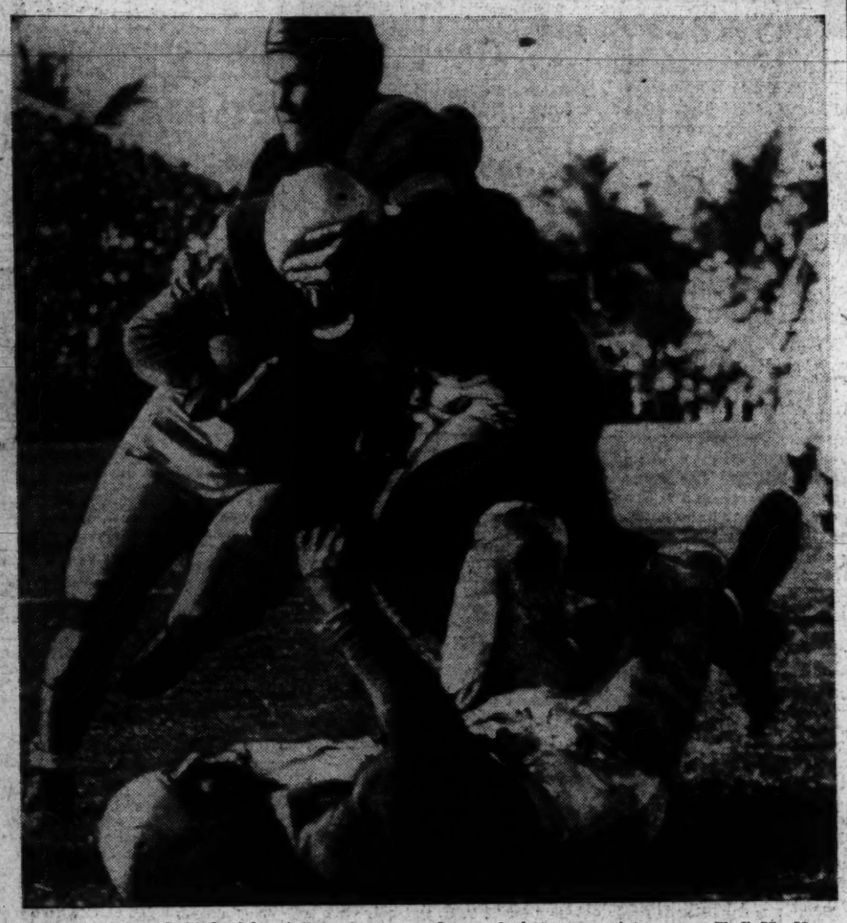
Oregon State ranked as 1-3 underdogs, but the Beavers, watched by a throng of 56,000, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter, left the field at the half tied at 7-7 and then came back with two more touchdowns in the third period while holding vaunted Duke to a paltry safety during the final 15 minutes.

Top crowd of the day—73,000—watched Fordham eke out a 2-0 victory over Missouri in the eighth renewal of the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. Big Steve Hudacek, Fordham tackle, blocked a Missouri punt for a safety in the first period, providing the 2 points.

Broken-jawed Frankie Sinkwich paced the University of Georgia to a 40-26 triumph over Texas Christian University in the eighth Orange Bowl classic at Miami, Fla., before 40,000 fans. Georgia scored 19 points in the first period while holding T. C. U. to 7, added 14 to the Texans' zero in the second and finished with 7 more in the third. Only in the fourth did the Georgians go scoreless, while T. C. U. tallied 12.

Alabama put on a 9-point scoring burst in the fourth period and defeated Texas A. and M., 29-21, before 33,000 in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex. George Hecht booted a field goal from the 21, while an Aggie player tipped a forward pass into the hands of Holt Rast, Alabama's All-America end, who ran 15 yards to the goal.

End Saxon Judd took a pass from Halfback Glenn Dobbs in the last minute and a half of play to give Tulsa University's Golden Hurricane a 6-0 victory over Texas Tech in the seventh annual Sun Bowl football game at El Paso.



3. . . . Frank Sinkwich, of Georgia, ran and passed his team to victory over T. C. U. He is pictured plunging for a good gain and first down. The underdog Texans . . .

4. . . . scored on the Georgians in the first period as Kyle Gillespie (arrow), head down and feet flying, ploughed over for 5 yards with half the Georgians hanging on. At New Orleans . . .

Mickey Rooney Tops List Three Times in a Row

Leads Money-Making Stars Again in 1941; Hollywood Luminaries Pay Capital a Visit; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THE TENTH ANUUAL POLL OF EXHIBITORS conducted by Martin Quigley's leading trade publications, the Motion Picture Herald and Fame, has come up with as authentic a list of the ten top money-making screen stars of 1941 as it is possible to determine. Here they are:

1. MICKEY ROONEY	6. GENE AUTRY
2. CLARK GABLE	7. GARY COOPER
3. ABBOTT & COSTELLO	8. BETTE DAVIS
4. BOB HOPE	9. JAMES CAGNEY
5. SPENCER TRACY	10. JUDY GARLAND

There is nothing surprising in this roster of names that attract the longest lines to the box-offices of the country when they are displayed on the theater marquees. They are approximately the ones that would be selected by any seasoned observer of the cinema, auditor with an adding machine or not. In the case of some of them, however, there are facts worthy of note.

This is the third consecutive time, for example, that Mickey Rooney has headed the money roll, thus limiting the number of stars who have shared this distinction of drawing the greatest returns at the ticket wickets to four. In 1932 and '33 it was the late Marie Dressler who led them all; in 1934, Will Rogers, and in 1935, '36, '37 and '38, that other fabulous youngster, Shirley Temple.

Despite the fact that he isn't first in the voting, Clark Gable is entitled to some sort of special recognition for his record dowg the decade. There never has been a year out of the ten when he hasn't been included among the ten greatest box-office magnets—and up near the head of the class, at that.

Since both have scored so decisively in training camp comedies, Abbott and Costello, inseparable in the voting, and Bob Hope, in positions 3 and 4, respectively, seem to personify a huge public preference for this hilarious type of entertainment. Up, at least, to December 7, that is.

If your own personal favorite fails to show among the first ten, the name probably will be found in the Herald-Fame listing of the Fifteen Roll of Honor Stars who came next as money-getters, in this order: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, James Stewart, Errol Flynn, Dorothy Lamour, Betty Grable, Bing Crosby, Ginger Rogers, Wallace Beery, Jack Benny, Robert Taylor, Don Ameche, Cary Grant, Deanna Durbin and William Powell.

Hail to the Visiting Firemen!

EDWARD ARNOLD

Another holiday transient retracing familiar ground is Forrest Tucker, former student at George Washington University and resident of Arlington, who dropped out of the clouds via Eastern Airlines a day or two ago to visit his mother, Mrs. Doris T. Patton. The stalwart Mr. Tucker's most recent films are "Honolulu Lou," "Canal Zone" and "Camp Nuts," just completed and still to be seen on local screens.

Welcome home, fellas, I always say.

By some strange, but fortunate, coincidence, the first screen bookings for 1942 in the Loew theaters in Washington will be picturized novels of the first rank. At the Capitol, the next attraction will be John Marquad's "H. M. Pulham, Esquire," with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey in the principal roles. Following "Babes on Broadway," at the Palace, will come Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley," costarring Walter Pidgeon and Maureen O'Hara, and next at the Columbia will be Dumas' "The Corsican Brothers," costarring Douglas Fairbanks, jr. No use trying to go wrong on any of these, because it can't be done.

Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins, who preside over the happy destinies of the Little Theater, weren't fooling last week when they advertised it as the "final" one for "Lost Horizon." It was the "last week" up to the last few minutes. Then so many bona fide requests poured in on Mrs. Miller and Mr. Tolkins to continue the run that there was nothing left for them but to break down and do it.

In-Case-You-Weren't-Listening Note

Perhaps 'A Girl Must Live,' But One Gently Wonders Why

"A GIRL MUST LIVE." Gainsborough picturization, for Universal release, of a story by Emery Bonett, adapted to the screen by Frank Launder, costarring Margaret Lockwood and Hugh Sinclair, with Renee Houston, Lilli Palmer, George Robey, Naunton Wayne, David Burns, Mary Clare, Kathleen Harrison, Moore Marriott and Drusilla Wills. Directed by Carol Reed. At the Pix Theater.

A little something called "A Girl Must Live" is being presented for the first time on a Washington screen as the New Year's attraction at the Pix Theater. It has as its principal players the highly capable Margaret Lockwood, Renee Houston, Lilli Palmer and Hugh Sinclair, supported by a considerable group of British artists whose names mean as little as their vehicle will to American audiences.

"A Girl Must Live," it seems, was produced and first exhibited in England back about 1939, was acquired by Universal for American distribution, edited to a length fortunately briefer than its original and catalogued with last year's releases. Somewhere along the line, whatever claim to distinction, or even average merit, the piece ever may have possessed was lost.

The story is based upon the doubtful premise that chorus girls are bandits at heart and will resort to any device to snare a husband. Masquerading as the daughter of a famous actress, Leslie James joins the line and eventually finds herself involved in a complicated scramble for the favor of the Earl of Pangborough, who had trouble enough as it was. Things culminate with superb artificiality during a weekend house party on the earl's ancestral acreage.

Miss Lockwood and Hugh Sinclair struggle along as best they can under the vicious handicap of their roles through a series of "situations" that are cattily aggravated by Renee Houston and Lilli Palmer, the chorus' two high priestesses of plunder. Washington audiences will recognize one of the picture's best performances in the one contributed by David Burns, currently scoring a huge personal hit as Ludlow Lowell, the artists' representative in "Pal Joey," at the National.

Presented as a companion attraction is a classical screen concert participated in by Alfred Cortot, Gregor Pistigorsky, 'cellist; Jacques Thibaud, violinist; Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, and Ninon Vallin in an ultra-impressionistic interpretation of Gabriel Faure's "Les Berceaux." All would be fine examples of music at its best, had not the sound track succumbed to the ravages of time.

Not Quite Speechless!

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 1.—Winston Churchill's visit to Washington is very different from the last one he made in Hollywood. When he was entertained at luncheon at Metro, with all the stars in attendance, he, of course, was guest of honor, and was asked to make a speech. He did. It was short and brilliant. When it was over, Toastmaster Fred Niblo said, "I'm sure you've all enjoyed Mr. Churchill's speech and I'm certain you'd like to hear it again." And at that moment the playback of the speech came on. You see, the moviemakers had concealed a microphone in the flowers on his table. And I don't believe Mr. Churchill has worn a more startled expression before or since.

CECIL B. DeMILLE

It's right and fittin' that the first picture to be shown at the El Capitan, when it's turned into a movie house, will be Cecil DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind," which I hear is but beautiful. He thinks it's his best . . . Dick Pollard, of Life Magazine, tells me "Kings Row" is a five handkerchief picture . . . And Sam Wood, who directed that, says our Wilshire Boulevard "suicide" Sunday drivers should be forced to enlist in the tank corps—that would larn those Japs.

Dottie Lamour is being sent East to sell Defense Bonds. Her first stop is Washington, D. C. . . . Bill Hopper celebrated Christmas by having a three-day siege of the flu . . . With all our managers, it's quite a feather in the cap of Roy Meyers to sign up Greta Garbo.

Ran into Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire and Bill Hearst on the "Holiday Inn" set. The topic of conversation was whether horses would run or stand still at Santa Anita. If they don't run, they'll stand still, Bing tells me, 'cause there's no place for them to go. And if there were, with the war emergency, they couldn't get transportation.

After reading about these West Coast blackouts, Kay Kyser's mother was too perturbed to write him, so had her long-time Negro servant do it. This is what Kay received: "Your mama says for you not to go to San Francisco unless you're alone or with somebody. And then don't go."

Florence Bates turned down a big role in the new Katharine Cornell play, because she's up for the role of Lou Gehrig's mother in the Goldwyn picture.

Paul Muni is none too happy about his forthcoming role in "Chopin" and will probably drop it. I couldn't see from the first his playing second fiddle to Glenn Ford's piano.

June Havoc, whose three pictures haven't been released yet, said as she left for New York, "It's wonderful. I can still go back and see my friends in peace."

Three Days of Grace

New York, Jan. 1.

Last week in Washington, after the President had conferred with Winston Churchill and representatives of the other Allied nations, Maxim Litvinoff was asked whether he had entered into a secret pact at the White House . . . "No. We have made no secret pact," replied the Russian Ambassador. "Any agreement into which we have entered is open for all the world to see. Besides, it's impossible to enter into a secret pact with the United States Government. Within three days after any secret pact could be made, the news would appear in a New York column."

CHIC JOHNSON

Until December 7, Time magazine's man of the year was Henry Ford. His photo was scheduled to appear on the magazine's cover. The man-of-the-year story was to describe Ford as the man upon whose production talents would depend the problem of arming America. But when, on December 7, the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt was substituted as man of the year. . . . Former Ambassador Joe Davies will be the best fed diplomat in America next year. Davies, who once was this Nation's representative in Moscow, has won 72 dinner bets, betting on the length of time Moscow would hold out against the Nazi army . . . Abbott & Costello's first phonograph record will be called "Laughs."

A backstage visitor at the Belasco Theater suggested to producer Billy Rose that the "Clash by Night" set be shortened—so that the cast wouldn't have to squeeze through a corner, to take the final bows. "To an actor, that's unimportant," replied Rose. "If, instead of a tight corner, we had a flock of Russian wolves here, an actor would fight through them barehanded, just to take a bow" . . . John O'Hara leaves for Hollywood Friday, to do the movie version of "Pal Joey" . . . Lana Turner, who never appeared in a stage production, rejected an offer to star in a play. "The only thing it could get me," she explained, "is a movie contract—which I already have."

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of President Harrison, went to a night club for the first time in her life, the other night. She visited the Rainbow Room where Ruth Page, whose mother is one of Mrs. Harrison's friends, now dances . . . Miss Page decided that the dinner-show on Monday night before New Year's would be quiet enough for a venerable lady making a first trip to a night club. But the room was jammed with a number of deb-parties. And Mrs. Harrison remained there until 2 a. m.—when she left, declaring: "I cannot understand why people ever objected to night clubs . . . Oh, the fun I've missed."

The President's Christmas presents to his war-program advisers were autographed copies of specially-bound volumes containing his 1941 speeches . . . The newest Broadway racket is based upon the strange antics ever prevalent at "Sons O' Fun." Restaurants in the neighborhood receive phone calls to rush a fried chicken, plus $20 in dimes, to the Winter Garden Theater, for Olson and Johnson. The restaurateurs, never surprised at any odd request coming from that show, oblige. The racketeer, who waits in the lobby, has worked this trick three times . . . Garson Kanin has enlisted the services of Ben Hecht in writing a movie for O. E. M.'s film division.

Diana Barrymore telephoned the boxoffice at the Astor Theater, to purchase some tickets for "The Shanghai Gesture." The house was a complete sell-out that evening. "This is Miss Barrymore," said Diana. "I'd like to buy some tickets for tonight" . . . "We're all sold out," replied the boxoffice man. "Not a ticket left. By the way—which, Barrymore are you?" . . . "Ethel," said Diana . . . "In that case," said the boxoffice man, "somehow, some way, I'll get two tickets for you."

The British government is making an official movie about the activities of the Commandos—the specially trained soldiers who make sudden forays along the coast of France, and whose training is the toughest ever given to any group of fighters . . . In this movie, the Commandos will appear together with soldiers of other regiments. An army officer, assigned to the production, told the director: "In the fight sequences, make it understood that Commando is to fight against Commando, and regiment against regiment. Under no corcumstances is a regiment to fight a Commando." . . . "But why not?" asked the director . . . "Because the Commandos are bad actors," said the officer. "They don't know where to stop."

Nearly 250,000 See Nation's Finest Football Teams Meet in Bowl Games

1. At Durham, N. C., where the Rose Bowl game was played because of the war, the favored Blue Devils of Duke went down before Oregon State. Tom Davis (30), of Duke, is shown picking up 6 yards and a first down in the first period. No. 92 is Bob Saunders, of Oregon State. Oregon State's . . .

Oregon State Win Over Duke Tops New Year's Classics

By the United Press

Almost a quarter-million football fans attended the five bowl games, classics featured by Oregon State's 20-16 victory over Duke in the war-transplanted Rose Bowl tilt at Durham, N. C.

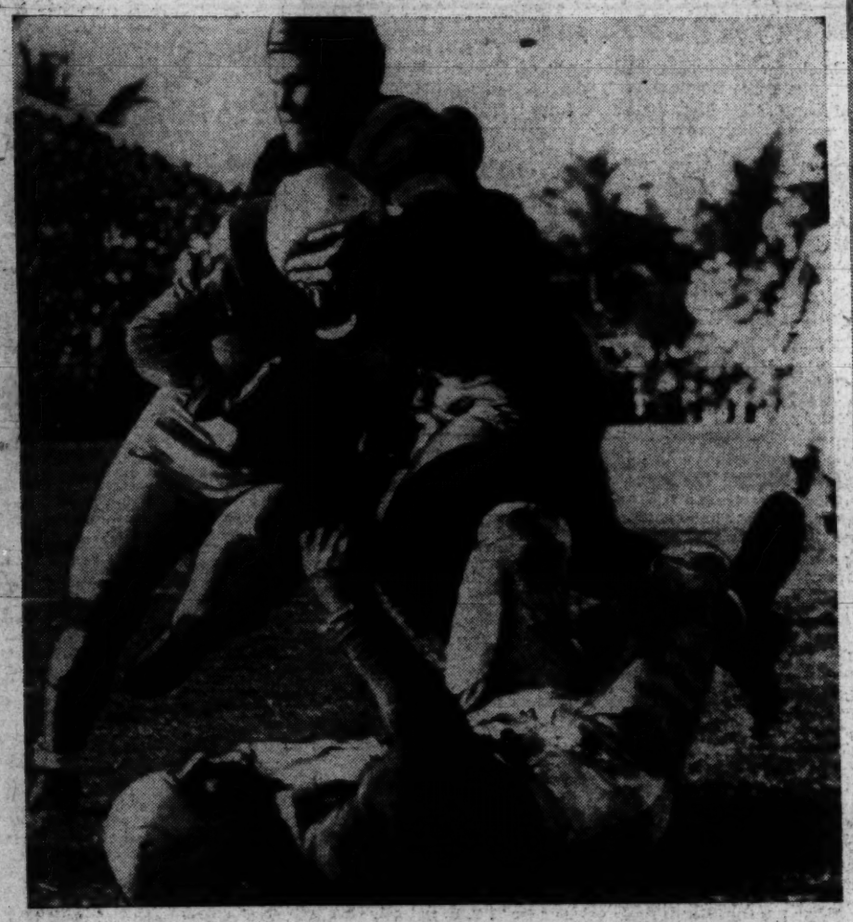
Oregon State ranked as 1-3 underdogs, but the Beavers, watched by a throng of 56,000, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter, left the field at the half tied at 7-7 and then came back with two more touchdowns in the third period while holding vaunted Duke to a paltry safety during the final 15 minutes.

Top crowd of the day—73,000—watched Fordham eke out a 2-0 victory over Missouri in the eighth renewal of the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. Big Steve Hudacek, Fordham tackle, blocked a Missouri punt for a safety in the first period, providing the 2 points.

Broken-jawed Frankie Sinkwich paced the University of Georgia to a 40-26 triumph over Texas Christian University in the eighth Orange Bowl classic at Miami, Fla., before 40,000 fans. Georgia scored 19 points in the first period while holding T. C. U. to 7, added 14 to the Texans' zero in the second and finished with 7 more in the third. Only in the fourth did the Georgians go scoreless, while T. C. U. tallied 12.

Alabama put on a 9-point scoring burst in the fourth period and defeated Texas A. and M., 29-21, before 33,000 in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex. George Hecht booted a field goal from the 21, while an Aggie player tipped a forward pass into the hands of Holt Rast, Alabama's All-America end, who ran 15 yards to the goal.

End Saxon Judd took a pass from Halfback Glenn Dobbs in the last minute and a half of play to give Tulsa University's Golden Hurricane a 6-0 victory over Texas Tech in the seventh annual Sun Bowl football game at El Paso.



3. . . . Frank Sinkwich, of Georgia, ran and passed his team to victory over T. C. U. He is pictured plunging for a good gain and first down. The underdog Texans . . .

He was downed a few steps later on the 25-yard line after running from his own one. This play was in the first period. Then came the . . .

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—Although we'd rather talk about the transplanted Rose Bowl game, please bear with us while we occultly outline a few events which will come to pass during the coming year:

CONSIDINE

Jack Kelly, the veteran Philadelphia oarsmen, will be hailed as the savior of America's sports program. As head of the sports department of Fiorella La Guardia's Civilian Defense group, Kelly will see to it that short-sighted authorities do not crush sports again "for the duration" as they crushed them during World War 1.

Clark Griffith should (but probably won't) be named to the baseball hall of fame . . . the Cleveland Indians, under Doughty Lou Boudreua, will make it a fourth with the Browns, Athletics and Senators, in a mighty struggle for last place in the American League . . . the Yanks will make it two in a row, and six out of seven . . . the Cards will bring dismay to Brooklyn . . . Joe Louis, profiting by the mistakes he made last year, will early nail Buddy Baer and Billy Conn but will have trouble with Lem Franklin in a charity fight in September . . . some 20-to-1 short will win the National Golf Open because Sam Snead and Ben Hogan, the two best players, will have worn themselves out before then . . . Ted Schroeder will win the National Tennis singles . . . the veteran Willie Hoppe, who, as Bugs Baer says, is misspending his second childhood, will boss the billiards players again.

Oh, yes, and Alsab will keep steadfast that hoary tradition that winners, of the Belmont futurity never win the Kentucky Derby. Ineligible for the futurity, Alsab nonetheless was the leading 2-year-old of 1941 . . . bookmakers will be flooded with bettors who want to lay an also ran parley bet on Japan and the Phillies . . . the public will demand indignantly that Bowl games split up their swag with war chests, to relieve the tax load . . . the fight between Private Joseph Louis and Bos'n's Mate William Conn will gross $750,000 . . . freshmen will play college varsity football . . . most sports events will give a portion of the receipts to war work . . . Ray Robinson will win the welterweight championship.

I'll bet a sawbuck that you, along with me, always believed that when Benjamin Duke left that $34,000,000 to little Trinity College, with the understanding that it become Duke University, he made possible the big-time sports program that has done more than anything else to make Duke a nationally known institution.

Astonishing truth of the matter is that Duke didn"t leave $34,000,000 to the great educational set-up that bears his name. He left $33,999,999. The remaining dollar he specifically designated, was for sports. Apparently the old boy had a great hatred for all muscular activity, though goodness knows, he was generous enough in other respects. For in addition to Duke, his money underwrites a portion of the work at Furman and Davidson Colleges, takes care of indigent Methodist ministers, and gives all the hospitals in North and South Carolina $1 a day for taking in charity patients. But sports, he apparently abhorred.

Yet Duke has become a great sports foundry. Its magnificent stadium, housing today's orphan Rose Bowl game, is one of the most beautiful in the country. It seats 55,000 and was built without a penny of Duke's dough. Jimmy Dehart, former athletic boss, engineered the bond issue which put it up. Tennis courts which reach almost as far as the eye can travel, were paid for out of football receipts, as were many other sports facilities on the campus. The tremendous Duke University gymnasium, a structure that fits imperfectly with the granite surroundings, cost more than $100,000. None of it came out of that original $1 left by Duke for the Duke sports program. It was bought and paid for by the $110,000 which the 1938 Duke football team carried away from the Rose Bowl for playing 60 minutes (and losing) to Southern California.

P. S.—Don't think that Pasadena's tournament of Roses committee isn't grateful for the asylum offered the Rose Bowl game by Duke. Bob McCurdy, president of the Tournament of Roses, is going to ship hundreds of rose bushes to Duke, as soon as he gets back to the Coast, to be planted around the Duke stdaium to commemorate for years to come this great day.

No Sun, No Roses at Rose Bowl, But Oh What a Football Game!

Durham Couldn't Match Pasadena for Color But 55,000 Fans Were More Than Satisfied

By Ben Dulaney

Post Sports Editor

Duke Stadium, Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—There weren't any parades before today's Duke-Oregon State game. There wasn't a girl in a bathing suit anywhere—not even a movie actress. You couldn't even buy a chrysanthemum—much less a rose. Also the California sun must have stayed in California.

No, the transplanted Rose Bowl didn't bring its color with it. But, gentlemen, the 55,000 who plunked down their four-forty apiece saw just about the greatest exhibition of collegiate football ever presented in the East.

That phrase has been tossed around a lot, but this time it's no exaggeration.

The score, as you know, was 20-16, favor of the 1-3 underdog visitors from the Northwest. The score could have been 73-0 (remember?) for either team. Here's probably the best summation of the game to jaded Washington: For years you've stayed away from Griffith Stadium on Fridays and Saturdays for the college games. For years you've packed Griffith Stadium on Sundays to see the Redskins. You know you'll see impossible pass completions, delayed off-tackle plays that produce astonishing amounts of ground, great punting, and great runbacks. You know you'll get your money's worth in thrills and excitement.

Well, the Devils and the Beavers played today like the 'Skins and the New York Giants when the latter two mayhem squads are really in a bad humor.

So much happened here this afternoon that one sports writer looked down at his typewriter long enough to write the letter "I" and missed two touchdowns, a 60-yard pass play (complete with a double interception) and an attempted field goal.

The writing boys who are accustomed to start their leads on fair-to-middlin' ball games with such phrases as "My heart is in my elbows," "My eyes are blind with tears of sheer excitement" and the like couldn't write a thing here today. Their hearts were really in their elbows and they were crying like hell.

In short, gentlemen and ladies, you should have been here.

By the way, if you want to know anything about a football game between Duke and Oregon State you'd better search some adjoining columns. My heart is in my elbows and I'm crying like hell too.

NOTES: As always, the same old scalper situation: Last night the boys were asking—and getting—from $8 to $15 for a $4.40 ticket. Last night the moon was shining brightly. Today, lining the long, muddy path across Duke's campus to the stadium, was a strange and motley assortment of individuals, waving pasteboards and bellowing plaintively. Two blocks away it was: "Good ticket on the 50-yard line—only three bucks, men."

A hundred yards from the gate a lad was yelling: "Three together, only $2 apiece"—and getting no takers. Right at the entrance a gent with a red nose was screaming into the drizzle: "Two good tickets for 15 cents"—so help us to glory.

Astonishing thing about the Oregon squad was its lack of precision in going from huddle to formation—but after about 2 minutes of today's presentation it became apparent that it was all part of a nefarious system to confuse the enemy into thinking the Beavers just didn't know nuthin' at all. . . . And one pleasure of the afternoon was the complete absence of professional hawkers, beggars and vendors. The kids that sold the popcorn and peanuts were natives, but they gypped you just the same. . . . It was a nice amateur game without any Pinkerton detectives and strong-arm ushers. You just went in and sat down. There wasn't even a scoreboard you could see.

The announcer could have been talking in Russian or Cadjian. But nobody cared.

It was a lovely afternoon.

No Old-Time Gaiety Visible At Pasadena

By the Associated Press

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1.—Occasional stacks of lumber and skeletons of grandstands were about all that reminded Pasadena of the glory of former New Year's days.

A few sentimentalists, some perhaps who had seen and taken part in many of the previous 5" Rose tournaments, strolled along spacious Colorado Boulevard recalling spectacles of the past and visioning what might have been today.

Hundreds of thousands usually throng Pasadena on New Year's to see the flowered floats and hear the bands. But the parade was canceled this year, as were the colorful Rose Bowl football game and the races at nearby Santa Anita, because of the war.

A group of Pasadena junior college students hastily organized a band and, in V-formation, marched down the boulevard playing whatever they could think of.

Between halves of the game at Durham, N. C., a handful of tournament officials went to the now dreary Rose Bowl to broadcast greetings.

Beautiful Dolores Jean Brubach, chosen the parade queen, went to the bowl, too, but not in the flower decked chariot she might have ridden in. She wept a little.

Blocked Punt By Santilli Is Decisive

Rain Mars Sugar Bowl Battle; Only Score Comes in 1st Period; Lines Evenly Matched

By the United Press

New Orleans, Jan. 1.—Through a blinding sheet of rain, two big maroon-jerseyed linemen poured on top of a Missouri punter in the first six minutes of the Sugar Bowl game today and the kick that very few of the 73,000 spectators even saw bounded around behind the goal line and became a safety which gave Fordham a 2-0 victory over the Big Six champions.

The lone score of one of the weirdest football games ever played came with dramatic suddenness and the horrible weather conditions prevented most of the spectators from seeing what happened. The few who did see what happened didn't understand it.

With rain coming down in sheets and torrents—and Missouri back on its own 10-yard line—Don Greenwood, Tiger substitute end, dropped back to punt out on third down. He barely got the ball in his hands when Alex Santilli, 195-pound tackle from Everett, Mass., came tearing in. As the wet ball left Greenwood's toe, it bounded into Santilli's chest and careened crazily around the end zone as Fordham and Missouri players clutched at it with muddy fingers.

Almost a Touchdown

Stanley Ritinski, 185-pound left end from Luzerne, Pa., got to it first. He dived at the rain-slogged ball and had it almost in his possession. But he was slithering across the muddy end zone at about the same time he got possession of the ball.

Ritinski and the ball finally wound up across the end zone line. The only question was whether Ritinski had possession of the ball before he went out of the end zone. The officials ruled he didn't. Therefore, the play was declared a safety giving Fordham two points. It all happened at 5 minutes and 29 seconds into the first period. The rest of the way the mud-caked players battled with might and main to score, but neither was able to cross the other's 19.

The heralded offensive kick of both teams was bottled and corked by the most atrocious weather imaginable. The rain held off until a minute before the game started. With the sun still shining, it began to sprinkle. Before many minutes, the rain was coming down in silver sheets that drenched players and spectators alike. It continued to rain during most of the game, and at one time in the third period a scattering of hail stones also peppered the bowl.

Record Bad Weather

The Sugar Bowl in its eight-year history has seen some gosh-awful weather, notably during the Texas Christian-Louisiana State game in 1936, but nothing to compare with today's terrible conditions.

Missouri made two heroic efforts to pull the game out of the fire in the second half. On the second half kickoff Bob Steuber, Tigers' big right halfback, almost broke away, racing to Fordham's 48 on a 34-yard run. Next, Steuber ran to the Rams' 20 but he was called back to the 33 for having stepped out of bounds.

The game then rocked along until midway in the final period when the Big Six champions started a march from their own 23. With the clock ticking away against them, the Tigers marched to Fordham's 23 before they were smeared. On fourth down Steuber dropped back to the Ram 35 and, with Harry Ice holding the ball, attempted a field goal. The rain, apparently favoring Missouri, slackened off at this point, but Steuber's kick—although dead true—was a few yards short and went under the cross bars. It was the dying gasp of the Missouri Tiger.

Missouri outgained Fordham, and made the longest runs and the most threats, but the Tigers never could

Weather Was No Military Secret to 55,000 in Rose Bowl

Spectators to Duke's 20-16 defeat by Oregon State in the Rose Bowl game yesterday had plenty of football finery but no chance to display it as they huddled under all available covers in the Duke Stadium at Durham. Radio announcers could not mention the actual weather there—military secret—but these folks knew!

Tulsa Defeats Texas Tech In Sun Bowl

By International News Service

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 1.—Tulsa's Golden Hurricane, a gentle breeze most of the afternoon, stormed over the Texas Tech goal in the last 2 minutes of play today for a 6-to-0 victory over the Red Raiders in the seventh Sun Bowl football game.

With the clock ticking off the closing minutes of play and Tulsa holding the ball 65 yards from a touchdown, it looked as though the game would end in a scoreless tie. Then Glenn Dobbs, whose passing and kicking had kept Tulsa knocking at the door much of the game, faded back and fired one down the middle to Saxon Judd, the Hurricane's great sophomore end.

Judd speared the ball with one hand like a baseball outfielder, and raced down the sidelines for the winning touchdown. Hugh Goerner missed the try for conversion, but there was time for only a few more plays, and the Raiders failed to threaten.

A crowd of 14,000 watched Dobbs pass the Tulsans into scoring territory repeatedly during the first three quarters, but on every occasion except in the last stanza, the Raiders were able to halt the Hurricane short of the goal line.

Tide's Nelson Stops Texas Aggies, 29-21

Alabama Hero Runs to Three Touchdowns, Passes to Another in Cotton Bowl Thriller

By the United Press

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 1.—Alabama outscored the Texas Aggies 29 to 21 in a wild and woolly, what's-going-to-happen-next Cotton Bowl game today and the difference was Jimmy Nelson, 180 pounds of football fury.

They call him "old tater head" down in Alabama and he bent his hoggin this chill, sunny afternoon and thrilled 38,000 with ramming, twisting touchdown runs of 72, 21, and eight yards.

The Texans were told they would have to stop Nelson and the rest of the Crimson Tide's array of slippery, speedy backs. The Southwest champions did hold the rest, but they could not stop Nelson.

Alabama won this ball game—its fourth victory in six bowl appearances—with an offensive record of one first down, 59 yards gained from scrimmage, one pass completed, and 16 yards made through the air.

Recovers 5 Fumbles

Alabama won by capitalizing on every break, by recovering five of A. & M.'s six fumbles, by intercepting seven of the Aggies' passes and most of all by Nelson's explosive runs.

Trailing seven to nothing, the Tide surged back in the second period just four minutes after the Texans had counted with their favorite weapon—a pass into the end zone. Little Leo Daniels was both the goat and the hero of the first two touchdowns.

He sparked the Aggies to their score with a 46-yard punt return and a 16-yard touchdown pass that substitute end Harold Cowley gathered in on the eight and carried across. Wester converted.

But minutes later Daniels fumbled a punt on his 25 and big Don Whitmire fell on the ball. Five plays and the Tide had a touchdown. Nelson going around left end 8 yards on a reverse that fooled the entire right side of the Aggie line.

A Great Run

Nelson's 72-yard run was beautiful. Tacklers slid off and slapped at him futilely as he weaved down the sidelines through the entire A. & M. team. It was the same later in the third period when he scored from the 21, except that he had even less blocking. Nelson simply whammed low into a knot of Aggie linesmen, cut and battered his way through, stayed on his feet and then was across the goal line.

A 15-yard return of an intercepted pass by All-America End Holt Rast, gave the Tide its last touchdown.

George Hecht, a guard, accounted for five of Alabama's points, two conversions and a 21-yard field goal in the final period.

With the score 29 to 7 against them, the Aggies made one last courageous splurge. They passed and passed. One drive carried two-thirds the field and Fullback Jake Webster bucked across from the one.

The last Aggie score came when Nelson almost intercepted a pass only to lose the ball to End Jim Sterling, who ran the final 7 yards. That

Rainy Weather Influenced Play In Sugar Bowl

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Jan. 1.—Coaches' comment on the Sugar Bowl game:

Coach Jim Crowley, of Fordham: "It's hard to talk about a game like that one. On a clear day both teams might have run up high scores. Missouri is a grand team and our boys gave their best to win."

Coach Don Faurot, of Missouri: "Although we outran and outpassed them, they outscored us and deserved to win. The blocked punt that scored the game's only points was just a part of the ball game. Jim Crowley had a good defense out there and the weather conditions prevented us from passing so we could open it up."

'Underrated' Beavers Squad 'Showed 'Em'

By the United Press

Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—Youthful Lon Stiner, who arrived from the West Coast eight days ago complaining that his Oregon State football squad was underrated, smiled happily in the dressing room tonight and said quietly that he was glad "the boys showed 'em."

"I guess everybody knows now that we play in a mighty tough league," Stiner said as he guarded the dressing room door against a milling crowd of well wishers. "The boys played fine football. I think we looked pretty good out there today, against a great Duke team."

Stiner was unwilling to single out any member of his 31-man squad for individual praise.

"They all deserve all the credit anyone can give them," he said, adding that Oregon State played "one of its best games" in trimming the finest Duke team in history for the Beavers' first Rose Bowl triumph.

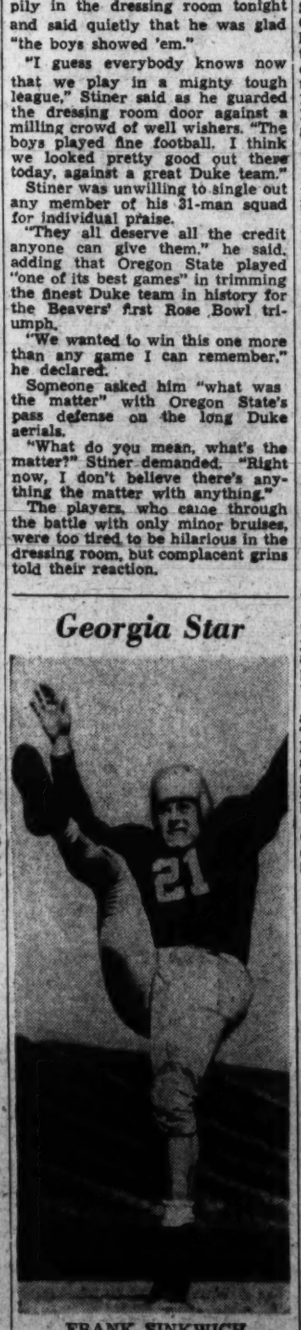
"We wanted to win this one more than any game I can remember," he declared.

Someone asked him "what was the matter" with Oregon State's pass defense on the long Duke aerials.

"What do you mean, what's the matter?" Stiner demanded. "Right now, I don't believe there's anything the matter with anything."

The players, who came through the battle with only minor bruises, were too tired to be hilarious in the dressing room, but complacent grins told their reaction.

Georgia Star



FRANK SINKWICH

Georgia Downs T.C.U., 40-26; Sinkwich Stars

By the United Press

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1.—Fireball Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's All-American halfback, staged the greatest one-man show ever seen in Miami's Orange Bowl today as he led his red-shirted mates to a spectacular 40-26 victory over Texas Christian before 35,505 sun-drenched fans.

Sinkwich did everything but make the ball talk in one of the stand-out aerial battles of the season. He sparked Georgia's three-touchdown first-period assault which put the Bulldogs out in front 19-7. And only in the final quarter, when he was taken out of the game for a rest, did the T. C. U. attack click.

The Texans scored two touchdowns in a last period spurt and were on Georgia's 8-yard line when the final gun sounded.

The day was made to order for the Georgians—and especially for Sinkwich, a native of Youngstown, Ohio. A hot sun broke through a hazy sky as the Bulldogs began their attack. Sinkwich single-handedly outgained the entire T. C. U. team, totaling 139 yards rushing to 101 for the Horned Frogs. He tossed 13 passes and completed nine for a gain of 241 yards.

T. C. U. Led Once

Georgia rolled up 12 first downs to 8 for T. C. U. and only once was behind. In the early stages of the first quarter, T. C. U. took a 7-6 lead, but were soon left behind by the fast-moving Red Shirts from Athens, Ga.

Georgia scored before the game was 5 minutes old after Sinkwich passed to Lamar Davis for 9 yards on the T. C. U. 30 and the fleet-footed wingback fought his way to the 10-yard strip. Sinkwich picked up 7 yards through the line, with Ken Keuper bucking over. Costa's attempted conversion was blocked.

The Horned Frogs came back on a break a few moments later, Kyle Gillespie, T. C. U.'s star back, plunging over from the 4. The play had been set up when Davis fumbled on his own 22 and the Texans recovered. A pass, Gillespie to Frank Kring, was ruled complete on the 5 because of interference. Frank Medanich's kick was good.

And More Sinkwich

Once again the Georgia fireball took over. Sinkwich passed 29 yards to Conger on the Texans' 32 after the kickoff, and the fast-stepping Bulldog raced the rest of the way to score.

Moments later Sinkwich faded and passed to Cliff Kimsey on the T. C. U. 35, the big blocking back lumbering down the sidelines for another score. The play had been made possible after an exchange of kicks had given the Bulldogs the ball near midfield.

Keuper went across for the next Georgia score early in the second quarter after taking a pass from Sinkwich. Jim Todd had worked

Louis, Baer Coast Through Workouts In Holiday Setup

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 1.—Heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis and Buddy Baer who meet in a 15-round title fight here January 9, spent New Year's Day at their respective training camps but merely coasted through light workouts.

Louis didn't even put on gloves at Greenwood Lake, N. Y. He ran five miles and wound up the day with a turkey dinner in the evening.

At Lakewood, N. J., Baer slept late, having turned in at 3 a. m. after a New York radio appearance last night. He boxed four rounds with Ezar Thompson, only one of his sparring mates in camp today, and tipped the scales at 248 pounds after the workout.

Passes Play Leading Role For Beavers

Dethman and Durdan Co-Star in Defeat of Favored Duke; Lach Big Gun for Losers

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Duke Stadium, Durham, Jan. 1.—Oregon State, not Duke, won the Rose Bowl game this afternoon. In complete contempt for the 3-to-1 odds against them, and none too respectful, either, toward a hitherto unbeaten Duke team the Beavers from the Pacific Coast generated three touchdown drives for a 20-16 victory.

Down in the pit of big Duke Stadium, on a field slippery from rain, the Pacific Coast champions made a humorless joke of the pre-game odds for the 55,000 Easterners who sat in on North Carolina's version of the Rose Bowl. Duke, an offensive team, found itself overmatched by a supposedly conservative Oregon State eleven.

Not Duke's famed Steve Lach, but either one of a pair of Oregon State backs, was the best football player on the field today. Little Don Durdan, a bare-armed 172-pound wraith, and his backfield pal, Bob Dethman, thieved the show from Lach, even on an afternoon when Lach made runs of 50 yards and scored a touchdown.

The Winning Play

Durdan, a left-footed kicker and passer, and his pal Deathman, who does everything right-handed, sort of teamed up on the Blue Devils with their alternate heroics. Duke came from behind twice to match Oregon State touchdowns and tie the score, but the Beavers had one in reserve, and it was a beaut.

Oregon State's decisive touchdown, the one that broke the 14-to-14 tie of the fading third period, was a masterful piece of business that started with Dethman and ended up with Halfback Gene Gray scoring on a 70-yard pass play.

Dethman pitched that ball 40 yards through the air, floating out cleverly over a cluster of Duke defenders far downfield into the arms of Gray, who was not content with a superb catch. Seemingly trapped by Halfback Moffatt Storer on the Duke 10-yard line, Gray feinted Storer out of his path and then outsprinted him to the goal.

Durdan Bedevils Devils

Twice during the afternoon, Dethman pitched the ball for touchdowns. Earlier in that same period he slammed the ball into the arms of End George Zellick on the old-fashioned diagonal play that was good for a 30-yard score.

When Dethman wasn't throwing touchdowns, little Durdan was rocking the Blue Devils with his big long sprints that evolved from fake passes and kicks. With the panicky Dukes laying back in anticipation of a pass by Durdan, the little fellow tucked the ball under his arm with a minute to play in the opening quarter and scampered 15 yards around right end for the first touchdown.

Oregon State outplayed Duke, in rushing the ball and passing it, despite the first-down figures which show 15 for the Blue Devils and 14 for the Beavers. Duke committed three ruinous fumbles, including Tom Davis' muff of the opening kickoff which the alert Beavers recovered on Duke's 29-yard line.

Penalty Hurts State

Duke was the recipient, too, of a next-thing-to-a-gift touchdown which enabled it to tie the score at 14-14 in the third quarter. A roughness penalty against Oregon State moved the ball to its 1-yard line from which point Winston Siegfried banged across to a touchdown.

Durban's punting, a thing of torment to the Blue Devils all afternoon, paved the way for the game's opening touchdown late in the first quarter after Duke had stalled the

Hockey Eagles Combat Strong Rovers Sextet Here Tonight

Courteau, Fred Weaver Are Shifted

3-Time Conquerors Of Locals May Rate Big Audience; New Yorkers Potent

Coach Redvers Mackenzie's Washington Eagles will launch their New Year schedule against a three-time conqueror tonight when they entertain Freddy Metcalfe's New York Rovers in an important Eastern Hockey League game at Riverside Stadium at 8:30 o'clock.

The Rover Boys, who will be bidding for their fifth victory in six starts over the defending champions, may attract the largest crowd of the season in their first Riverside appearance since beating the Eagles, 13-2, in the opening Eastern Hockey League game here in November.

The Eagles tonight will introduce their "V-for-Victory" formation among other smart routines as a special New Year treat for the home fans.

Line-up Changed

A late revision announced by Coach Mackenzie will find Fred (Goldie) Weaver shifted to center and Paul Courteau paired with Ernie Mundey at center on the starting line. Mackenzie believes Courteau, already a leading Eastern League scorer, will convert even more consistently from a wing.

The lines of Kenny Ullyot, center, and Art Thompson and Les Hickey, wingers, and Odie Hallowell, center, and Tommy McSormack and Marty Madore, wingers, will remain unchanged.

The Eagles tonight will endeavor to start the New Year on the winning side of the ledger, currently having a .500 percentage as a result of 11 victories, as many defeats and two ties.

McGill Returns

The already powerful Rover defense will be further strengthened by the return of Jack McGill, great freshman goalie, in the nets. It will mark the local debut of the talented McGill, who has been inactive for the greater part of the season, due to a damaged knee.

The Rovers, completely reorganized by the capable Metcalfe following a cellar finish in the Eastern League last season, are being favored by many to go on to a pennant in Metcalfe's first year at the helm. Not only are they more aggressive than any of their predecessors, but represent the strongest defensive unit in New York's history.

Only two holdovers from last season represent the 1941-42 Rovers, namely: Wingers, Bill (Red) Tilson and Howie Hollinger.

Bill Robinson, talented center, and Hubert Macey, flashy winger, were teammates of the Eagles' Les Hickey with the Winnipeg Rangers, Canadian junior champions last season. Dave Livingstone, Aft Kendall, Bob Kirkpatrick, Alex Sandalack, Lewis Medynski and Walter Kyle are some of the first-year men who have helped put the Rovers in the running for the pennant.

Reservations are being taken through Republic 4020, at Riverside Stadium.

Lions Bow To Providence On Ice, 3 to 2

By the Associated Press

Providence, R. I.—The Rhode Islands Reds scored a 3-2 victory over the Washington Lions here tonight in an American League hockey game.

The Lions had several scoring opportunities in the first period, but missed because their shots were wide of the cage. First Lou Trudel missed the net and a little later Stew Smith did likewise.

Bert Gardiner jumped high in the air to make a fine save on a powerful drive from the Washington blue line by Providence Defenseman Eddie Bush. Then Frank Mailley worked in close and Ab Collings saved a goal by spoiling his shot. With the period about half over, the Reds packed all their men up near the Washington blue line and for quite a time kept the puck up there. Whittaker had a good chance, but his shot was high.

Then Karakas turned in a great save on a shot by Whittaker on a pass from behind the cage by Tudin. Just as the period ended Frank Whittaker sent up a shot which almost rolled in after Karakas had stopped it.

Go on Defensive

After the first 3 goals in the first 6 minutes of the second period, the Reds settled into a strong defensive game which stopped the best efforts of the Lions. The work of Ernie Dickens stood out for the Reds, once he bowled over Polly Drouin, who was in a position to score and again dumped George Mantha. Still another time he saved a goal on a nice clearance when Karakas was out of position to stop a threatening shot. Just before Shills scored the third Providence goal the Reds had several shots at the Washington cage and Bert Gardiner was kept plenty busy.

Soon after Trudel scored for the Lions early in the third period, Drouin and Shoquist started roughing it up and Referee Rabbit McVeigh first banished the Washington center and later the Providence defenseman. Neither team scored during these absences but the Lions kept coming stronger and stronger as the game neared its close. Karakas turned in some beautiful saves to preserve victory for his team.

Colorado Five Wins

Football Coaches Are Fine Material for Army Officers

Experience in Leadership, Battle Tactics Provides Perfect Background for Service

By Whitney Martin

World Wide Sports Columnist

New York, Jan. 1.—The United States, in addition to having the potential man power, and equipment, for the finest army on earth, is stocked with the best raw material for the making of commissioned officers to be found anywhere.

This golden vein is made up of the thousands of football coaches who every fall direct high school, college, pro and independent teams through a bewildering array of offensive and defensive maneuvers which more than a little resemble the conduct of present-day warfare.

To begin with, and more or less incidentally, these men are accustomed to leadership; to directing young men whose age for the most part approximates that of the average soldier.

Even more important, however, is the fact the coaches are students of a game whose very nomenclature in many instances is derived from military operations. Aerial attack, aerial defense, flankers, unbalanced lines all could apply equally well to football or battle tactics.

Looks for Weak Spots

A good coach directs his team to poke around on offense until it finds the vulnerable spot in the defense. It might be a soft spot in the line, it might be weak flanks, it might be an inability to cope with an aerial assault. The main thing is to find it, and then pound it for all it is worth. An army general always tries to find the weak spot of the enemy for a break-through.

Defensive tactics in football call for deployment of the players to meet a particular style of attack, whether on the ground or in the air. For instance a setup to stop a stout running attack inside the ends leaves an invitation for a passing offense or end sweeps. The idea is to outguess the other team, to shift offensive or defensive strength unexpectedly, and above all to be alert to any move the opponent might make.

Leaders in other sports also come under the heading of officer material in the raw, but we think that football more nearly approximates conditions of warfare than any other sport.

No Monopoly on Knowledge

The coach of a little high school would make just as good an officer as a so-called big-time coach. Football has become so standardized through the hundreds of coaching schools held every summer that when it comes right down to tactics no one group has a monopoly on thorough knowledge. In most cases the difference in the class of football played is only a matter of material, anyway, and we've seen kid teams which went through all the maneuvers of their big brothers, with a few more tacked on for good measure.

And if you don't think football is a complicated game requiring constant study and an uncanny ability to see just what is happening, just tune in sometime when a couple of coaches get together and start expounding their theories. Their language will be a jargon which leaves the average fan baffled, and if the game they happen to be talking about is the one you've just seen you begin to wonder whether you saw it at all.

Quarterbacks Included

You can put the smart quarterbacks right in with the coaches as officer material. They are the bright young fellows right on the firing line, carrying out orders and making their own decisions as occasion arises.

This isn't a signal for all football coaches to rush right out and apply for commissions, but it does mean that when the need arises for their services there are jobs tailor-made for them.

Boxer Suspended For 'Walkout'

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 1 (AP).—Billy Nichy, of Buffalo, N. Y., was suspended by the Columbus Boxing Commission today on charges of walking out on his scheduled New Year's Day heavyweight bout with Jack (Buddy) Walker, of Columbus.

Promoter Whitey Morrett said Nichy had agreed to fight for 20 per cent of the gross, but refused to appear when he found that the small crowd paid in only a little more than $600.

Morrett informed the commission that he raised his offer to $200, which Nichy described as "just peanuts."

Records Prove Frank Sinkwich Gridiron Marvel

Athens, Ga., Jan. 1 (INS)—The 1941 Bulldogs compiled the best record of any Georgia football team since 1927, an outgained and outdowned every opponent. Six of their opponents were handed their worst defeats of the year.

Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's All-American halfback, was the first All-American named on the Red and Black team since 1931 when Vernon "Catfish" Smith was named at left end. Sinkwich rolled up 1,103 yards himself while the opposition gained but 596 yards against Georgia.

In Sinkwich and Lamar Davis, Georgia had the two highest scorers in the Southeastern Conference. Sinkwich led the Nation in rushing, completed 52 passes for 713 yards and 11 touchdowns. Davis, a 10 second wingback, scored four touchdowns on runs of 85, 54, 45, and 25 yards, and caught eight touchdown passes.

Rovers Trounce Orioles, 9 to 2

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—The New York Rovers notched their third straight Eastern Hockey League victory by swamping the Baltimore Orioles, 9 to 2, at Madison Square Garden today.

The Rovers went ahead at 15:14 of the initial period when Bill Robinson scored. Then Biff Smith tied the count for the Orioles in 19:50 of the same stanza, and at 0:49 of the second period, Smith beat Jack McGill again, to give the Orioles the lead. The locals racked up three straight markers as Bill Tilson, Mike Nardello and Bob Kirkpatrick hit the cords within a space of three minutes.

Orchid Bowl Contest Won By Louisiana

By International News Service

Mexico City, Jan. 1.—Louisiana College defeated the University of Mexico's football team 10 to 0 here this afternoon in a New Year's Orchid Bowl game before 8000 fans.

The teams played on even terms throughout the first half and into the third quarter when, in the middle of the period, Louisiana's Waldo kicked a field goal squarely between the uprights from the 30-yard marker.

In the fourth quarter, Townsend passed for 20 yards over center to Taylor, who caught the ball and ran for a touchdown. Campbell converted for the extra point.

Outweighed 15 pounds to the man, the Mexican eleven made it a fight all the way in a contest in which good sportsmanship of both teams stood out. The powerful visiting team was held to seven first downs.

Starring for the Louisianans were Waldo, Edwards and Taylor, while Eliot Camarena, captaining Mexico, turned in a standout performance at his end position.

Feature of the contest, however, was a battle at center between Louisiana's Langley, who weighed 215 pounds, and 142-pound Espinosa de Los Monteros for the home team.

Joseph McGurk, American charge d'affaires, represented the American Government at the contest, attended by many leading government officials and diplomats.

Alumni Defeat Woodward Five

The Woodward Alumni quintet had little trouble in subduing the Woodward Prep varsity yesterday, 25-16, in one of the featured attractions of the Y. M. C. A. open-house party.

Springing to a 13-6 lead at the half, the victors were sparked by Guard Robert Fast, who made 4 field goals and 3 charity shots for a total of 11 points.

William Noyes led the varsity with 7 points.

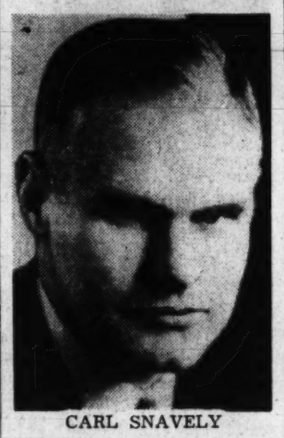
Rumor Has Snavely Going To West Coast



CARL SNAVELY

By the Associated Press

Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—The gridiron grapevine buzzed today with a report that Carl Snavely, Cornell football coach, had asked for his release and was slated for a Pacific Coast conference job, possibly at Southern California or Washington.

A source close to Cornell brought the rumor to the Rose Bowl game, but no official could be reached here for comment.

Cornell athletic officials announced after the big Red's November clash with Pennsylvania that Snavely and his staff would be re-signed to one year contracts. Snavely has been head coach at Cornell since 1936, when he came up from North Carolina to succeed loomy Gil Dobie.

Rumors of Change Is News to Snavely

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1 (AP).—Carl Snavely, Cornell football coach, said today he hadn't heard rumors that he was slated for a Pacific Coast Conference job, possibly at Southern California or Washington.

Of the report, he said:

"It's news to me.

"I'm not looking for a job. I think I have a pretty good position where I am."

The grapevine report originated at Durham, N. C., while Snavely was attending the Orange Bowl game in Miami.

Langston Tops Morris Brown In Vulcan Bowl

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 1.—The Langston, Okla., Lions bottled up Morris Brown's Big Train Moody and knocked the Atlanta Wolverine eleven from the forefront of Negro football with a 13-to-0 victory in the Vulcan Bowl today before some 7,000 spectators.

The Lions caught Morris Brown flat-footed in practically the first minute of play when End Jesse Stewart scooted back of the line of scrimmage, took a high pass from Tailback Kershel King on the Brown 20 and sped for a touchdown. The play started from the Brown 35.

In the second period King returned a punt from midfield to the Brown 36, then passed to Roger Pierce for 21 yards. Fullback George Mence picked up 4. A King-to-Stewart aerial gained to the 2-inch line and Quarterback Pet Milligan plunged over.

The Vulcan Bowl committee announced the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference would sponsor the game annually with the S. I. A. C. champion meeting some other nationally recognized eleven.

625-Pound Wrestler on Uline Card

The ring will be reenforced, the mat heavily padded and other precautionary measures taken at Uline's Arena Monday night when 6 foot, 2 inch, 625-pound Martin (Blimp) Levy meets Pierre DeGlane in one end of a doubleheader wrestling wind-up otherwise pairing off Mustafa Hamid vs. King Kong Marshall.

Levy, proudly acclaimed by Jack Pfefer to be the greatest drawing card in the wrestling game today, will be making one of his infrequent appearances here due to a widespread demand for his services in other major cities.

"He's the No. 1 wrestling card of the United States, and the figures back me up," Pfefer declared in long distance conversation with Ahearn yesterday. "I could book him three times a night before sellout houses if such a thing were possible.

The 29-year-old, heavily bearded Goliath with the 22-inch neck and 84-inch waist, experiences difficulty and needs assistance both in getting into and out of the ring, but is surprisingly nimble once he breaks into action. He executes a perfect split, has mastered any number of punishing holds and amazes the fans with his unbounded energy and competitive fire.

Levy, a favorite subject for the newsreels, has succeeded the 385-pound Man Mountain Dean as the darling of Hollywood's movie colony, and recently shattered paid attendance records on an invasion of the Pacific Coast.

Mountainous Martin, who appears much larger than the 625 pounds credited him, is an excellent swimmer and dancer, and drives a specially made automobile. He has refused any number of carnival and circus offers, and is one of the wealthiest men the wrestling game has produced since Jimmy Londos.

Brewers Face Trenton Five Here Tonight

In a drive to recapture the lead in the American Professional Basketball League the Washington Brewers will engage the Trenton Tigers tonfght at Turner's Arena.

Washington is tied with Trenton and the Champion Philadelphia Sphas for second place. The Brewers and Trenton have won three and lost three, while the Sphas have a record of four and four.

Setting the pace are the Wilmington Blue Bombers, with six victories, two losses, but they can be overtaken by the Brewers before the end of the week.

Tonight is "Ladies Night," and Coach Mark Posnak is admitting free all feminine fans accompanied by escorts.

The opening whistle is set for 9 p. m. and a preliminary between two amateur clubs will go on at 7:30.

There's little love between Trenton and Washington, as a result of developments in the last few weeks. Trenton beat the Brewers in the Pottery City on December 13 when Al Esposito whipped in a field goal in the last two seconds of play. The score was 29-27. The Brewers are peeved no end because John J. O'Brien ruled Red Paris, formerly with the Washington club, as the property of Trenton. And, further, he upheld Trenton's request for postponing a contest scheduled for the arena between the Tigers and Brewers. All of this has kindled a flame of hot rivalry, which borders on the "grudge" side.

A Washington victory will break the three-way tie for second, hoist the Brewers up a peg, put them in a position to overtake Wilmington, provided they beat the Sphas tomorrow in Philly, and Trenton wins from the Blue Bombers tomorrow.

Moe Dubilier, who scored 13 points against Trenton, and Ben Goldfaden will start at forwards for the Brewers; Herman Knupple at center; Ben Kramer and Nat Frankel at guards.

Trenton, coached by Teddy Kearss and Red Smith, will bank on its starting team of Paris and Bill Brown, forward; Mike Bloom, center; Esposito and Dutch Garfinkel, guards. Cy Boardman, Tramantan, Morozchowski, Vlynn and Saunders will be in reserve.

Bloom and Brown are former Temple All-Americans; Garfinkel was All-American at St. John's.

Bears Defeat Celtics' Five Here, 62 to 47

Leading all the way, the Washington Bears, colored professional basketers, defeated the Original Celtics, 62-47, yesterday before a holiday crowd of 400 at Turner's Arena.

Among the visitors was the diminutive Davy Banks, the redoubtable Nat Hickey and Paul Resnick. "Moe" Dubilier, Washington Brewers guard, and Resnick each scored 15 points to pace the losers. Sidat-Singh made the same number for the winners.

With Singh accounting for half the points, the Bears went into a 22-6 lead in the first of the three 20-minute periods, Hickey and Paul Birch, Celtic center, being the only opponents to locate the basket.

The Celtics came back fast in the second period, piling up 13 points rapidly, until the Bears tightened up, each member of the team scoring in rapid succession, to close the period, 37-23.

"Bricktop" Wright, for the Bears, and Dubilier for the Celtics, were the bright luminaries in the final, the former thrilling the crowd with surefire shots from sidecourt, and the latter tossing loopers from midcourt and backhand shots from under the basket.

Total Eclipse Comes From Behind to Win Orange Bowl 'Cap

Benefactor, The Choice, Is Second

Jockey Paul Keiper Rides $17.20 Shot; The Chief Is Third; 10,000 See Program

By the Associated Press

Miami, Jan. 1.—Total Eclipse, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, came from far back to win the Orange Bowl Handicap by a nose today in one of the most remarkable races run on a Florida track this season.

The winner, noted for his ability to come from behind, was so far in the ruck that even many of his backers gave up until Jockey Paul Keiper began moving up around the bend out of the backstretch and sent the Jacobs veteran down the outside for the photo triumph.

The winner, a $17.20 shot despite a previous win on the track, was timed in 1:44 2-5 for the mile and sixteenth.

Chaswill Stable's Benefactor, the favorite, was second, and Maxwell Howard's The Chief third.

Total Eclipse was saddled by Hirsch Jacobs, who turned the trick 123 times during 1941 and was awarded a trophy by Gov. Spessard Holland as the leading trainer of last year. For the fourth straight year the New Year's Day program was started at 10 a. m. and 10,888 spectators attended. That compared with 12,063 of a year ago.

Transfigure Takes Fair Grounds Race

New Orleans, Jan. 1 (AP).—Transfigure, John L. Sullivan's colt, proved the best mudder today in the 6-furlong Iberville Handicap at the Fair Grounds and scored by a dozen lengths over Night Editor, top weighted at 116 pounds. Maihigh nosed out Par Avion for the show in a field of seven.

War Cancels Illinois Track

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 1 (AP).—The Illinois Relay Track Carnival, one of the major sports events in the Middle West, will not be held this year because of the war.

After conferring with military officials yesterday, Douglas R. Mills, director of athletics at the university, announced cancellation of the 1942 relays and said no meet would be held for the duration of the present emergency.

Alsab's Third Birthday Party 'Great Success'

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Jan. 1.—Alsab, a smart young horse, deserted his favorite carrots and grapefruit today for a slice of birthday cake.

The champion juvenile of 1941 became a 3-year-old. He shared his birthday with all other thoroughbreds, which advance one year in official age every January 1. But few had such a celebration.

Alsab had a big layer cake, with three candles. The cake was intended more for show than anything else, but without urging, the honor guest ate a slice of it from the hand of his owner, Albert Sabath, of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Sabath, their children, Albert, jr., and Diana, and Trainer August (Sarge) Swenke gathered in a barn at Hialeah Park for the birthday celebration. They called it a great success.

Alsab, the champion 2-year-old last year, won $110,610 for his owner and is being brought into condition for the big-money races at Hialeah.

Ouachita Noses Out All-Stars, 6-2

By International News Service

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 1.—Coach Bill Walton's Ouachita College Tigers today continued into 1942 their 1941 record of being undefeated in the Wonder State when a third-quarter touchdown gave them a 6-to-2 victory over Arkansas All-Stars.

Stirling Williams, sophomore from North Little Rock, scored the lone touchdown on an end-around play from the All-Stars' 11-yard line after his teammate, Deno Nichols, recovered an opponent's fumble.

The All-Stars scored two points on a safety when Halfback Carl Allen of the Tigers was tackled behind his own goal late in the game.

Selections at Tropical Park

Dear Al:

It looks as if Maryland racing will be seriously affected by the war, if only through one angle—that of tire rationing. If the curtailment on rubber lasts until next spring, those who normally use their automobiles in reaching tracks are going to have to seek other means of transportation. I understand that a move is on to confine racing in Maryland this year to two tracks—Laurel and Pimlico. Of course, Bowie and Havre de Grace would run those tracks on their allotted dates. As I understand it, Havre de Grace may be taken over by the Government for use as an air field. Its position between Philadelphia and Baltimore and its proximity to the Martin airplane factory would make it an ideal spot. Bowie would be left idle as a racing scene because it is off the main railroad route. With street cars available in Baltimore, plus the railroads, transportation would not present a problem at that track. Laurel is on the main line of the B. & O., and customers thus would not have to depend on automobile transportation. As far as I have been able to learn, the taking over of the tracks so that the betting rings could be used for Government office work is the bunk. But let's change the subject. In referring to 2-year-old racing, the Hialeah press department points out that the mighty Seabiscuit made his first appearance in silks of the Wheatley Stable at that track as a juvenile. They might have added that Seabiscuit was so badly "knocked out" by being hard used early that he almost was lost to racing. And speaking of knockouts, somebody is going to start swinging at me if I dont come through with more winners. We were shut out yesterday for six races, but Flying Legion and Memory Book came through for us in the seventh and eighth.

BILL.

First race—Bold Turk deserves the call in this field. The veteran has everything it takes to down opposition of this brand. War Declared is a fair sort and belongs close. Puro Oro for the minor award.

Second race—Valvictorian has been groomed for this kind of race. Needs only the right handling. Sassy Mate and Grandstar are in good shape and will battle it out if the top one fails.

Third race—Sister Don belongs on top of this heap. She has good trials to recommend her. Brogee is speedy and belongs in the first flight. Strolling Easy may be better than generally rated.

Fourth race—Sun Triad likes the conditions in this event and I see no reason for mistakes. Lovely Dawn comes from a stable full of fit ones and is a threat. Poor Spin for the show end.

Fifth race—John Hunnicutt has the speed of this party and looks like a solid wager. Casual Play and Searchlight appear ready to make a struggle for the second position.

Sixth race—Early Delivery has exhibited good form since coming to Florida and should turn back such as these. Tony Weaver and Equistone probably will gain places in the cash circle.

Seventh race—Biscayne Blue is the class of this field and looks like the best bet of the afternoon. Colorado Ore packs much punch and will be close. He Man for the show end.

Eighth race—Comendador II, Bogert and Hereshecomes is the way I prefer those gathered for the day's finale.

Best Bet—Biscayne Blue

East, West Squads Hold Light Drills

By International News Service

New Orleans, La., Jan. 1.—Both the East and West all-star football squads were reported ready tonight for Saturday's transplanted Shrine game, which officials anticipated would be one of the most successful ever played.

Following a light drill on the Tulane University practice field, the stars from eastern colleges were reported to be in "as good shape as any East team at this stage of practice" by Coach Andy Kerr of Colgate, who with Minnesota's Bernie Bierman is tutoring the squad.

Meanwhile, the West squad was sharpening up a passing attack which the coaches believe may be their best offensive weapon.

Henry F. Boyan, potentate of the San Francisco Shrine, which sponsors the game for the benefit of crippled children, said he believed the extra publicity it received because of its transfer from the West Coast to New Orleans would make it the most successful in the history of East-West All-Star battles.

Gehrig Film Ready For School Showings

Chicago, Jan. 1. (INS)—Dedicated to the memory of the late Lou Gehrig, the American League's official motion picture for 1942 is now ready for distribution.

The film is entitled "The Ninth Inning" and features slow-motion technical demonstrations of hitting, batting, pitching and other phases of playing. American League stars are the actors. Highlights of the 1941 World Series also are included in the sound sequences. Lew Fonesca, who directed the film, announced that schools and organizations wishing to show the production should make prompt requests for dates.

The legislation passed last year in New York by the National Audubon Society and its announced intention of seeking similar legislation in all other States has stirred up a storm of protest among sportsmen and conservationists. As yet there is no indication on the part of the society that it will take an open-minded view of or even discuss points in regard to the use of wild-bird plumage. This proposed legislation is so all-inclusive as to include such nuisance birds as crows, starlings and English sparrows, on the grounds that they might be exterminated by market hunting for their feathers.

Anyone familiar with the infinitesimal volume of feathers used in flytying can readily understand that such grounds are meant only to confuse the public. There is no valid reason why the flytiers and anglers should be penalized by the ban on the use of game-bird and unprotected-bird feathers because of past excesses of rare-bird plumage used in the millinery trade, plumage of birds not used by flytiers.

Colliers, in a recent editorial, made a sorry mess of things by parroting misstatements made by the Audubon Society as to certain rare and diminishing species among these birds that are now protected with adequate laws and are not used by flytiers.

It is in the interest of maintaining harmony in the ranks of conservationists now when it is more important than ever that we all work together. Everyone wishes the Audubon Society well in its efforts to protect rare and diminishing birds. We said at the outset that sportsmen have and will stand by the Audubon Society to the limit for protection of rare and diminishing species.

However, the fundamental difference is that we stand for additional wild-bird protection where additional specific protection is needed, while the National Audubon Society will not entertain any other views than their stated objective, "putting an end to commercialization of wild-bird plumage in this country," without any regard for the value, or lack of value, thereby creating only nuisance legislation.

There is apparently only one course for conservationists and sportsmen to take, and that is to oppose such legislation whenever it appears in other States and to seek reasonable amendment or repeal of the New York law.

Shall we who have labored for protection of the woods, waters and wildlife of the United States, worth many hundreds of millions of dollars a year, sit down and fold our hands and say, "When the war is over we shall resume our work?" Not while sleeplessly vigilant enterprises watch for opportunity to prevent what the Izaak Walton League, Fish and Wildlife Service and kindred organizations seek to accomplish, stated Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville (Ky.), Times, in answering that question before an assemblage of 200 California Waltonians at Fullerton.

Mr. Wallace continued: "Many persons are more concerned about the possible or probable effect of a Hitler victory upon our national economy than about probable or possible invasion of the United States."

"In war, despoilers see golden opportunity. Despoilers, unchecked, would do more to diminish national welfare in this country within the next 50 years than Hitler's goose-stepping legions or any force sailing into the sunrise under pagan banners will do within the next century or at any future time, unless we guard our natural resources, our woods and waters, our soil, our mineral wealth, to conserve our strength."

Mr. Wallace's statements are most timely, with the proposed move to take the Fish and Wildlife Service from Washington and possible "eventual disintegration" of the service, as stated by Jay N. Darling, noted cartoonist-conservationist, who generally is credited with having raised that arm of the Government to its present effectiveness.

The service is credited as being our first line of defense in conservation, charged with the responsibility of protecting the Nation's natural resources.

The service is constantly called upon to furnish expert service to numerous defense agencies on fishery problems, available boats, etc., furs and fur qualities for numerous defense and nondefense agencies. It has special groups working with Army, Navy, and Office of Production Management to prevent their program from doing excessive damage to our wildlife resources by invasion of conservation areas, destruction of fish, spawning beds and pollution of valuable waters. Similar work is carried on with all Federal agencies doing any type of land drainage.

These contacts are a necessary and vital part of our national defense as well as the national wildlife program.

overcome their failure to protect their kicker in the first period. After the safety Missouri moved from its own 20 to Fordham's 30 where Steuber fumbled and Jimmy Noble recovered on the Rams' 33.

Fordham made two threats in the second period. One ended on Missouri's 21 where Fred Bouldin, Missouri fullback, recovered Steve Filipowicz's fumble. The other died on Missouri's 23 where the Rams lost the ball on downs.

Three times Harry Ice, Missouri's 157-pound quarterback, almost got away, but the gumbo turf finally slowed him down. He broke away for 33 yards in the first period, for 32 yards in the second and for 16 in the final period. Each time he was almost free, but couldn't keep his footing in the quagmire.

Both lines played great defensive games considering the conditions, but perhaps the day's defensive hero was Steve Filipowicz, Rams' stocky fullback. Time after time he smeared Missouri's highly touted backs, running mostly from the "T." Fordham's crack passing attack was absolutely nil. The Rams failed to connect with a single aerial out of four attempted. Missouri's net yardage was 169, gaining 148 running and completing 3 out of 5 passes for 26 yards. Fordham gained 137 yards, all on running plays.

Golden Gloves Semifinal Round Set at Uline Arena Tonight

First Fight Scheduled For 8:15 P.M.

Frank Cady Meets Bob Nolan in Top Feature; Hopefuls Aim for Title Spots

Big-name seniors and well-matched novices alike will be in there gunning for places in the Golden Glove championship finals when the semifinal round of the amateur boxing tournament is staged at Uline Arena tonight. The first bout is scheduled for 8:15.

The races for both the senior and novice team trophies will attract much attention as the Apollo A. C. sends five warriors into the senior competition as against four for the St. Mary's Club of Alexandria and three for the Red Shield A. C. National Training School and Boys' Club of Washington each have qualified five semifinals in the novice class, while the Merrick Club will sponsor four.

Heavyweight thunder will be spotlighted in the senior division when Bob Nolan, rugged and popular representative of the National Training School, squares away with Frank Cady, a great all-around athlete from Charlotte Hall Military Academy currently boxing for the Red Shield A. C. Nolan is a combination boxer and puncher while Cady is a terrific puncher and possessor of a long string of knockouts.

Much of the interest will be centered around the 147-pound senior engagements in which Nick Latsios of the St. Mary's Club, and Red Vernon, of the Knights of Columbus, both finalists in the Eastern Golden Gloves tournament in New York a year ago, will be severely tested. Vernon engages Ben Fallica, a dark horse from United Service Organization, and Latsios encounters Tom Hollan, of the Red Shield A. C.

Midway in the period, Ehrhardt intercepted a Texas pass at the T. C. U. 40 and ripped through a broken field to the Frogs' 22. Todd passed to Lamar Davis for the score.

The late drive of the Texans via the air route fell short as Georgia coasted in the second half. Sinkwich ran 43 yards to score in the third period but that was Georgia's only last-half spurt.

Nix passed to Alford in the end zone and Gillespie to Alford was good for another six-pointer for T. C. U. Gillespie wound up the scoring with a bullet pass to Kring who romped 53 yards to pay dirt.

All-Stars Defeat Nashville, 26 to 13

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 1 (AP).—The Southern All-Stars led by Sellers Baker, former Alabama A. and M. back, defeated the Nashville Pros, 26 to 13, today to win the second annual Negro Steel Bowl game.

The Nashville team was held scoreless until the last few minutes of play when it opened up a desperate passing attack that netted two touchdowns. Jim Smith, former Northwestern back; Blue Moon Jackson, quarterback, and Wolf Childers, end, sparked the drive.

Martin Kayoes Milsap

Milwaukee, Jan. 1 (AP).—Tony Martin, 137, Milwaukee, knocked out Bob Milsap, 159½, also of Milwaukee in the fifth round of their scheduled 12-round bout here today. The Wisconsin middleweight title, held by Martin, was at stake.

Makes Rare Split

Oregon State Upsets Duke, 20 to 16, in Rose Bowl Clash at Durham

Beavers within 14 yards of the goal following their recovery of Davis' fumble.

From his own 41-yard line, little Durdan left-footed a punt to the Duke 1-yard where it curled up and played dead. Lach punted out masterfully to the Oregon 49, but from that point the Beavers began to move. Dethman and Joe Day, a plunging fullback, slammed to a first down on the Duke 28. Durdan faked a pass and dashed 7 more yards. On third down he drifted toward right end from the 15-yard line and with Duke's defense opened, he junked his passing pose and scampered to a touchdown, standing up.

Duke Muffs Passes

It was a tortuous afternoon for Coach Wallace Wade, who saw his Duke lads muff a half dozen passes with clear fields ahead. Oregon State, with Center Quentin Greenough intercepting a pass by Davis, moved back to the Duke 27 in another touchdown threat early in the second quarter, but it stalled when Durdan was rushed on a passing attempt.

From their own 30, the Blue Devils struck back and produced the tying touchdown with three minutes of the second quarter gone. Davis broke free for 31 yards on two consecutive thrusts and then Lach took up the burden on a reverse play, Lach scampered 22 yards to the Oregon 9, and a couple of plays later he scored from the 3-yard line on the same reverse.

The clock was a great help to Oregon State late in the second quarter. Twice Blue Devil receivers missed long passes thrown by Rute in touchdown territory, but on a third consecutive passing attempt, Gantt grabbed a 42-yard pitch from Rute on the Oregon 6-yard line. Before the Blue Devils could set another play in motion, the half was over.

Oregon State dominated the early minutes of the third quarter, driving to the Duke 24 with the help of Dethman's 42-yard pitch to Durdan, but Simas missed a field-goal attempt to halt that charge.

The Beavers bounced back quickly on another drive that didn't miss. Gray ran left end for 25 yards and, on third down, Dethman went into his pass act and put a touchdown pass into the hands of End George Zellick on the goal line. Simas again converted to move the Beavers into a 14-7 lead.

Lach picked up the torch for Duke at this point and on the play after the kickoff he galloped 50 yards to the Oregon 25, missing a touchdown on the run only because Dethman outjockeyed Lach's blockers to make the tackle. Officials spotted toughness by Oregon on the next play, and from the spot of the foul the ball was moved to the Oregon 1. Siegfried rushed it over and Prothro booted the point that tied the game at 14-14.

That tie didn't exist long. Two plays after the next kickoff, Oregon produced its Dethman-to-Gray touchdown, the 70-yard thrust which Gray completed with his fancy run past Storer at the 30-yard line. Duke blocked Simas' bid for the extra point.

Lach raised anew the hope of the North Carolina contingent when he streaked right end for 25 yards to the Oregon 20 on the first play of the fourth quarter. Dethman got him finally. The Devils' touchdown notions collapsed on the next play, however, when George Peters, the halfback claimed by the Redskins, intercepted a pass by Davis and took it back to midfield.

Lach set the stage for Oregon's fourth quarter safety with a magnificent 62-yard punt that rolled outside on the 3-yard line. Durdan, back to kick from behind his own goal, fumbled the pass from center, but recovered and attempted to run it out before he was smeared behind the line by three Blue Devils, which he was.

Little Durdan was a potent package for the Beavers in their successful efforts to protect their four-point lead in the last nine minutes. He recovered a fumble by Davis on the Oregon 30, and then he ran right end for 21 yards. Then he kicked 50 yards to the Duke 3-yard line, and finally when Davis aimed a long pass to Lach in the final two minutes, Durdan scampered back and intercepted the ball with a fancy over-the-shoulder catch in Oregon territory. He was having a large afternoon.

Funny thing, when you stop to think about it, but so far as I know ever since Mr. Roosevelt was elected President back in 1932 you haven't heard any radio dramatizations of his life.

There may be manifold reasons for that. Perhaps it wasn't either politics or feasible up to the present crucial moment in his tenure of office; possibly it was assumed that everyone knew everything about Mr. Roosevelt anyway.

So, it remained for Kate Smith to come to the conclusion that something should be done for the benefit of those who might like such a thing.

And so tonight, over WJSV and the Columbia network, you'll hear an all-star group of actors pay dramatic tribute to President Roosevelt on Kate Smith's variety hour. It should be added that it will be done with the full cooperation and permission of the proper authorities in Washington. Kate herself will serve as narrator, giving a review of highlights in the life of the Chief Executive.

It may be appropriate to recall at this moment that this present-day biographer of President Roosevelt is a local girl who has done pretty well at all other things that she's attempted. Born in Washington, Kate made good in her home town in 1938 when she was invited to the White House as chief entertainer for the King and Queen of England when they were guests there. Since then she's been back several times.

The Post Radio Highlights

Three Guards Brutally Slain In Prison Fight

By the Associated Press

Bridgewater, Mass., Jan. 1.—Three guards were brutally beaten and hacked to death today when two young inmates ran amuck at the vast Bridgewater State Farm, set fire to a building and fought off a charging riot squad for an hour and a half.

The dead guards were:

Franklin L. Weston, 63, of Bridgewater.

George Landry, 64, of Whitman.

Howard V. Murphy, 48, of Taunton.

Under heavy guard in the farm hospital tonight were Donald Millard, 19, of Nashua, N. H., and Joseph Sheppard, 25, of Worcester. Both were classed as defective delinquents. They were badly beaten, but doctors said they probably would recover.

The two inmates finally were trapped on the burning fourth floor of a section devoted to defective delinquents by a four-man squad of Massachusetts State police, headed by Sergt. Joseph Fratus. After they had been gassed and clubbed into unconsciousness, police found they had been armed with four rammers, two chisels, a blackjack, an iron pipe and a hose spanner.

Chase Through Building

Fratus told this story:

"Our first call from the State farm said between 20 and 25 armed men were rioting in one of the buildings, and not until we knocked out Millard and Sheppard did we know that only two men had caused all the trouble. They had taken the keys of the dead guards, and they led us a merry chase through a building that was thick with smoke and tear gas.

"We finally trapped them in a room on the fourth floor. I yelled in for them to come out on their hands and knees. They did, but both suddenly straightened up. One of them threw a hammer that sailed past my head. Then he charged me with a chisel, which just grazed my neck. Patrolman Raymond Moran reversed his riot gun and clubbed the first man. The stock broke off, but he felled the second man with the barrel."

Daniel O'Brien, chief guard at the farm, said the two inmates had been sent to the carpenter shop by Weston to get a ladder. His body was found in the shop, his head crushed and his chest punctured by ten wounds which Medical Examiner P. H. Leavitt said had been inflicted after death.

Die Almost Instantly

Landry was killed in the north tower in much the same fashion, and Murphy's body was found on the third floor, his head split open so that his brain was exposed.

"Someone had wielded a chisel very effectively," Leavitt said, "leaving great, ugly jagged wounds. The three guards died almost instantly."

The 451 defective delinquents were confined in a recreation room during the two-man riot. The fire damage was comparatively small, consisting mostly of about 30 mattresses.

Extra! Paper! Andy Is Ill, Maude Fills In

Hundreds of people asked the same question at Post Square yesterday:

"Where is Andy?"

John P. (Andy Gump) Muth, who sells papers at the corner and has more friends and acquaintances than he can name, was ill of a pain in his stomach and chest all of yesterday at his home, 223 H Street Northwest, but hopes to be back at his corner in a day or two, he said. Taken ill at his corner, he was carried home Wednesday.

"Andy" is 66 years old and has sold newspapers on Washington streets for a controversial number of years, but probably from his boyhood, which he spent here.

Yesterday his congenial competitor, Maude Jones, who presides sometimes on the Willard Hotel corner, sometimes on Andy's corner across Fourteenth Street, was in full charge, and missing Andy, she said, while answering all the questions about him.

Doughty Trio Storms Jap-Held Malayan Station

Singapore, Jan. 1 (AP).—Observers from the front lines told today how three oddly assorted "musketeers"—a British officer, his Indian batman and a sergeant-major—stormed a Malayan railway station held by the Japanese, killing 14 of the enemy, cracking the skulls of others and taking one prisoner.

The three were armed with a submachine gun and two rifles. When they ran out of bullets and the machine gun became too hot to fire, the trio charged straight into the station, swinging their gun butts.

They thus battered the Japanese into a rout, caught one who threw down his gun and got away scot free just as a large force of Japanese rushed up and surrounded the station.

Knox Works Hard On 68th Birthday

By the Associated Press

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was 68 years old yesterday.

Like the Navy men and women throughout the world, he was at work on the problems of fighting in the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Other birthdays found the Secretary involved in wartime duties. On New Year's Day, 1919, he was in France commanding a section of the Seventy-eighth Division's ammunition train. Just before his birthday in 1899, he was mustered out of the First Regiment, Volunteer Cavalry, the familiar "Rough Riders."

Washington Defense

Learn Your Defense Setup, Bolles Urges

Wht's the defense setup for my home?

Get the answer to that question, Col. Lemuel Bolles, Washington's defense director, said yesterday, and you are off to a good start in doing your part in civilian defense.

You can find out, said Col. Bolles, by telephoning the Metropolitan Police, the Fire Department, the newspapers or the radio station. It would be better, he pointed out, to call at the nearest police or fire station yourself.

If you find that there is no part of the defense organization covering your house, Col. Bolles said, then your duty and your self-interest are clear, and identical. Get together with your neighbors, contact the Civilian Defense authorities and set one up.

Get in Touch With Them

It is much more likely that you will find that your home is included in the organization already set up. So you will be given the name, address and telephone number of your air raid wardens. Get in touch with them and you will be helped to go through with your personal duties.

"When a family moves into a neighborhood," Col. Bolles explained, "it finds out in no time where the drugstore is, where the grocery is, where there is a convenient filling station, where the neighborhood movie is, and so on.

"Now it is just as necessary for everybody to know what the civilian defense headquarters for his area is, and if the setup isn't complete it is up to the citizen to make it complete.

Do It "Yourself"

"As we have been fond of saying, this isn't a Nazi state. We are a democracy, a free people and we do things for ourselves. Now we have the problem of air raid danger. We must meet it ourselves. The civilian defense authorities are ready to help, to supply insignia and facilities and information. But if our communities are going to be made safe, it will be done by the people who live in them.

"Instructions have been prepared, thousands of copies have been given out and more are available. Learn them. This is just as important as things we take for granted, such as making change, transferring on street cars or buses, understanding traffic signs and using the telephone."

James Stewart Becomes Second Lieutenant

The movie actor received his commission from Lieut. E. L. Reid, personnel officer at Moffett Field. There was no unusual ceremony.

Lieut. Reid said the actor very probably would be assigned to duty in the Air Corps within a few days. Stewart learned to fly before he entered the Army. The movie was inducted into the Army March 22, 1941, at Fort McArthur.

The Statistics Show:

U. S. Erected 17 New Buildings In D. C. Area During Past Year

The extent to which Uncle Sam altered the architecture of downtown Washington in 1941 to accommodate mushrooming defense agencies was portrayed statistically yesterday by the Public Buildings Administration.

During the year the Government started or completed 17 office buildings at an aggregate cost of 19 million dollars, and in addition took over three private structures—the Lafayette, Longfellow and Maritime buildings.

Thirteen of the 17 U. S.-built structures are temporaries, some of which are already in use and the remainder nearing completion. The four permanent buildings, all but one of them now in service, are the Weather Bureau, No. 2 (Navy), in Arlington, the downtown War Department building's first unit and the No. 3 office building under construction at Suitland, Md.

The 17 have a combined frontage of 10,000 linear feet—almost two miles—and a square foot capacity of three million.

Although 1941 was the Government's biggest building year in Washington, from the standpoint of numbers if not dollars, the 1942 program is expected to put last year's in the shade. Public Buildings Administration has 25 million dollars to spend on new construction in the Capital and vicinity.

More Paper Donors Needed, Say Officials

Approximately 300 Washingtonians, dial RE 8488—headquarters of the waste paper conservation campaign—every day to offer waste paper for war uses, the headquarters estimated yesterday. They asserted, however, that even more paper donors are needed.

Waste paper is the chief ingredient from which paper-board containers are made, they pointed out, and the war has created a demand for millions more containers than are normally supplied. They are used to pack military material.

SPAB Authorizes Materials for Rail Equipment

By the Associated Press

Because of heavy demands placed on the railroads by the war program, the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board arranged yesterday to furnish materials for as much new car and locomotive construction as possible without interfering with output of military goods.

SPAB authorized OPM to grant priorities and other assistance during the next three months for:

1. Repair on passenger and freight cars and locomotives.

2. Production of 36,000 freight cars in February, March and April, with preference given to types needed for transportation of military equipment. It was estimated that 9000 cars would be built in January.

3. Continued production in February, March and April of locomotives now on order or now scheduled for production for stock, consisting of 248 steam locomotives, 58 electric locomotives and 620 Diesel locomotives. SPAB directed that those built for stock be of a type and size suitable for military or foreign use and that Diesel locomotive production must not interfere with deliveries of Diesel engine crankshafts for military use.

U.S. and British Flags Fly at Abbey Service

By Craig Thompson

Copyright by New York Times

London, Jan. 1.—The American flag flew over Westminster Abbey today alongside the British union jack as a brief service of intercession held to coincide with the general observance in the United States and throughout the British empire of a day of prayer.

At Albert Hall, at a large ceremony marking a solemn pageant of the British empire and its allies, the American flag was also displayed in a massing of the allied colors. There messages from George VI and President Roosevelt were read.

The Albert Hall gathering was distinguished by the presence of prelates, kings and diplomats of the nations now fighting together against the Axis powers.

Beacons of Hope

The archbishop of Canterbury, speaking there, described the United States and Russia as great beacons of hope to the cause of freedom.

Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster, called to Roman Catholics everywhere to understand that the struggle was "A grim but glorious one . . . for the right against the might, for justice, truth and Christian fellowship."

King George's message, read by Sir Harry Brittain, was:

"The queen and I sincerely thank you and the distinguished company assembled for your loyal greetings which we greatly appreciate. I send my best wishes for the success of the festival."

Winant Reads Message

President Roosevelt's message, read by Ambassador John G. Winant, said.

"The year 1941 brought on the United States, as the last two years brought on other nations, a war of aggression by powers dominated by arrogant rulers whose selfish purpose is to destroy free institutions. They would thereby take from the freedom-loving peoples of the earth hard-won liberties gained over many centuries.

"The new year, 1942, calls for the courage and resolution of old and young to help win the world struggle in order that we may preserve all we hold dear. We are confident in our devotion to country, in our love of freedom, in our inheritance of courage, but our strength, as the strength of men everywhere, is of greater avail as God upholds us.

"In making this first day of the year, 1942, a day of prayer, we ask forgiveness for our shortcomings in the past, consecration to tasks in the present and God's help in the days to come.

"We need his guidance that we may be humble in spirit, but strong in the conviction of right, steadfast to endure sacrifices and brave to achieve victory, liberty and peace."

51 in British Mine Given Up for Dead

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—Authorities said today all hope had been abandoned of rescuing alive 51 men trapped in Staffordshire coal mine following an explosion.

The blast occurred just after the day shift had gone to work. Rescue workers recovered the bodies of four miners.

Boeing Beats Own Accelerated Schedule 70%

Seattle, Jan. 1 (AP).—The Boeing Aircraft Co. today revealed it had beaten its own accelerated delivery schedules by 70 per cent for December, the first war month.

The company, operating its plants at full blast on this national holiday, released the announcement with the first photographs showing wartime quantity production of its "Flying Fortress" bomber planes.

Philip G. Johnson, president, said the company had been authorized by the War Department to state for publication that:

"Boeing Flying Fortress deliveries have been accelerating each month according to schedule. For the month of December, following America's entrance into the war, this accelerated schedule has been exceeded by 70 per cent."

Caruso's Son Finds Happiness Selling In Chicago Store

Chicago, Jan. 1 (INS).—The voice of a dead man—a glorious, tenor voice known the world over—always blocked the path to singing success of Eurico Caruso, jr., and that is why he is happy tonight in his job of selling paintings in a Chicago Loop department store.

"My father never sold paintings—so no one can say that he did it better than I am doing," said young Caruso, son of the famous Italian tenor.

That was what the critics always said when Enrico, jr., was trying to gain recognition in the singing world. "He isn't his father," they would say, even when they found some quality in his performance that they enjoyed.

"I didn't want to be a great singer," said Enrico, jr. "I only wanted to make my living at it. But my father's greatness always prevented that."

Now he has found happiness selling paintings.

Civilian Pilots To Be Hired For Ferry Duty

Copyright by New York Times

The Air Corps ferrying command yesterday announced that civilian pilots hereafter would be employed to aid in delivery of airplanes from factories to "those allied nations which are recipients of lend-lease aid."

This change in procedure is expected to free large numbers of Army pilots for work more directly connected with tactical operations.

Pilots accepted for employment must be over 21 years of age and not over 45, and must be highly trained, with at least 500 certified hours of flying, of which 250 have been on aircraft with 400 or more horsepower. They also must be American-born citizens.

Mighty U. S. War Machine Geared to Set New Records

Industry, Trade, Finance Combine Forces to Produce Victory Juggernaut

By Claude A. Jagger
Associated Press Financial Editor.

New York.—America, mightiest Nation of the machine age, enters a New Year harnessing its half of the world's horsepower to forge a mechanized war force that will astonish mankind.

The past year saw the Nation's factories, mines, farms being converted, at first gradually, then with frantic speed, from a phenomenonally productive peacetime organization into an integrated machine for war.

What this Nation, which has amazed the world in mass production of the goods of peace, can do in creating a flood of implements of war, we are only beginning to grasp.

With only about one-seventeenth of the globe's people and land area, it has, in peacetime, been able to make three-quarters of the world's automobiles, move nearly half its railway freight, produce from a third to half its electric power, steel, copper, corn, cotton, chemicals.

Professed belief of Axis spokesmen that such a Nation had gone soft, come to love ease and money too much to sacrifice its peacetime pursuits and regiment itself for war, may well go down as one of the most stupid blunders of history.

Task of Four M's

With full recognition that the task has only begun, America rushes headlong to accept the challenge of sweat, blood and tears, to fulfill its obligation to a civilization that it has so far advanced.

It is a task of men, materials, machines and money—the four M's of M-day.

The Nation, unified and galvanized when the first Japanese bomb dropped on Honolulu December 7, had behind it a year and a half of war preparation, was growing accustomed to the frmework of a wartime economy.

Now comes the period of drastic intensification.

In this period of a year and a half since the fall of France, roughly 15 billion dollars have been spent on arms. We are already spending at the rate of 18 billion dollars and Government officials are discussing reaching a peak of a 60-billion-dollar-a-year rate by mid or late 1943.

The problem of man power and woman power is basic. Among the 55 million workers of the Nation, unemployment, according to one series of estimates, has dropped from 7 million a year ago to perhaps a third of that.

Man-Power Problem

Already 1,500,000 men are in the Army, and millions more—it is too early to tell how many—are still to be called to the colors. Acute shortages already exist among skilled and specialized workers. Clearly, the mighty task means drawing of millions away from their usual civilian pursuits, it means working harder and longer.

The problem of shifting an enormous slice of materials away from civilian consumption into the war machine, in this country which is accustomed to huge consumption, means severe curtailment, going without much that we have considered essential.

Consider steel, needed not only for ships, guns and planes, but for machines to manufacture them, for railroad rolling stock to move them, and even for machines to make more steel. Our steel production this year has been rolling at capacity for months, but already serious problems of obtaining sufficient pig iron and melting scrap have developed.

A 50 Per Cent Diversion

Output of all sorts of products used in everyday life will be drastically reduced, or stopped. Already, President Roosevelt has called for diversion of 50 per cent of metals from civilian manufacturing.

New factories and machines will be needed as rapidly as they can be produced, but urgency compels that plant expansion shall not divert a disproportionate share of materials from flowing into arms. Existing machines must be used to the limit. Where possible, they will be run 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. The machine tool industry has been straining every sinew and has achieved an outturn the past year

Trade Booms As 47,000 New Workers Jam Capital

Barometer Gains Range as High as 38%; War Outbreak Spurs Momentum

By S. Oliver Goodman
Post Financial Editor

A tidal wave of 47,000 new Government employes swept into Washington during the past year, shattered numerous business records and boomed onward to new high levels as a momentous new year began.

Plain figures cannot do justice to what an influx of 47,000 additional workers means to a city which already was population-jammed. For the purpose of this review it is enough to point out that Washington's total population as 1941 drew to a close exceeded 770,000 and that of the metropolitan area was estimated at 1,057,000.

Government employment reached the staggering total of 217,591 as of November 1, the latest available official figure. This was an increase of 27.5 per cent over the figure on the same 1940 date. Government pay rolls on November 1 aggregated $37,653,478 monthly, a 20 per cent gain over last year. The total includes all workers in the executive, judicial, legislative and District branches.

(All figures in this review are from official sources such as the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the Civil Service Commission, the Comptroller of Currency, the District of Columbia Bankers Association, the Public Utilities Commission and others. December totals were unavailable at the time this was written.)

War Outbreak Is Spur

Spurred by defense preparation and outbreak of war which stepped up the fast rate of Federal hiring, most barometers of Washington business spurted to all-time highs.

Gains in major local business indexes ranged from 3.8 per cent to 38 per cent above last year. But while money flowed with boom-time abundance into the cash registers of all lines of Washington business, a tightening of the belt was foreshadowed by stiff tax increases and by rapidly spiralling prices.

Except for the ominous shadow of heavier taxation and the immediate pinch of higher prices, Washington residents generally found their standard of living little changed by the heavy demands of the defense program during 1941. Labor Department figures show that the District cost of living near the end of the year stood at 108.4 as compared with the 1935-39 average of 100. Costs are still far below the peak of the period immediately following the World War. In December, 1918, the District index reached 119.5, and in June, 1920, climbed to its high point of 141.9. In June, 1933, it dropped to 92.7.

On October 15, the District rent index was 101.2 of the 1935-39 average. In November, 1934, the index was 97.7; in December, 1924, 117.4, and in December, 1918, at the close of the World War, was 84.6.

Food Index Up 11.9 Per Cent

Other items in the District cost of living index rose more sharply than rents, according to Labor Department statistics. As compared with the 1935-39 average, the District indexes as of the latest available figures (October) stood as follows: Food, 11.9; clothing, 117.7; fuel, 101.7; housefurnishings, 123.2, and miscellaneous, 106.

In the annual reviews of local business leaders it was noted that few hazarded rosy forecasts. Optimism and confidence were expressed but caution predominated. Here are some of the notable comments as extracted from texts carried elsewhere in this section:

Charles B. Dulcan, vice president and general manager of the Hecht Co.—Reality has transcended our dream of a million, and the metropolitan area now boasts a million and a quarter population.

Frank R. Jelleff, president of F. R. Jelleff, Inc.—Business based upon war or national emergency is not healthful or desirable.

T. Stanley Holland, president of D. C. Bankers Association—At the end of October, it was estimated that the District had a population of 770,000 and that there were 1,057,000 persons in the metropolitan area. The District population, therefore, has increased 17.6 per cent since the 1940 census and the City's Population Gain Exceeds Expectation of Hecht Co. Head

Merchants' Problem Seen Absorbing Added Costs

By Charles B. Dulcan
Vice President and General Manager of the Hecht Co.

Back in 1939, through these columns, I said, "We are basically optimistic, in spite of what is going on all over the world." In 1941 I said, "Washington's dream of a million population nears reality," and "speaking for the Hecht Co, as regards 1941, the best evidence of our confidence in business potentialities is that we are now in the midst of a building program that will run well into a million dollars. We think business is going to be good next year."

And, business was good in 1941 . . . very good. Our building and remodeling program was completed at a cost of nearly two million dollars, and we are now operating in this more spacious and luxurious setup, employing many more men and women to service our constantly expanding business.

Reality Exceeds Dream

We repeat, we continue to be basically optimistic, in spite of world conditions which, in some measure or other, touch the lives of every American citizen and affect many phases of industry. But, Washington is not an industrial city. Business in the Nation's Capital continues to go on as usual because every day brings an influx of people from all over the country, and, as a matter of fact, all over the world.

Reality has transcended our dream of a million, and the metropolitan area now boasts a million and a quarter population. The needs of these people must be served by local business establishments. Of course, there will be obstacles to hurdle . . . plenty of them . . . but business will take these philosophically in its stride.

Where necessary we are sure that a patriotic public will cheerfully accept substitutes for articles which existing conditions temporarily eliminate from the merchandising picture . . . and will be considerate of the extreme problems that the defense program has brought about as regards service, and the cost thereof.

Efficiency Is Prime Need

Perhaps at no time in our generation have American businessmen been called upon to shoulder greater responsibilities than within the past year, embracing not only the efficient distribution of goods but the problem of keeping prices within the consumer's reach, while, at the same time, absorbing the many added costs of doing business. We see no reason to believe this situation will change in 1942.

By and large, we look forward to a continuation of progress and prosperity, tempered by national and world conditions which call for every businessman to keep his ear to the ground, and his feet on terra firma.

D. C. Assumes New Aspect Since Dec. 7

By Roger W. Babson
Nationally Known Economist

Developments in the past few weeks have crowded everything else out of the picture. Business is no longer "as usual." Everything has taken on a new aspect since December 7.

Washington is a city which ordinarily follows a conservative trend in business. Its monthly fluctuations are minor compared with most cities of the country and its diversified interests keep business well balanced. Today business in Washington is all onesided. It is an "all-out-for-defense" city.

At the present time general business—as measured by debits to individual accounts—is nearly 35 per cent above a year ago. The present level of business is the highest on record; even the high level of 1929 has been far surpassed during this past year.

Our armament program has made great progress this past year, but there must be even greater production in the months ahead. Washington will act as the central power station in this expansion. Employment has increased tremendously. It holds true that wherever you find great employment and high wages you will find increased retail sales. With the thousands of Government workers receiving fatter pay envelopes than ever before merchants, local theaters and other establishments in the city should ring up a very large volume of business during 1942.

As I glance at the horizon of 1942, I come to but one conclusion, namely, Washington will not only be the center of attraction here in the United States, but the eyes of the world will focus on this great Capital. In other words, Washington will be the outstanding city of the world in 1942.

As for general business, my forecast for the first quarter of 1942 is that there will be a further improvement and a gain of 10 per cent can easily be looked for.

D. C. Deposits Seen Nearing $490,000,000

By Raymond G. Marx
Comptroller of Riggs National Bank

When bank deposits reached an all-time high at the end of the year 1940, it established the fifth consecutive time for a new high record. During the current year three calls have been issued by the Comptroller for condition statements and each call disclosed successive new highs, thereby making eight consecutive records of new highs. On these dates deposits were reported for all local banks:

December 31, 1940, $419,692,000; April 4, 1941, $436,959,000; June 30, 1941, $450,695,000; September 24, 1941, $477,419,000.

An analysis of each bank's relative position at this time indicates a further increase in the aggregate at the end of this year. A number of factors must be considered in arriving at the estimate and after appraising them it appears reasonable that the total will be roundly 490 million dollars. This would represent an increase of 70 million dollars, or 16.8 per cent during the year, compared to an increase of 58 million dollars, or 16.1 per cent during 1940.

With the increase in deposits there became available more lendable funds which with demands for these funds resulted in an increase in loan portfolios of $15,330,000, or 12 per cent for the period from December 31, 1940, through September 24, 1941. From indications existing at present it is anticipated that the increase during the calendar year should approximate 15.9 per cent.

From a study of the published bank statements it is noted there was an increase of 1.2 per cent in combined capital funds during the six months ended June 30, 1941. Further gains are observed in the statements issued in September. It is estimated the gain for the calendar year will be slightly over 3 per cent.

30-Million Expansion Program To Meet Capital Power Needs

Generating Capacity Of Potomac Electric Will Spurt 78%

By Alfred G. Neal
President of Potomac Electric Power Co.

The past year has seen the increasing development of Washington as the focal point of the Nation's legislative, executive and administrative efforts relating to war defense preparation. Accompanying the vast growth of population in the area served by this company, there has been increased activity in building operations and allied requirements for increased use of electrical power among governmental, commercial, industrial and retail interests in this city and the adjacent communities.

The volume of new residents, requiring housing and electricity, coupled with heavy demands from the Government and private enterprise, has thrown an unexpected and heavy demand on the generating equipment and distribution system, we have been able to meet all demands for electric power made upon us to date. However, it was early seen that a very great increase in generating capacity would be required, to meet the ceaselessly increasing need for more power.

Record Expansion

To meet this anticipated demand, the company embarked upon the largest construction program in its history. The overall cost of this program will approximate $10,000,000, expended annually through 1941, 1942 and 1943, with a total expenditure running approximately between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. A new 50,000 kilowatt generating turbine was installed in October, 1940, in the Buzzard Point Station, bringing that plant up to its present generating capacity of 120,000 kilowatt. The company has, on order, three additional units of the same size, one scheduled for installation in March, 1942, another to be put in operation early in 1943, and the third late in the year 1943. If and when these units are delivered and in operation, it will provide Buzzard Point plant with a capacity of 270,000 kilowatt. When the company's present expansion program has been completed, the combined generating capacity of Potomac Electric Power Co.'s two steam generating stations, at Benning and Buzzard Point, will be 78 per cent greater than it was at the beginning of 1940.

Future Needs Studied

Necessary additions to the distribution system and service installations, to accompany the increase in generating capacity, are being studied and planned to meet future developments. If the orders that have been placed by the company for new generatnig and accompanying equipment are promptly filled, and, excluding the unexpected element of actual war conditions in this area, the Potomac Electric Power Co. confidently hopes to produce all reasonable requirements for power in this area.

Markets Kept Even Keel in War Crises

Securities Show Notable Absence Of Panicky Sales, But Tilt Lower

By Frank McMillan
Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Jan. 1.—The Nation's securities markets came through the war crises of 1941 with flying colors.

The American entrance into the conflict brought lower prices in December, but there was notable absence of the sort of panicky selling that has accompanied many less grave developments of recent years.

Lag Behind Industry

Throughout the year, stocks failed to reflect record production in steel, automobiles during the first quarter, and other lines. Corporation earnings and dividends were higher, but failed to advance in anything like the proportion that production did, as taxes and higher costs cut increasingly into profits.

Early in the year, share prices slid off from a top average for 60 representative issues in January of $45, to a low of $39.10 in April. Late spring and early summer saw a recovery to $44.30, aided by the German involvement with Russia. By September, growing tension in the Far East, new taxes, labor conflicts, and other factors combined to tilt prices into a long decline.

Schram Reviews Year

Surveying the year, Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said:

"The results show unmistakably that the securities market displayed an unusual degree of stability in the face of shock. . . . The point to emphasize is that never before in the annals of American finance has this quality of stability been of greater value to the country as a whole."

The financial markets "are the pulse of the Nation's economy," said the Exchange president. Then he observed:

"This recent demonstration of steadiness appears to me to furnish a strong indication of the cool and deliberate attitude with which our people have entered this conflict."

A notable effect of the war crisis, observed by Schram in his survey of the year, was the submerging of the long running conflict between Wall Street and Washington over economic policies. Schram's selection to head the Exchange was one of the outstanding Wall Street events of the year. Taken from the presidency of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corp., he was the first public official to be chosen for the position of chief executive of the Exchange. Said he:

Transactions for the entire year, however, came to only about 166,000,000 shares, smallest since 1921. Only only three trading sessions, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday after the fateful Sunday of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, did transactions exceed two million shares.

Bonds Hold Well In Face of War

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—War found the bond market well braced for eventualities in 1941, reflecting preparations developed since the start of war in Europe in 1939.

Despite mounting Government expenditures, and appropriations running far in advance of the total military cost of the first World War, yields of highest-rated issues held close to historic lows, registered earlier in the year.

Prices dipped a little with American entrance into the war in the second week of December, but went into no such sharp decline as occurred when hostilities started in Europe two years before, or when France fell in the summer of 1940. U. S. Government bonds slipped on the average only a couple of points or so, with yields on long-term tax-exempt issues holding well under 2 per cent, in contrast with a 4¼ per cent rate for the first Liberty Loan in the first World War.

Transactions in the listed bond market in the Stock Exchange came to about $2,200,000,000 face value, some 500 millions dollars above 1940.

Curb Turnover Lightest in 19 Years

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—Trading in the New York Curb Exchange was the smallest in 19 years in 1941, but the market maintained comparative stability in the face of the series of disturbing crises culminating in the American involvement in war.

Price trends followed closely those in the New York Stock Exchange, declining intermittently during the early months of the year, but turning upward in June, and experiencing the best rise of the year in July as it appeared the Nazi war machine had met an amazingly formidable foe in Russia.

Income Expected to Reach 95 Billion

By Roger W. Babson

AS LONG as World War II lasts, the total United States production will continue to increase. I estimate an increase in national income of 9 billion dollars for 1942, thus bringing it up to 95 billion dollars compared with 76 billion dollars in 1940 and 86 billion dollars in 1941. In forecasting this national income for 1942, I am taking into account probable increases in prices and wages. These figures do not mean that more goods will be produced; in fact 1942 will show a decline in the real wealth of America.

MR. BABSON

Unfortunately, the increase in the industrial production will be in the defense industries. Nineteen-forty-two will show considerable decline in the nondefense industries. It is well for my friend Odlum and others to talk about shifting over manufacturers of lawn mowers to making battle tanks. To a certain extent this will be done in 1942, but a great many nondefense concerns will suffer if the war continues through 1942. Washington tells me that with Japan, Germany and Italy fighting us we may need 50 per cent of the wage workers of the country on defense works before Hitler is eliminated. This seems very high to me as Great Britain now has less than 30 per cent engaged in defense industries.

Most readers, whether employers or wage earners, should primarily be interested in whether World War II will continue in its present fury through 1942. If it will so continue, this is good news for those engaged in the defense industries, and bad news for those who are in nondefense idustries. If the war is to end during 1942, then the reverse is true. In fact, we would then see some hectic times which would be detrimental to many readers, even though helpful to others. Therefore, let's bravely face the facts and answer the question, "Will World War II continue through 1942?"

RENTS will not decline during 1942; but whether to make long or short leases is debatable. Those owning large, old style houses should sell them during 1942 for any price they can get. I say this because of the action of carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers and painters who are fast killing the geese which lay their golden eggs. You can no longer afford to make over a large, old house into apartments as you once could. Again I say—try to get out of debt during 1942.

There will be fewer strikes in 1942. The strike business has its "ups and downs" like the stock market. Labor leaders, like Wall Street bankers, strike while the iron is hot; they speed up while the going is good. With both labor leaders and bankers, their jobs are purely a business. The "business" of the average labor leader will not be so good in 1942 as in 1941. As the taxpayers of the Nation (and this includes every reader of this column) realize that during 1941 they lost about 20 billion man-days (or five times the loss during 1940) the American people will wake up and stop this nonsense. Statistics show that 1941 had 3500 major strikes involving over 2,200,000 workers. This is about double the average of the preceding five years. Congress should insist on a secret ballot by workers before a strike can be called.

RESIDENTIAL building during 1941 increased, as a year ago I forecast it would increase. Hence, I do not like to risk my good reputation now in giving a figure for 1942. I believe, however, that rising costs, scarcity of certain materials and the provoking way in which labor has acted is hurting residential building. Surely it will show no increase in 1942 over 1941; while I should not be surprised if it fell back to 1940 figures—possibly to the extent of 10 to 15 per cent.

Public works and highway construction will be less in 1942 than in 1941. The building of industrial plants will continue in good volume during the first six months. Pleasure car production will be cut 50 per cent. General export trade,except for war purposes, will also fall off. This will e especially true in the Pacific, due to Japan's attack upon us. Remember that—as a rule—the curves for residential building, auto production and nondefense foreign trade generally go in the same downward direction.

THE UTILITY industry is basically sound. With a few exceptions when high finance crept in, the utilities have been conservatively and efficiently managed. They have been foremost in reducing the cost and improving the quality of their service. Yet for some unknown reasons the utilities have been persecuted, taxed, sandbagged and strangled as never has any legitimate industry before. When a financial history of the twentieth century is written this unjust and unnecessary abuse—climaxed with the SEC "death clause"—will be its big black spot. What of their future? They will continue to grow and improve their service. All the bonds and stocks of the operating companies should be good investments.

Nineteen forty-one has been the best year that the railroads have had since 1928. The total gross for 1941 will be about $5,300,000,000, compared with $4,300,000,000 in 1040. The coming year 1942 will be about 925 million dollars, compared with 682 million dollars in 1940. The coming year 1942 will show higher figures both for gross and net earnings, but if so, 1942 may be a good time to get out of railroad securities. Yes, get out and stay out. After World War II the railroads are sure to get an awful licking from shipping, airplanes, pipelines, auto trucks, motor coaches and private cars of all kinds.

MONEY RATES will stiffen during 1942; perhaps not appreciably, but some. Certainly any change that does take place will be on the upside. The United States Government cannot spend about 30 billion dollars a year ($575,000 per second) "mostly for fire crackers" without an ultimate strengthening of money rates even though one-half of the sum is raised by taxation. This ultimately means higher yields for Governments and corporation bonds. Certain medium-grade bonds should sell at higher prices during 1942. The money-rate pendulum has swung from high to low and vice-versa for 2000 years. It will continue to swing. The present decline in gold imports foretells the next swing. Gold imports are now running only 25% of 1940, while loans are increasing.

The official Government cost-of-living figures, which will be published during 1942, will show a small increase each month. The reason is that these figures must cover the same items, brands, and grades in order to have them useful for comparative statistical purposes. As a practical matter, however, a family can switch its purchases from sirloin steak to top-of-the-round without any increase in the cost-of-living. The same family can cut down on desserts and save money on both food and dental bills! Hence, there need be no increase in the cost-of-living for well-managed families during 1942. This is especially true as 15 per cent now goes into the garbage pail or is wasted in other ways.

MY FORECAST a year ago as to what Congress would do in 1941 was 100 per cent correct. Now, I am even surer of my ground. When Congress declared war it performed its most important single act until peace comes. From here out it will become of necessity somewhat of a rubber stamp. War emergency powers of the President will require but little action on the part of Congress. Remember that there are important Congressional Elections on November 3, 1942. Incidentally, the results of these elections will be very interesting to watch. They will give us a good clue as to Republican chances in 1944; but this is something for me to discuss a year from now. There is another possibility, namely, the enacting of labor control legislation such as Canada has adopted.

If price control legislation is enacted in 1942, it will not be very successful. Price control, without rationing, is usually a failure. Of course, the entire set-up appears cock-eyed to me. For instance, the purpose of price control is to prevent inflation and to discourage the purchase of nonessentials. But, does keeping prices down discourage purchasing? No! The way to discourage purchasing is to let prices rise. But, you ask: How about the prices of essentials such as food? Well, strange to say, the prices of farm products are not being controlled!

Even wages are omitted "because we cannot force people to work" and yet wages are the most important factor in setting prices. Bernard Baruch is correct when demanding the freezing of everything on a given day—commodities, farm products, wages, rents, interest, and profits. Fine! But how can such a law be enforced? Remember the bootlegging during prohibition days and apply this to 100,000 articles! The answer is in having price control apply to a few essentials and then ration these essentials.

I say that there will be no peace in 1942; that many nondefense industries will be depressed throughout 1942; and that business as a whole has already seen its peak. The war may even last two or more years after 1942; but after 1942, two months before it ends no one will forcsee the end.

JUST A WORD to various groups who read this forecast: (1) To manufacturers and investors:—Get out of the objective case. Stop kfeking, but help more to row the boat. If you believe in "private enterprise" show more of this enterprise in your own plans and policies. If you love personal liberty, be willing to fight for it, to be taxed for it, and accept the risks that go with it. If you wish to avoid having the Government make employment, make it yourselves. There never was any cyclone cellar for private property or for private enterprise.

(2) To wage workers and others: Smash the racketeers whether in labor circles or Government circles. Insist that workers shall vote by secret ballot as to whether or not they shall strike after hearing arguments from both their labor leaders and their employers. (I am willing to agree that no corporation be allowed to put on a "lockout" without a similar vote by its stockholders.) I beg labor in 1942 to encourage the Department of Justice in eliminating all rackets.

(3) The Babson chart shows total United States business today at an all-time high. Production and consumption records are being made all along the line. More are employed and at higher wages than ever before. But if 1942 is as good as 1941 we will be lucky.

Thumbnail Outlook for 1942

Total Business: Defense production will be up sharply; nondefense down sharply; average below 1941.

Employment: The above also applies to employment and to wages.

Farm Income will be up 10-20 per cent in 1942 over 1941.

Dividends and Business Earnings have passed their peaks.

Labor: There will be far fewer strikes in 1942.

Commodity Prices will strengthen somewhat, especially the prices of imported goods.

Taxes will be severely felt, especially by the white-collar group who can expect no pay increases.

Retail Trade will be a little off in 1942 compared with 1941.

High-grade Bonds should decline, but good stocks should sell higher.

Banks Ready After Decade Of Seasoning

By Henry W. Koeneke
President of the American Bankers Association

Up to December 7, 1941, we thought we knew in a general way where the country was heading. I doubt if many people deliberately and consciously believed that we would be drawn into this war in a large way or that this country would ever do more than provide the sinews of war to the belligerents whose cause had been embraced and help in the Atlantic with the Navy and evcntually with an air force.

The process of conversion from a peace economy to a war economy has been accordingly slow. It has been estimated that not more than 20 per cent of the productive capacity of the Nation has been devoted to the production of defense goods. In spite of all that has been said about an all-out effort, the Nation had not progressed so very far from its normal processes of life.

Total Effort Now

But all of this was suddenly changed on December 7. It was as if the past had been liquidated in one blow. The position of the country was completely changed. It must now wage total war and that means total effort.

For the first time in American war experience, unanimous support of actual war developed on the first day. Fortunately a considerable amount of experience has been had in military production. Tooling up is advanced. The basic organization and pattern have been pretty well set. The task ahead is one of vast expansion on a heretofore undreamed-of-scale.

The banking system of the country is in a better position to carry out its part of such a program than it has been at any previous time of national crisis. For a whole decade it has been undergoing a strengthening process. It too has had a lot of experience in its realm of military preparation. It is seasoned and ready. It has absorbed the shock of the outbreak of war without a tremor.

What Banks Are Doing

The banks have been active participants in the financing of the national defense program from its inception. As soon as the preliminary defense legislation was enacted by Congress, the banks of the country, through the American Bankers Association, established a Nation-wide machinery to facilitate the extension of credit for the financing of defense goods orders.

Committees are set up in every Federal Reserve district and in every State. Meetings were held, lectures were given and literature was distributed all designed to acquaint banks with the process of making defense loans. Manufacturing facilities of their communities were inventoried by banks. In many places, efforts were made to interest manufacturers in the procedure for acquiring defense goods orders.

New Problem Arises in Shift Of U. S. Units

Board of Trade Head Favors Keeping Old Agencies, Putting New Ones Elsewhere

By Fred A. Smith,
President of Washington Board of Trade.

As the year 1941 comes to a close Washington business and financial establishments may look back on a successful business year and should look forward with a great deal of uncertainty concerning the next 12 months.

Late in 1941 the number of Federal employes in Washingtgon passed the 200,000 mark, and we are advised by Federal agencies that that number will be increased by approximately 30,000 by the end of June, 1942. Servicing this great number of people requires increased personnel in private establishments and it would, at first glance, seem to insure a highly successful business year in 1942. No doubt most business houses may look forward to greatly increased volumes, but it is also probable that net earnings after taxes have been paid will be substantially smaller than they have been in some previous years with much smaller volumes.

Confusion Over Transfers

Different types of businesses are faced with different problems. One important matter, however, which will be of great importance to practically every commercial establishment in Washington, is the recent decentralization order issued by the President and the threat of future orders transferring old line agencies from Washington.

While business and financial men generally are 100 per cent behind the current war program and will support the President in things that he believes to be necessary, there is considerable confusion in their minds over the policy of transferring old, established agencies from Washington which has been adopted. Most Washingtonians agree that the Federal establishment in the District of Columbia is now large enough. However, most Washingtonians believe also that it should be maintained at somewhere around its present size by establishing new emergency agencies in other cities rather than by moving out people who have been in Washington for many years.

Many Problems Created

Most of these people have deep roots in the community; many of them own homes and have children in school. From the point of view of the average commercial establishment, there are many serious problems which must be solved resulting from these transfers. The great majority of people ordered out of Washington are buying automobiles, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, radios, etc., on installment contracts.

Of great importance to the general economic wellbeing of this community is the serious predicament in which builders now find themselves because of their inability to secure certain necessary metal items used in construction. Builders are going to find it practically impossible to continue in business unless they adjust their operations and construct units for which priorities can be procured. Present plans contemplate the erection of approximately 30,000 housing units in the Washington metropolitan area before the first of July. Of these, private builders have agreed to construct approximately 18,500 units.

Tax Yield Reduced

Unfortunately, priorities are not available for new construction unless the property is to be sold for less than $6,000 or rented for less than $50 a month. This, then, means that there will be a great amount of what is ordinarily referred to as low-priced housing constructed in the Washington metropolitan area during the months ahead. The important part of this must be, by necessity, built in nearby Virginia. This will have a definite effect on the movement of business in the metropolitan area. There are many who question the effect of constructing a large number of low-priced units upon property now existing.

It may very well be that the low tax yield of these properties will make it necessary for the District and the surrounding communities to find new and hitherto unused sources of taxation. It is a well-known fact that the taxes on properties valued at $3000, $4000 and $5000 do not, as a general rule, pay for the services which the community furnishes. It has been found in other cities that the tax rate on such property is not sufficient to pay the cost of schooling of the children living in them, to say nothing of providing streets, sewers, water, etc. This great increase in low-cost building may, therefore, result in either higher real estate taxes, higher local income taxes or local sales taxes.

British Spend 14 Billion In First Nine Months

London, Jan. 1 (AP).—Great Britain's expenditures in the first nine months of the fiscal year which will end March 31, 1942, reached a record total of £3,495,761,703 (approximately $14,123,000,000) compared with £2,708,063,346 (about $10,940,000,000) in the same period a year ago, the Treasury statement disclosed today.

Revenue for the first nine months of the fiscal year aggregated £1,221,567,556 against £752,418,136 in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Month's Stock Sales Heaviest in 5 Years

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—December sales on the New York Stock Exchange were the largest for that month since 1936 and the heaviest for any month since May, 1940, the exchange reported today.

The total for the month was 36,386,715 shares, more than double the November turnover of 15,047,142 and nearly twice the total of 18,397,158 in December, 1940.

Bond sales for December were $225,234,250, par value, against $140,746,000 in November, and $211,237,000 in December, 1940.

Banner Year in Capital Sales Reflects Influx of Newcomers

By Edward D. Shaw
Secretary of Merchants and Manufacturers Association

Business during 1941 in most lines reached an all-time high peak in Washington, passing the previous banner year of 1940.

The department store business, which affords a good barometer of the local retail trade, topped all other years in Washington's history. For the first 11 months of the year 1941 department store sales were 20 per cent above the same period of 1940, almost 30 per cent above a like period in 1939, and 47.7 per cent above the same period in 1929, which was the high point of the previous decade.

Retail furniture sales during the first ten months of the year of 1941 showed an even greater increase, mounting 35 per cent above the corresponding period of the previous year. This great increase no doubt was due in a large measure to the rapid growth of the District, and the many new homes which were built to accommodate the influx of defense workers, who came here from other sections of the country, and furnished their new homes from local stores.

In spite of the fact that defense production has necessitated a considerable decrease in automobile production during the last few months, automobile sales of new passenger cars in the District of Columbia for the first ten months of 1941 amounted to 27,791 as compared to 23,634 in the corresponding period of 1940, or an increase of 18 per cent.

Railway express shipments, which is another good index of general business conditions, likewise increased 16 per cent for the first 11 months of this year compared to the same period.

These marked increases in business were, of course, a reflection of the rapid increase in the population of the District of Columbia. The Federal Government defense activities brought many new employes to Washington and increased the number of Federal employes from 145,620 in September, 1940, to 191,588 in September this year, or an increase of 45,968.

Perpetual Has Record Gain In Resources

By Edward G. Baltz
Secretary of Perpetual Building Association

In reviewing operations for 1941, I naturally think of the year as marking the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of Perpetual Building Association and a rise in resources that shattered all previous marks.

During the past several years the association has kept pace with the development of the Nation's Capital and it continues to maintain its position as the largest building and loan association in the United States. Present assets are in excess of $54,000,000. Reflecting the desirability of maintaining more than adequate reserves in this emergency period Perpetual added $750,000 to its surplus account during the year which builds this item up to four million dollars, with additional undivided profits of over $450,000. 1941 was an exceptionally active year in home building.

Mortgage loans made for the purpose of new home construction and for refinancing topped all previous records. Naturally our expectations for 1942 are tempered somewhat by priorities and the extremely low ceiling for new residential construction. We hope that some exceptions will be made in the latter connection as Washington is literally bulging with new residents and desirable housing should be made available to these people who are here in the interest of national defense.

Gas Firm Extends Mains 86 Miles, Spends $904,206

The Washington Gas Light Co., keeping pace with new home building in the Capital and suburban area, expended $904,206 in the first ten months this year to extend their mains 86 miles. President Marcy L. Sperry added that the expansion enabled more than 11,000 families to obtain gas service.

He also stated that approximately 90 per cent of all new homes constructed in this area are being serviced by Washington Gas Light Co. and subsidiary companies.

Stock Index Down In '41; Bonds Gain

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—The quoted value of stocks listed in the New York Stock Exchange dropped four billion dollars in the year preceding December 1. The figures: 1941—$37,882,316,239, averaging $25.87 a share; 1940—$41,848,246,961, or $26.72 a share.

In the same period, the market value of bonds rose four billion dollars. The figures: 1941—$54,812,793,945, or $948.00 a bond; 1940—$50,755,887,399, or $935.80 a bond.

Acacia Head Sees Further Progress In Life Insurance

By William Montgomery
President, Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.

To a greater and more impressive extent than ever before, the institution of life insurance today is proving to be a bulwark of defense for this Nation and its families. That, briefly, is the significance of the immense progress made during the past year by the country's life insurance companies.

Regardless of war, the confidence of the people of our land in the future is best shown by the amount of life insurance bought, by the steady decrease in the number of lapses, by the sure and constant growth in the ratio of the earnings of the men and women of America being placed in life insurance.

Viewing the future, one cannot fail to observe that the opportunities for service, to the Nation and to the Nation's men, women and children, as well as to its business and industrial community, are certain to be greater than they have been in the past.

Those who know the inherent strength of life insurance, its closeness to the very heart of the country and its people, are confident that it will reach new peaks of accomplishment during the coming year.

U. S. Urged to Cut Waste of Rubber

John L. Collyer, president of B. F. Goodrich Co., pledged anew for the immediate elimination of waste rubber in any form and said the present situation offered to everyone an opportunity to make a concrete contribution to the war effort by using properly any rubber article that served his daily needs.

He cited one example:

"If each of America's 30 million motorists would take steps to get 10 per cent more mileage out of his present tires by starting, driving and stopping slowly, as circumstances permit, maintaining proper air pressures, and following carefully the advice of his dealer, the annual requirement of rubber for passenger cars and trucks alone could be reduced as much as 30,000 tons."

Scope Widened As Advertising Climbs in Year

By Reid Wallace
President, Advertising Club of Washington

Advertising in Washington in the past year may be said to have fulfilled its definition of a "process of disseminating information for commercial purposes."

Mr. Wallace

Measured more tangibly in cash-register movement—one of the final criteria of advertising success—retail business in the Capital increased an approximate 20 per cent over the year before. Washington's merchants experienced their most successful year in a constantly expanding community of well-paid workers who now numbered over a million population in the metropolitan trading area.

Scope Is Widened

A paramount development of the city's 1941 promotional activity—aside from a significant increase of 4 per cent in advertising linage in a period of declining nondefense production — was a widening of its scope. More and more money and space was devoted to institutional and nonprice advertisements, designed to place before consumers "reasons why" merchants were forced to take certain steps.

This included, to mention a few of the most prominent, merchandise shortages and attendant price increases, changes in store hours to accommodate changing Government working hours, curtailment of services due to personnel difficulties, and many other merchandise and operating innovationos resulting from the defense program. Keynoting all this explanatory advertising was the theme of full cooperation with emergency restrictions, and requesting the Washington public to understand the motives behind actions.

Used for Messages

During the year Washington newspapers' advertising columns were used by American business houses of all kinds to bring to Congress nad leaders of the executive branch of the Government statements of participation in the gigantic defense preparation. "Let's tell Washington what we're doing out here," was the objective of leading firms—and Washington newspapers did the telling.

A more heated use of this same medium was the sizzling controversy in type engaged in by interventionists and isolationists, both factions using the Capital's newspapers as a sounding board for influencing legislative action. Added to many other "propaganda" advertisements, they reflected the emergence of Washington from a locale of secondary importance to that of complete leadership in all affairs.

Advertising in Washington has shown full disposition to grow with its city, its business and its problems, and safe projection of this success is predictable for the year 1942.

National Bank Votes Regular $3 Dividend

Directors of the National Bank of Washington have declared the regular semiannual dividend of $3 a share, payable January 2 to holders of record December 31. Vice President Rutherford J. Dooley said transfer books will be closed from December 31 to January 8.

Difficult Adjustments Ahead For Washington Auto Trade

Sales Slump in Last Quarter Kills Hopes Of Record Year

By Lee D. Butler
President of Washington Automotive Trade Association

Contrary to the impression of many people the year 1941 did not set a new high for the District of Columbia in the sale of new passenger cars. The total for the year is something less than 31,000 as compared with 32,787 units in 1936 which was the peak year for Washington—and with 29,170 for 1940 and 29,009 for 1935. However had it not been for the sharp curtailment of output and drop in sales during the last quarter of the year the total would have set a new record.

The great volume of sales of new cars during the spring and summer months of 1941 was due in part to anticipated fear of a sharp increase in price due both to higher costs and new taxes. It was also in some measure due to fear of shortage of cars and to fear of cheapened construction.

The increase in price of the 1942 cars including the new Federal tax was less than expected, being only 8 to 16 per cent over the 1941 models.

Still Shows Progress

Although certain changes in materials had to be made because of defense needs, the quality, performance and appearance of the 1942 cars is much superior to those of prior models. The automobile industry has well lived up to its record of moving steadily ahead each year.

Further and very drastic curtailment of automobile production is scheduled for 1942. It is impossible for anyone to predict even approximately what the final result for the coming year will be. Even with a greatly restricted program of allotment much will depend on the availability of certain materials essential to automobile manufacture.

Although one hears in certain quarters the speculation that motor car production may be completely suspended for an indefinite period this would seem to be the result either of academic or too simple an approach to the problem or a lack of knowledge of the situation in this country.

The United States is not England or France or Germany as regards motor cars and their essential place in the life of the people. It is a mistake to draw loose parallels between situations so completely dissimilar. In England, for instance, no acute transportation problem was raised by drastic curtailment of an already small motor car production. Workers continued to ride to work in trams or buses or on bicycles as previously. Such could not be the case here.

Influence Cited

The distribution of population and of industrial plants in this country has been greatly influenced by general use of privately owned passenger cars. The automobile takes the worker to his job and for millions of workers is the only means of getting to their jobs.

Of our total of some 30 million passenger cars over three million are completely worn out and junked each year. If production of new cars is stopped the man of low income who drives the car traded down from further up the line of aconomic affluence will quickly find that he cannot buy a reliable used car to replace the one he had to junk. Such a situation would seriously interfere with the efficiency of a large and important group of wage earners.

It would appear that any curtailment beyond a certain minimum would be unwise and could only be justified on the ground of inability to produce such a minimum number of units due to temporary lack of certain materials or their substitutes.

This minimum production of cars is important both from the point of view of vital transportation replacement and because of its bearing on the operation of cars now in the hands of owners. No one questions the absolute necessity of keeping present cars in operating condition as long as possible. This calls for a dependable supply of parts and a serious situation already exists in this field. There is some question as to the ability of the automotive industry to continue to supply parts unless a steady minimum production of cars is maintained, as parts manufacturers may not be able to maintain their production facilities without at least some production for new motor car assembly.

The great difficulty in complete stoppage of production of new cars for even a limited perios is the inability to resume manufacturing without very long and expensive efforts again to bring together labor and materials on the assembly line.

The vital interests of the motoring public as well as of the automobile retailing industry and its hundreds of thousands of dependents call for careful study and prompt action in making the adjustments to automobile production which are necessary to an all out war effort.

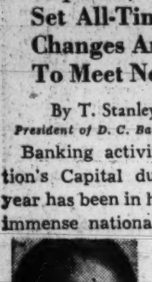
D. C. Banks End Another Banner Year

Deposits, Clearings Set All-Time Peak; Changes Are Made To Meet New Tide

By T. Stanley Holland
President of D. C. Bankers' Association

Banking activity in the Nation's Capital during the past year has been in high gear. The immense national defense program has affected every phase of business. Practically all statistics show increases over those of previous years.



Mr. Holland

According to the last call of the Controller of the Currency on September 24, 1941, bank deposits in Washington's 22 banks rose to an all-time peak of $477,433,000, an increase of $155,000,000 over December, 1937 deposits, and $207,876,000 over 1929 deposits.

Clearings soared to new high marks for the first 11 months of the year, totaling $1,583,558,000 against $1,274,489,000 in the like 1940 period—a tremendous gain of $309,068,000. November clearings totaled $148,004,000, an increase of $15,878,000 over the November, 1940, figures. The November, 1929, clearings amounted to only $120,261,000.

Population Swells

Between 1930 and 1940 Washington showed the highest per cent of population increase of any city in the country. At the end of October, 1941, it was estimated that the District had a population of 770,000 people, and that there were 1,057,000 people in the metropolitan area. The District population, therefore, has increased 17.6 per cent since the 1940 census, and the metropolitan population shows an increase of 16.4 per cent.

Washington now has well over 200,000 Government employes, with the huge monthly payroll of over 34 millions; this does not include the military service. It is estimated that the combined Government and private monthly payrolls total around 60 millions monthly.

As a result of the city's steadily growing population, and increases in all lines of business, it has been necessary for banking institutions to make certain adjustments in order to be able to render the best possible banking service. The additional Government paydays falling on the 8th and 23d of each month has helped materially in leveling the large payday volume, and the change has also meant faster service for bank customers.

Aid Defense Program

The members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association are cooperating wholeheartedly with the Government in the sale of Defense Bonds and Stamps. From the beginning of the sale of these bonds on May 1, 1941, through October 15, 1941, the banks sold over $15,000,000 of Series E, F and G Bonds to 22,500 individuals. The demand for these investments is steadily growing, manifesting a genuine desire on the part of the public to help in national defense.

The banks have shown their desire and willingness to extend credit on all sound loan applications, including those from businesses engaged in work for national defense.

The Washington banks have also given their full support to the annual campaigns of the American Red Cross and the Community Chest, and many of the officials have been actively engaged in these campaigns. The work of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade has also had the support of the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

Washington Bankers' Views

City to Be 'Hub of Universe' in Post-War Reconstruction

By John A. Reilly
President of the Second National Bank

The defense effort of the Nation so far transcends everything else that few people stop to review the business developments of the past year, or attempt to consider the economic problems that lie ahead.

The public at large may place emphasis on the military aspects of the present world crisis, but the plain truth of the matter is that the freedom, for which all democracies are fighting, is wrapped up in their economy.

Mr. Reilly

There were three major financial developments during the year:

1. In March the lend-lease law was placed on the statue books. It was the most far reaching piece of financing for nearly a quarter of a century. Instead of dollars, as in World War number one, we are advancing food, airplanes, guns, tanks, and ammunition. This second phase of major international financing will have a direct bearing on the lives of our people for generations to come.

2. On May 1, the Government undertook to finance partially our defense by the issuance of defense savings stamps and bonds. This is a direct hedge against inflation, and creates in the minds of our citizens the fact that they have a real stake in America.

3. In September, the regulation of consumer credit through the Federal Reserve System became effective. The restrictions which national defense needs have put upon instalment buying will ultimately place the Nation's buying habits upon a more stable basis.

The real tests of democracy lie ahead. Democracy is no automatic process, but is a delicate mechanism which must be eternally watched. Until very recently we Americans have taken our freedom for granted. We have been willing to live on that which was created and built up by our ancestors. Today, if we are to survive, we must do our share towards preserving our heritage.

Spurred by the momentum of the Nation's defense effort, Washington during 1941 has enjoyed business of boom town proportions. All indices are up. Notwithstanding inconveniences suffered by some, the city as a whole, is to be congratulated on the splendid way it has handled many difficult situations. As we know, the Nation's Capital has been the nerve center of the world for many months.

Will we have a ghost town following the war? My answer to this is, definitely, no! Washington has always gone forward.

In the postwar reconstruction period I can visualize a world-wide effort, based chiefly on American wealth and influence, to raise the standard of living of all people. Such a program would reduce the desire for conquest to a minimum.

In this scheme of things metropolitan Washington will unquestionably be the hub of the universe. Our successful handling of present problems will determine how well equipped we are to meet the challenging tasks that lie ahead.

Not "How Much' but 'How Quick'

By Thomas J. Groom
President of Bank of Commerce & Savings

During the past year the defense program has had a marked effect on the economic life of the Nation. Business and industrial activity have attained unprecedented peaks, and now that we are definitely at war our production efforts must be further intensified. Every activity and every thought is to be directed to meet the needs of the country. It is not a question of "how much," but "how quick."

The citizens of Washington have been confronted with many problems. We have had an increase in our population of about 65,000 with all its resulting effects, such as housing shortage, traffic and transportion problems, together with a rise in business activity reaching boom proportions. Office space to meet the needs of the new and expanded departments of the Government have made it necessary that some of these agencies not directly connected with the war effort be transferred to other cities.

This has caused a serious dislocation of the lives of some of our local families, in that it has become necessary for some of them to separate, others to give up their homes and sometimes even their jobs. It is pleasing to note that our citizens and businessmen are meeting the challenge and are successfully coping with the problem confronting them.

Through the purchase of Defense Bonds and Stamps everyone is afforded a real opportunity to serve the Nation. A systematic plan for the purchase of these securities is not only the patriotic duty of each citizen but such a program will serve for building a reserve for the recession which surely will follow the war.

Home Town Now Is World Capital

By Bruce Baird,
President of National Savings & Trust Co.

Our home town is our home town no longer; it has become the Capital of the civilized world. The affairs of Washington as we once knew them are dwarfed by the vital decisions in world affairs which daily emanate from this great metropolis. To our home town have come outstanding figures in national and international affairs and the amazing thing about it all is the fine spirit in which our people have made way for these extraordinary conditions and given their utmost efforts to accommodate local facilities to meet the needs created by the emergency.

Our public utilities have expanded to a major degree; our hotels, though handicapped by actual shortage of rooms, have cooperated among themselves to make every room available to the hnudreds brought here for important conferences; our merchants, likewise handicaped by restricted supplies, have endeavored to meet the public demand; our builders have continued their major program of housing construction ;our doctors and lawyers fully serve the increased needs for their professional skill. Indeed in all walks of life the response has been spontaneous and genuine.

Those of us who look back upon Washington as of the old days must reconcile ourselves to the change as a permanent one—a city having a potential trading area of two million persons and the Capital of world democracies.

Our chief concern must be for the future, for the era of reconstruction of world patterns and adjustment of war-torn peoples to a new peace and a better life. Washington will measure up to these responsibilities with the same spontaneity and resourcefulness it is now yielding.

Housing Seen One of Major Problems Here

By F. G. Addison,
President of Security Savings & Commercial Bank.

Washington has had a substantial increase in business during this year, due in no small part to the defense efforts.

One of the major problems has been adequately to house the employes coming to Washington as Government workers. Notwithstanding the fact that approximately 20,000 new housing units were started in the metropolitan area this year there is an acute shortage. Priorities affecting scarce materials are retarding the building industry from adequately supplying new units for these employes, and it is estimated that at least one thousand additional Government employes will be added weekly for sometime to come.

Washingtonians, including the business interests, have always been patriotically behind any national movement, and it is felt that they will be in the lead of all efforts to help our Government in the coming year, which will be one that may see many changes in the methods of doing business.

Business Cautioned on Excessive Expansion

By C. F. Burton,
President of the City Bank.

Washington has had a big year in business—probably the largest in its history even including the years of the World War. However, when the tax collector puts out his hand, it is not going to look quite so large.

I have an idea that it might be well for some business men to think hard about the tax liability falling due next year and their own capital setup before indulging in too much expansion. I have found that some business men, in this "sellers' market," are inclined to over step themselves in an effort to take care of business being offered. When things are rolling high, it is always time to be a bit cautious and not try to grab everything in sight.

When the yearend statements are in, it might be a good idea to make a careful analysis and give some thought to future plans. The men who, in 1928 and 1929, advised caution were howled down as pessimists. I do not feel pessimistic but we can not become invloved in this world turmoil without paying the price sometime and in some manner. The world, including this country, can not destroy a great portion of its wealth without each of us sharing a portion of the burden.

Must Keep the Wheels Moving Smoothly

By E. C. Graham
President of Hamilton National Bank

Our only forecast for the future is VICTORY—our only objective to contribute to the hastening of that victory with everything that we are and everything that we have.

Washington is now more than ever the center of this great struggle of all free peoples against the forces of tyranny. The job of Washington business and finance is to keep the wheels of this city turning smoothly and efficiently, to create the best possible conditions for those in our midst who are directing this gigantic effort, to preserve calm and faith in the face of occasional bad news, to give no credence to and spread no rumors, and, above all, to give more—much more—than is asked of us of effort and money to speed the march to victory.

Perhaps the most immediate contribution many of us can make is through the purchase of defense bonds and stamps. Buy Now.

Banks' Growth Termed Phenomenal

By Harry G. Meem
President of Washington Loan & Trust Co.

The banks of Washington have reflected the epochal events of the year just ended by the phenomenal growth of their assets to over half a billion dollars. The great increase in our population both in the city proper and in the adjacent area has necessitated additions to our personnel at a time when the draft and other caures have taken away many of our younger employes.

With our own resources running around three millions more than in 1940, it has been gratifying to be able to increase our real estate and other loans by more than a million and a half dollars and our holdings of Government and other securities by over a half a million, and still maintain a cash reserve of 30 per cent. The problem of low yield on loans and investments still confronts us but the increase in volume nevertheless has enabled us to complete the year with most satisfactory earnings.

Capital Transit Prepared for Busiest Year

By E. D. Merrill
President of Capital Transit Co.

During 1941 public transportation in Washington by street car and bus reached a new high and Capital Transit added to its plant to take care of its greatly increased business and to be prepared for what is now expected in 1942.

Mr. Merrill

During the year 132 street cars and 395 new buses were delivered or ordered at a total cost of six million dollars.

One of the notable events of the year from the standpoint of public transportation was the staggering of the working hours of Government departments. It resulted in an improvement in the rush hour traffic situation and enabled Capital Transit to improve running time on a majority of car and bus trips in those hours.

The number of cars and buses used in the rush hours mounted steadily throughout the year as did the number of miles those vehicles traveled over Washington streets.

For instance, when this was written, Capital Transit was using in the morning peak period 1513 cars and buses, or about 260 more than a year ago. It is also to be noted that the 1513 is more than double the number operated in the morning rush hours by the Capital Traction Co., the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Washington Rapid Transit Co., in December, 1933, before the merger and the birth of Capital Transit.

With the expanding service the number of employes increased also, reaching a total of 4560.

While net income for the year shows a considerable increase over that for 1940, that income plus depreciation reserves was far below the sum required to make replacements and purchase additional equipment for our increased business, so again it was necessary to resort to borrowing.

The United States is already devoting some 20 per cent of its national effort to war and arms. The percentage for England is placed at 50; for Germany, variously between 50 and 70. The American percentage will be rapidly increased.

This brings us to the fourth M—money. Economic thinking in Washington—taking a tip from impoverished Germany, which was "too poor to fight"—is more and more in terms of physical capacities, rather than money. Milo Perkins, head of the Economic Defense Board, urges us to "think of the families and the plant capacities first and fiscal mechanics afterwards."

This does not mean neglecting the fiscal situation, but adjusting it to the physical problem of capacities, materials and work.

Record U. S. Income

The national income, in terms of dollars, has been stepping up steadily, and in October, the latest month estimated, had reached an annual rate of 95 billion dollars. Obviously, it is easier to pay the vast cost of war out of such a total, than from such a depression income as the 45 billion dollars of 1933.

Presumably the national income will increase further under the spur of huge expenditures planned, but perhaps not at the recent rate.

First, to prevent the costs from skyrocketing, drastic measures are planned to control prices. Secondly, as arms requirements curtail civilian industry, that will tend to balance off increases to purchasing power created by Government spending.

From a higher national income, larger taxes will be taken. On top of the $3,500,000,000 increase in Federal taxes enacted last September, the Treasury is now asking new levies to raise additional billions. What percentage of the defense outlay can be met by current tax revenues remains to be seen, but at the moment the proportion appears to be only about a third. Secretary Morgenthau some time ago suggested two-thirds. Since then, spending plans have been greatly increased, so it appears that a large part must be met by borrowing.

Inflationary Trend

Large-scale drawing down of savings by sale of Government bonds to the public will pay part of the costs. Additionally, the Government may have access, as it has in the past, to expansion of bank deposits through borrowing from the banks. When the Government sells its bond to the bank, the bank gives it a credit on its books, and when the Government spends this money, it comes back to the banks in the form of deposits from the persons receiving the Government's checks.

This is considered inflationary, or tending to boost prices, since it increases spendable funds. Plans to prevent this effect on the price level include widening price ceilings, already in effect upon many materials, borrowing the funds that might otherwise be spent by selling the Treasury's bonds to the public, and taking the spending power back in higher taxes.

How much debt can the Nation stand? National debt is by conservative standards reduced in normal prosperous times, but debt is also an essential medium of investment.

47,000 New Workers Here Bring Record Trade Boom metropolitan population shows an increase of 16.4 per cent.

John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank—Spurred by the momentum of the Nation's defense effort, Washington during 1941 has enjoyed business of boom town proportions. . . . Will we have a ghost town following the war? My answer to this is definitely, no! Washington always has gone forward.

Bruce Baird, president of National Savings & Trust Co.—Those of us who look back upon Washington as of the old days must reconcile ourselves to . . . a city having a potential trading area of two million persons and the Capital of world democracies.

Alfred G. Neal, president of the Potomac Electric Power Co.—To meet anticipated demand the company embarked upon the largest construction program in its history. The overall cost . . . will be between 30 million dollars and 35 million dollars.

C. F. Burton, president of the City Bank—A number of businessmen are being offered so much business in Washington that . . . they are expanding beyond their capital position. . . . After they pay the heavy taxes they may find it hard to pay for such capital improvements.

Clearings Leap 24 Per Cent

Back to concrete figures on Washington's 1941 boom, the outstanding gain probably was in bank clearings which soared to more than 1½ billions in the first 11 months or a jump of 24 per cent over the same period last year.

Sharply heavier volume was in evidence in all lines of banking here. Deposits aggregated $477,433,000 as of September 24, the latest available official figure, setting a new peak and gaining 14 per cent over savings on December 31, 1940. Bank assets likewise soared, totaling $525,842,000 on the same date for a gain of 12 per cent. Loans lagged, however, showing an advance of only 5 per cent.

Outstanding gains in volume were recorded by Washington's utilities which are hard pressed to handle the tremendously expanded demands of a population-swollen city. Increased operating expenses and much heavier taxes are making deep inroads on net income.

The Potomac Electric Power Co., in the midst of a 30-million-dollar expansion program, showed an output increase of 18 per cent in the 11 months ended November 30 as compared with the like period last year.

Capital Transit Co., which received or ordered six million dollars in new rolling stock (132 streetcars and 395 buses), showed a 22 per cent increase in passengers carried during the 11 months.

New Telephone Records

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. reported new records in telephones in service and number of calls. At the end of November there were 315,788 telephones in service here, against 272,552 last year at the same time. Average calls per day soared to 1,485,462 against a daily average of 1,250,705 last year in November. C. & P. spent 16 million dollars for additions and betterments to its Washington plant during the past year.

Washington Gas Light Co. reported gas sales for the 11 months increased 3.8 per cent. The small gain reflected unseasonably warm weather most of the autumn and so far this winter. The company has been kept busy extending mains to serve the many new homes constructed during the year.

Record sales were reported by Washington department stores. With Christmas volume still untabulated, sales of seven large local department stores in the first 11 months were 20 per cent heavier than last year's record volume in the same period. Furniture sales showed an even more spectacular expansion, the 11-month gain being 35 per cent over last year.

After capacity business in the first eight months, local auto dealers experienced an almost perpendicular sales drop the rest of the year. Even at that, new car sales here in the first 11 months totaled 28,948 units, or 8 per cent heavier than in the corresponding 1940 period. Gasoline sales continued at a lively clip throughout the year, despite the shortage scare which resulted in night closings of gas stations and appeals to motorists to conserve oil. Washington sales of gasoline totaled 151,039,538 gallons in the first 10 months, up 8 per cent over the same 1940 period.

B.-L. Assets Up 10%

The building and loan associations enjoyed their busiest and most profitable year. Assets increased 10 per cent and at the end of November totaled $171,344,635 for a new record.

Life insurance agencies likewise enjoyed boom sales. For the first 11 months Washington writings of new policies aggregated $62,893,000 for an increase of 8 per cent over the same period last year.

Also worth noting in the Washington picture during 1941 was the wider employment opportunities in private business. For the first time in many years jobs were begging for workers as attested by the expanded help wanted columns in local newspapers. Older workers, pushed onto the retirement shelf against their will, found themselves welcomed back to work with open arms.

Business Profits Expected to Drop

Boston, Jan. 1.—Business volume will reach new highs in 1942 and average about 10 per cent larger than in 1941, the United Business Service predicts in its special annual outlook report released today.

Sharp gains in armament output are expected to more than offset the drastic curtailments in many civilian lines. Priority unemployment will be an unsettling factor in the early months of the year until rising defense labor needs begin to take up the slack.

Higher material, tax and labor costs will reduce total business profits in 1942 as compared to 1941. Also the service forecasts that rising living costs and individual tax burdens will check the uptrend in total consumer purchasing power.

Leaders Pledge Victory Output

'Generals' on Industrial Front Confident, Promise Full Energy in War Effort

Universal pledges of full production for victory marked the traditional year-end comment of business leaders as scores of the heads of America's important industries revealed the greatest production records in history.

For the year ahead most of the "generals" of the Nation's industrial front confined themselves almost wholly to assurances that 1942 would mean more and more of the country's industrial energy was being poured into the war effort.

At the same time they touched on the difficulties presented in the future and the recent past by such things as tightening supplies of vital materials and skilled labor.

Such top-flight business names as Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors; Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric, William P. Witherow, president of the National Association of Manufacturers; Walter S. Tower, president of the American Iron & Steel Institute; David Sarnoff, chief of Radio Corporation of America, and many others were on the list of industrial and financial men who pointed to the accomplishments of the year just past and viewed the future with vigorous confidence.

Hopeful Factors Cited

They cited such encouraging factors as these:

1. Record production in the two most basic industrial supports of the war effort, electric power and steel.

2. "An unusual degree of stability in the face of shock" for the important securities markets.

3. A communications industry which had handled the preparation for, and the first blows of, shooting war without disruption.

4. An automobile industry turned more and more from peacetime to war effort.

5. A food-processing group which had met all demands to date, both for this country and its Allies, and was looking ahead to even greater output.

Tower said the Nation's steel furnaces and mills had turned out more than 82,800,000 tons last year, 25 per cent better than the previous record in 1929, and said plans already accepted by the industry called for output of 90 million tons or more, though he did not promise this peak before 1944 because of construction difficulties.

"While sacrifices and substitutions among nondefense steel consumers may be necessary in 1942, particularly in alloy steels, the steel industry in the coming year will make millions of tons above the maximum of all defense or war needs," Tower said.

Steel on War Basis

Tower said the steel industry had "quickly and smoothly placed itself on a war basis" because it had been functioning for many months on a 24-hour day and seven-day week and because "its leaders had long ago accepted as their primary task the fulfillment of all defense needs as long as our security and freedom are threatened by hostile nations."

Sloan said of his giant General Motors Corporation that between the fourth quarter of 1940 and the same period of 1941 it had increased output of war materials fourfold.

"As we enter 1942 we have cause for confidence in industry's ability to meet the exacting tasks which lie ahead, for the job of producing war materials is well under way and will continue to gather momentum in coming months," he said.

"Futher revisions of schedules will have to depend on the needs of war. That should be the only governing factor. This situation is of course bound to result in dislocations while the shift from a defense economy to a full war economy is completed."

Wilson, reviewing General Electric's situation, revealed that even before the declaration of war the company had enough orders on hand to keep all present facilities and personnel busy in 1942 without the addition of a single new order.

"But," he said, "the reality of war puts everything in a new perspective, and we now clearly understand that all previous standards of performance must henceforth be considered inadequate.

"General Electric is not only willing to assume, but is seeking, a greater share of the tremendous additional job which must and will be done."

From the gas utility industry, via its trade body, the American Gas Association, came assurance that for two years before shooting started in Europe studies had been begun to cope with war conditions here and that valuable data had been gathered abroad after hostilities developed covering protection of plants, transmission lines and other facilities against air raids, sabotage and other enemy action.

Sarnoff hinted at tremendous technical progress in the radio and electronics fields as a result of the war. But said they must remain defense secrets for the time being.

He said R. C. A.'s order book was 80 per cent for defense, 20 per cent for commercial users, and added ::production for defense is rapidly increasing."

Also in the communications field, A. N. Williams, president of Western Union, reported over 1000 defense projects completed in the past year, including new telegraph facilities for all camps and naval bases, and many new and converted defense plants.

Limit of Capacity Seen

William P. Witherow, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in an "annual report" of the year's production for defense and actual shooting war, said:

"Congress will vote and the people will support appropriations of any size necessary to attain our objectives, but the mere voting of money does not, in itself, produce tanks, ships, guns and planes.

"Our aim is to produce to the limit of our capacity the material needed for meeting our heavy responsibilities in the present conflict.

"The problem, therefore, is to convert our peacetime facilities as rapidly as possible to a war basis, to enlist and train the necessary personnel for this type of production and to insure a steady flow of materials and a complete integration of all the parts of the huge productive process. . . ."

Walter S. Tower, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, reported the country's output of 82 million tons of steel in 1941 was 25 per cent better than the previous annual record in 1929, and said "the steel industry in 1942 will make millions of tons above the maximum of all defense and war needs."

Technical Advances

David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America, predicted this war, like the last, would be parent to a host of technical advances in radio telephony and electronics, but added that developments even now in sight must remain defense secrets for the time being.

R. S. Reynolds, president of Reynolds Metals Co., which employs 13,000 workers in its 30 plants in 13 States with most of them devoted to defense production, looked forward to an all-out war effort by his firm.

Noting the need not only to finance the Nation's war effort but "to preserve our equilibrium both now and for the post-war period," John S. Fleek, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, said:

"The Nation's investment bankers stand ready to do their part not only through cooperating with Government in the sale of defense securities but also through devoting the full measure of their experience and facilities to meeting the increasing demands of defense industries for private capital needed for war expansion."

The No. 1 Weapon—Production

Bulwark to Civilian Morale Seen as Retailers' War Role

Merchants to Play Part Better Than Ever, Says Hecht

"America's retailers today are better equipped than ever to cope with the problems of the current emergency," said M. S. Hecht, chairman of the board of the Hecht Corporation of Maryland, operators of department stores in Washington, Baltimore and New York City.

"Looking back through the years to the two previous wars in which American armed forces were engaged," he said, "I can remember very well the part that retailers played in keeping up civilian morale at home, and I believe that out of these experiences we have learned how to prepare ourselves to cope with this problem better than ever before.

"Previous wars have been waged on definite battle fronts . . . today's war affects civilians as never before. Folks in the home have had war brought within their own front yards, so to speak, and whoever can provide protection to these bulwarks of the home are fighting a defensive battle. Manufacturers who can provide a steady flow of these necessities . . . merchants who present them on display . . . and those behind the counter who sell them to the customer are all part of an almost endless chain of soldiers of defense.

"So long as the hum of business pervades our cities, so long as civilians can maintain their homes as their castles, the morale of the American people will remain at the peak that points to success and victory."

Mr. Hecht looks back over a period of over 40 years of retailing—40 years during which this country was actively engaged in three wars—the Spanish-American War, the first World War and the present conflict. During the first of these wars, M. S. Hecht was already established as a merchant, with a store in the Nation's Capital.

M. S. HECHT

Mr. Hecht advanced these suggestions to retailers:

"Adhere strictly to all Government regulations; follow them to the very letter; but except for these necessary precautions, proceed with the routine of business as usual. Provide for the civilian's needs at lowest possible prices; keep a steady flow of essential goods available at all times; and cooperate in every regulation required for the maintenance of civilian morale."

Grain Prices Reach 4-Year High Levels

Chicago, Jan. 1 (AP).—Rising slowly but almost steadily to levels not exceeded since 1937, grain prices in 1941 mirrored conditions associated with the spread of war throughout the world, particularly America's assumption of its role as the "larder of democracy."

American farmers had a near record production of grain crops. Despite this, they watched prices advance.

Wheat futures in Chicago advanced from about 87 cents a bushel in Chicago at the end of 1940 to a four-year peak of $1.31 immediately after war broke out in the Pacific. The 1937 high was $1.51. Corn rose from 63 cents to a peak of 91 cents; oats rose from 37 cents to 58; rye from 47 to 87. Closing prices of the year were slightly below these peaks.

Oil Industry Reports Many New Records

William R. Boyd, jr., president of the American Petroleum Institute, announced his industry had achieved new high records in virtually every department of production in 1941, and hailed "the thoroughgoing cooperation of the Government' with the oil companies in the war effort.

Boyd said in part:

"The declaration of the existence of a state of war with the Axis powers found the American petroleum industry worknig at break-neck speed, with the thorough-going cooperation of the Government, to meet new demands for petroleum products, and to eliminate bottlenecks before they have a chance to affect the supply of petroleum.

"On the very day Congress was acting to meet the treacherous attack of Japan, Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, with keen foresight and patriotic resolve, was organizing a petroleum industry council for national defense—a sort of partnership arrangement between the Federal Government and the petroleum industry, to have petroleum play its all-important part in prosecuting the war.

"Demand for petroleum products in 1941 was by far the greatest in the 80-year history of the industry, amounting nearly to 1,600,000,000 barrels, or almost 10 per cent above 1940. United States consumption alone increased more than 12 per cent. At the end of the year the industry was producing crude petroleum at a rate of more than 4,100,000 barrels a day, with predictions made that rapidly mounting needs would require production of 4,500,000 barrels a day by the middle of 1942, and possibly of 5,000,000 barrels a day by July 1, 1943."

New York-Virginia Ship Line to Suspend

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—A spokesman for Eastern Steamship Lines said that the company's service between New York and Newport News and Richmond, Va., would be suspended on New Year's Day.

He said the Government had requisitioned the freighters Wilton and Cornish which operate on the route.

Earlier this month the line abandoned its New York-Boston run for the winter, and two weeks ago it announced that its New York-Norfolk passenger service had been temporarily suspended. Freight service is maintained between the latter ports.

D. C. Insurance Men Adjust Selves to War

By T. Lochl O'Brien

President, D. C. Life Underwriters Assn.

In the upset world of the past 12 months American life insurance has unavoidably had to adjust itself to changing conditions. We saw most of the companies insert "war clauses" in all new policies on men of draft age as a forerunner of the war itself.

Mr. O'Brien

Further limitations are expected in this direction. Recently some of the largest companies also announced a reduction of the guaranteed interest rates on which their permiums are calculated. This also is in line with the trend of the times, and similar action is indicatd by other companies. The result will be increase of from 8 to 12 per cent in the required premiums on new insurance, but such action will be taken only where necessary for the protection of existing policies.

Local agencies, practically without exception, have been affected by the draft, and to a greater extent by reserve officers being called to active duty with the Army and Navy. Reduced personnel means a heavier burden on those remaining to service policyholders, with corresponding less time to secure new business. On the other hand, Washington has experienced an unprecedented boom, and the effect of increased payrolls is beginning to be felt, as is true in many industrial areas all over the country.

According to my latest figures, the District of Columbia placed in force $66,426,000 of new business during 1941. This was a 5 per cent gain over 1940.

At present it is difficult to foretell the next years effect of the war on local life nsurance business. It is certain that new policies will be on a restricted basis for some classes of risks. Increased taxes will undoubtedly cause others to curtail intended insurance programs. But with all this, it is felt that the present per capita amount of life insurance in the District of Columbia ($1086) is so far below the requirements of the families of this city that the coming months must see an increase in insurance in force.

India Starts Drastic Gasoline Rationing

New Dehli, India, Jan. 1 (AP).—Drastic cuts in gasoline rations were announced today, effective January 1.

A communique said that supplies from Burma, one of India's main supply centers, are now liable to interruption and "defense of India's Eastern outposts must entail increased demands" by the fighting services.

Life Insurance at New High Of $925 Per Capita in 1941

Total life insurance owned per capita in the United States approached $925 in 1941, an all-time peak and nearly 3½ times the per capita total in 1917 at the time of the last great national emergency, it was announced today by the Institute of Life Insurance.

"This is an important measuring rod of the greater bulwark of family security existing today, with which to meet the present national emergency and postwar readjustments that may come," Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Institute said in announcing the new estimate for 1941.

"The probable figure for 1941 of nearly $925 per capita compares with $266 in 1917. This means that on this average our families are protected by life insurance equal to nearly a year and a half of their income, compared with only about one-half year's income protection in 1917.

"It was this urge for greater family security that brought the great increase in total life insurance in force since the turn of the century. Total life insurance per capita is today eight times that of 1900. American families have found that life insurance is one of the foundation stones of security and have purchased it in increasing amounts.

"There is special significance in these figures today, because they point to an important factor in the defense program which is often overlooked. National morale is a vital defense factor today, as events in Europe have proven.

"And on this score, America is strong. Nowhere else in the world do families have as great a degree of security as well as freedom, the two major factors in morale building. On the average our people have nearly $200 per capita in the savings bank, nearly every second family owns its own home, life insurance security per capita is now nearly $925, the 1941 national income will probably exceed $2600 per family. Our families are today in an even stronger position than in 1917 to meet the demands for allout defense effort which the present emergency demands."

Power Needs for War Effort Delay 'Death-Sentence' Law

New York, Jan. 1 (AP).—Electric utilities, supplying American industry with more power than can be generated in all the other nations of the world combined, enters 1942 with a respite from "the 1935 death sentence."

That was the Public Utility Holding Company Act which ordered the big financing and management organizations controlling operating firms to break up into geographically integrated units.

But indications in Washington, late in the year, were that the Securities and Exchange Commission probably would exercise its discretionary powers to postpone application of the 1935 act until after the war emergency, in the interest of intensified power production under present managements.

Throughout the year the electric output of the utilities for American armament making constantly rose until, in December, production rose to the greatest peak in history—more than 3,368,000,000 kilowatt hours.

The utilities companies spent millions of dollars during 1940 enlarging their late-1940 record capacity of 41,575,851 kilowatts.

The Government helped step up capacities for this most vital of defense manufacturing needs by placing power plant construction materials at or near the tops of priorities lists.

Jap Attack Speeds Up Production

Factory Workers' Morale Improved; Voluntary Step-Up Noted Nationally

By Frank McMillen.

Associated Press Financial Writer

New York, Jan 1.—An enormous speed-up in many plants producing war materials has occurred since the Japanese attack on the United States at Pearl Harbor on December 7, a survey showed today.

Many of the details of this expanded production must be hidden for the time being, to prevent giving away information valuable to the enemy, but certain facts stand out clearly from this check of the whole country:

1. The morale of factory workers from coast to coast has improved under the impact of the conflict, and therefore the unit production of men and women in the plants has risen in spontaneous answer to the challenge of the war.

2. An increased workweek, often offered voluntarily by the men of the plants and mills, is giving an ever greater outflow of tanks, guns, planes and other war materials, and in many factories the traditional yuletide holidays were foregone at the request of the workers.

New Plants Rushed

3. New plants, not scheduled for production for weeks or months to come, have been rushed to the starting point and are actually turning out goods of war.

4. Where figures were available (always in percentages, so that valuable concrete figures may not be revealed) they showed key plants with production step-ups of 4½ to better than 45 per cent since the first bomb fell on Pearl Harbor.

Leading arsenals, aircraft concerns, machine tool builders, ammunition manufacturers and the like indicated clearly the industrial line has advanced sharply since the actual outbreak of the war.

Voluntary Speed-Up

These were some of the high lights of the check-up:

An airplane propeller manufacturer, just getting into full production, reported a "noticeable increase in production without increasing hours, due to a voluntary speed-up of workers since December 7."

A planemaker, unable to disclose specific figures, revealed switching from a five to a seven day week.

A tool plant reported no increase in employment, "but a marked improvement in workmen's efficiency."

A big arsenal, owned by the Government, reported various departments had lifted output 4½ to 37 per cent. It mentioned a specific shell operation which took four girls to turn out 2500 units daily before Pearl Harbor now three are doing who four did before.

An aluminum plant, working 24 hours a day, seven days a week, said production since the outbreak of the war had increased "very materially."

Longer Hours For Many

An automotive accessories firm working on shell fuses, on a 7-day week, had stepped up its production 34 per cent as 15,000 employes volunteered to work 60 hours instead of 48, and most had asked to work New Year's Day.

Several companies in one major area which had planned up to December 7 to start production by March 1 of armor-piercing shell and small high-explosive projectiles, were expected to get the lines rolling this month.

In the machine tool business there were evidences that, despite a swifter production pace, work was being held back by a shortage of skilled workers and of materials. But even in this field, morale of the men in the plants was reported markedly improved in the majority of cases.

Material Shortage Looms

Said one big machine-tool maker: "Our output has been accelerated 10 to 20 per cent for December and January, but at the expense of materials which will be lacking in February, precluding the maintenance of the recent pace.

"We achieved this mainly through longer hours, plus a few more men. We already had been on an around-the-clock six-day basis. Our key men worked Christmas and New Year's, but the rest of our force was idle due to lack of materials."

"Before Pearl Harbor our 3500 men didn't take things seriously. After a series of meetings with small groups, encouraging them to produce, a favorable response was noted last week.

"I would say 98 per cent of our men realize what we are up against.

"We are still working on the small minority, mainly unmarried men getting $45 to $60 a week with no family responsibility, who like to lay off Saturday despite time-and-one-half pay.

"Until Pearl Harbor, the men, who could eat at their machines if they wanted to, had taken 15 to 20 minutes off for lunch. Now they stay at their machines.

"We are working around the clock six days and when we can build up more trained men we will probably step up certain key machines to seven days."

Business Outlook for 1942

By J. A. Livingston

Staff Economist, Business Week

The war outlook is now the business outlook. Not only will American sentiment during 1942 move up and down with the fortunes of war but all industrial activity will be concentrated toward producing the necessary fighting equipment for our Army and Navy. The exigencies of battle will determine how much of what type of goods American factories will produce—whether tanks, planes, shoes or automobiles, etc.

And the standard of living—the supply of consumer goods available for civilians—is bound to decline. No longer can the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board or the Office of Production Management make fine distinctions between necessary and unnecessary nondefense goods. From now on, any production which does not directly contribute to the winning of the war—any production which gets in the way of armament production—is necessarily secondary.

The attitude of American businessmen, workers and farmers toward Government policy has changed now that their own sons stand to lose their lives. And that means that arms production will take precedence over all other production; that industrial direction will come from Washington; that plants which formerly produced various types of machinery will convert their equipment to arms production; that allocations of critical materials will become more and more stringent; that price control is essential; that the manufacture of durable consumer goods, such as automobiles, refrigerators, etc., will be increasingly limited; that "all-out" for the first time, really means all out.

Construction

By Waldo G. Bowman

Editor, Engineering News-Record

Building for defense is a thing of the past. The construction industry's new standard is emblazoned "Building for Battle." And it can be raised with confidence, for in 1941 the construction industry handled more contracts than ever before in history, thereby shattering the record of 1928 which had come to be accepted throughout the lean thirties as a never-to-be-repeated attainment.

The $11,396,000,000 worth of 1941 construction contracts (which doesn't take into account hundreds of millions let for work in the island bases, Alaska and Panama) thus gives new dimensions to an industry that has always been considered to be one of our largest.

Whether these dimensions will shrink or expand during the year now beginning depends upon how much progress civilian construction can make in the face of priorities, and upon how much the unfolding of events on the battlefronts may increase our war construction needs. The tremendous defense construction program of 1941 must be stepped up for war, but by the same token civil construction must recede. The net result may well be a shrinkage in the total.

Engineering News-Record's estimate for 1942, built up by considering the prospects for each type of work, as factories, waterworks, highways, housing, etc., is ten billion dollars. Only three previous years have been higher.

Manufacturing

By L. C. Morrow

Editor, Factory Management and Maintenance

Both good and bad business will characterize the manufacturing industries in 1942, certainly during the first half, and probably throughout the year.

Total value of output of the manufacturing industries will reach a new high due to the production of defense equipment and supplies. At the same time, there will be considerable unemployment, caused by scarcity of materials. This unemployment will increase during the first quarter, probably becoming less after that, as allocations take more account of the need for civilian goods manufacture. Production itself, will be limited by the shortage of essential materials, so that the Nation will not make full use of its existing productive capacity. How much the new production high will go above the existing record figure, therefore, is problematical.

Many of the smaller plants are not capable of producing defense equipment and must be allowed to carry on their usual lines unless they are to go out of business. By no means can all of their employes be retrained for defense work or moved to the vicinity of defense plants.

Aviation

By Leslie E. Neville

Editor, Aviation

Fortunately for our Nation, the declarations of war by the Axis powers have found our aviation industry well prepared on all fronts. During 1941 expansion of military aviation in the United States has progressed as rapidly as humanly possible. Military aircraft production has increased three-fold over that of 1940, the total for this year being approximately 20,000.

More important than the actual production is the rapidly increasing productive capacity of the aviation industry which reached a rate of well over 2000 planes per month by the year-end and should reach 3000 per month by the summer of 1943. Productive floor space in the airframe, engine and propeller industries at the fall of the year totaled more than 32 million square feet and direct labor in these industries, 220,000 persons. Total floor space and personnel is 25-30 per cent higher.

During the first eight months of 1941, deliveries of American-made aircraft and aviation equipment to Great Britain reached a total value of 330 million dollars. Only $6,016,045 of this was under lend-lease authority. The remainder was part of the two billion dollars in orders placed prior to the passage of the lend-lease law.

Electric Utilities

By S. B. Williams

Editor, Electrical World

The output of kilowatt-hours of electric utilities in 1941 will be approximately 164 billions, the largest gross increase, 20 billions, in any year. This has not been accompanied with an equally sharp rise in kilowatt demand, due to the longer hours of industrial operation.

Residential and commercial building use of electricity has shown a less rapid increase than in former years.

Kilowatt-hour output over the next year may be expected to continue to increase but not at the same acceleration as during the previous 12 months. This increase will come from extended hours of industrial operations and from new defense plant. Because of restricted volume of appliances, residential and commercial utilization will grow at a decreasing pace. The number of new customers will in all probability be less and less because of restrictions that will be placed upon new nondefense residential construction and upon line extensions to rural territory.

Dependability Of Securities Here Is Cited

By John C. Folger

Washington Investment Banker

The outlook for the securities business locally is, of course, naturally affected by the outbreak of war. The increase of war activities will mean greater business in Washington than ever before in practically all lines and this will, of course, influence the value and price for local securities.

Until recently in appraising the value of securities, investors usually inquired the record made in the last depression. Lately, and especially since the declaration of war by the United States, new questions are being asked.

Business generally assumes: First, that the democracies will win the war, and second, that our business setup will be preserved in much the same form as at present. Turning away from the past depression, investors are now asking more about tax problems and the postwar lull.

Bonds having recently set all time high records, are for that reason, if no other, regarded as being somewhat vulnerable. Patriotic buying of defense bonds should tend to offset the factor of increased Government spending. Equities are selling without much regard to wartime earnings or war yields. The real test for equities is the relative steadiness of earnings that may be expected during the postwar period.

Those familiar with the records in both war and peace time are greatly impressed with the dependability of local securities as a class. Washington has a business record equaled by few places in the country.

Back to Horse and Buggy Days? Not So Easy! Dobbin Vanishing, Art of Wagon Making Lost

By James Marlow.

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Jan. 1.—Back to the horse and buggy days?

Businessmen looking into the transportation problem caused by the rubber tire shortage and motor car making curtailment said today it may be sad, but Old Dobbin doesn't live here any more and buggy making is pretty nearly a lost art.

Against 33 million motor vehicles in the United States there are less than 10,300,000 farm horses, not enough for a team for each of the Nation's 6,100,000 farms.

There are a few more than four million mules in the country, costing more than the average horse, but they'd probably make slow driving between the shafts of a buggy.

And the National Automobile Dealers Association said only 900 buggies were sold in America last year.

So we can't go back to the horse and buggy days without waiting for work horses to be born, without tooling up a buggy industry all over again, and without training buggy makers.

Even buggy whips may have disappeared, for the head of a supply house for the 6000 draft and delivery horse in Greater New York said:

"So far as I know there is only one buggy-whip maker left. I ordered a few whips from him months ago but never got an answer. He may be out of business."

In New York there are 19 hackmen who drive horses and carriages but they are so conservative they stay indoors on very cold days.

One dealer in old carriages, however, said two customers had bought vehicles from him since the United States went to war because they thought driving a horse in the New York suburbs during a blackout would be safer than using an automobile.

Even the United States Army's use of horses for cavalry is on a relatively small scale, for Maj. Gen. John K. Herr, Chief of Cavalry, noted in the January issue of Country Life that:

The American Army has only 25,000 cavalry horses and 12,000 draft horses, while the Germans entered the war with 50,000 cavalry steeds and 900,000 draft horses and the Russians had a million combined.

An official of one of the Nation's largest horse and mule auctions, in East St. Louis, reported a marked increase in the number of inquiries about horses and thought the first real dent in the supply of the animals might come from purchases by small retail merchants.

But he noted the present sale of the animals was about 500 a week as compared with 5000 weekly during the first World War.

Just how much motor riding will be curtailed and how many alternatives will be found for motor transit is still a puzzle.

Bicycle manufacturers expect a thriving business, if they can get materials, many of which the OPM considers vital for war.

A pooling of truck and car facilities seems inevitable, and many neighbors probably will ride to work in groups instead of separately.

Delivery trucks of merchants probably will be organized into a pooling system, too, to avoid duplicate trips.

Some industries are considering bringing their workers to the plants in buses that will pick them up at street corners just as school buses pick up their children.

Rail Loadings' Gain Of 8.1% Estimated

The Association of American Railroads estimated yesterday that freight carloading in the first quarter of the New Year would increase 8.1 per cent over the corresponding period of 1941.

A compilation from reports of the 13 shipper's advisory boards estimated that loading of 28 principal commodities would total 6,054,328 in the first quarter of 1942.

Radio...all out for Victory

War puts gigantic demands on America's productive capacity and inventive genius. Research and invention have placed radio in the first line of battle.

COMMUNICATION—rapid communication—is a vital necessity, on land, at sea and in the air. RCA research and engineering developments in both radio and electronics are strengthening—and will further fortify—the bulwarks of our communications system. At Princeton, New Jersey, the new RCA Laboratories—the foremost center of radio research in the world—are under construction.

International circuits, operating on short and long waves, have made the United States the communication center of the world. Today, R.C.A. Communications, Inc., conducts direct radiotelegraph service with 49 countries.

Production of radio equipment is essential for news and timely information, for military and naval communications, for dissemination of news among foreign countries. The "arsenal of democracy" has a radio voice unsurpassed in range and efficiency. In the RCA Manufacturing Company's plants, workers have pledged themselves to "beat the promise," in production and delivery dates of radio equipment needed for war and civilian defense.

American life and property at sea are being safeguarded by ship-and-shore stations. The Radiomarine Corporation of America has equipped more than 1500 American vessels with radio apparatus and is completely engaged in an all-out war effort.

Radio broadcasting is keeping the American people informed accurately and up-to-the-minute. It is a life-line of communication reaching 55,000,000 radio sets in homes and automobiles. It stands as the very symbol of democracy and is one of the essential freedoms for which America fights. The National Broadcasting Company—a service of RCA—and its associated stations are fully organized for the coordination of wartime broadcasting.

New radio operators and technicians must be trained for wartime posts. RCA Institutes, the pioneer radio school of its kind in the United States, has more than 1,200 students enrolled and studying in its New York and Chicago classrooms.

When war came and America took its place on the widespread fighting front, radio was At the Ready . . . with radio men and radio facilities prepared to answer the call to duty "in the most tremendous undertaking of our national history."
